Japan in $430M Pact To Buy Island Copper

PM WARNS CBC OF TRUSTEESHIP

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Monday the federal government would not hesitate to put the French network of the CBC under trusteeship if it was decided the network was misusing its funds.

An interviewer on the Radio-Canada-French network-television program Format 30 asked if the government would take such a step and Trudeau replied: "It's possible. Yes, it's possible. I cannot provide a date, but it's possible."

Trudeau did not elaborate on what form the trusteeship might take. He said the government could content itself with a reduction of the Crown corporation's budget.

"WHAT'S THE PURPOSE of that strange outfit?" Prince Philip asks Tom Grady, who ran forward to introduce himself as the royal visitor left Toronto City Hall after a brief visit this morning. "I'm a member of the Jaycees (Junior Chamber of Commerce) who are active in youth work and I'm going to England this fall," replied Grady. "That's nice, but you better not wear that getup," the prince responded. The man at centre is an aide to Prince Philip. (CP Wirephoto.)

Port Hardy Area to Boom

The San Francisco-based operator of Vancouver Island's largest copper-molybdenum prospect has signed a 10-year contract to sell the bulk of its copper production in Japan.

Value of the deal between Utah Construction & Mining Co. and the Mitsui Industrial Group is estimated at $430 million.

Utah has been exploring and developing large blocks of claims and mineral leases on northern Vancouver Island near Port Hardy since January 1966.

The interest of this major mining company stimulated scores of small companies and individuals to stake property in the area surrounding Holberg and Rupert Inlets south of Port Hardy.

Mitsui said in Tokyo today the organization will buy copper concentrates beginning in 1972, from deposits estimated at 300 million tons of ore.

In San Francisco, Utah senior vice-president A. Reeves said the contract agreement follows a letter of intent signed with Mitsui Sept. 15.

SAME TERMS

A definitive contract on the same terms was signed Monday, providing for the smelting of 60 per cent of Utah's total production in Japan.

Reeves said Mitsui, which includes Mitsui Mining and Smelting Co., will treat approximately 140,000 tons of copper concentrate a year, from this obtaining about 30,000 tons of copper metal, starting early in 1972.

He said Mitsui will buy at prevailing London Metal Market prices at the time of delivery.

Utah is not committed for the remaining 40 per cent of its production.

AVERAGE PRICE

Utah placed no dollar value on the deal. It is understood that average price per pound of copper is difficult to forecast and that, based on the estimate made in Tokyo, the average value of the Utah deal would be in the area of 57 cents a pound, which is considered unrealistically high.

Nonetheless, Reeves was enthusiastic about the agreement:

"It's a good deal; a good deal for us, good for B.C. and good for the Japanese copper market."

DESIGN STAGE

Utah's property development program has reached the engineering design stage, in which the Canadian firm of H. A. Simons International and Fluor Utah Engineers & Constructors are engaged. The latter, now independent, was formerly Utah Construction and Mining Co.'s construction subsidiary.

Construction of the mill begins in the spring of next year.

COUP HITS SOMALIA

MOGADISHU (AP) — A military coup overthrew Somalia's elected government early today less than 24 hours after the funeral of assassinated President Abdirashid Ali Shermarks.

The council said it will "abolish all the bad things left behind. Somalia will be led by responsible people, and tribalism will be abolished."

Canada Follows U.S. Drug Ban

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada will ban the use of the artificial sweetner cyclamate in food and drink in line with similar United States action scheduled to take effect Feb. 1, reliable sources said today.

Federal Health Minister John Munro was to announce the Canadian decision at a news conference later today.

The action follows the announcement last week by U.S. Health Secretary Robert H. Finch that the sweetner causes cancer in animals.

He said there is no evidence that cyclamate causes cancer in humans.

Two federal food and drug directorate officials were sent to Washington to examine the evidence on which the U.S. acted. Informants said they reported to Munro that the American evidence is conclusive and recommended similar Canadian action.

Talks Commence

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet and Czechosolvakian leaders today began talks in the Kremlin that Prague said would lead to a declaration of "basic political importance."

Separatist Street Riots Anger PM

By ANTHONY WESTELL

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Trudeau's attitude toward the turmoil in Quebec has mounted steadily over the past year from contempt to concern to anger.

He has watched civil strife increase as the quality of provincial leadership has declined, and he has seen terrorism add a dreadful dimension to separatism.

Trudeau's intellect and emotions have been engaged not only as a Quebecker but as federal prime minister with ultimate responsibility for the welfare of the province. He is also one of the fathers of the quiet revolution of 1960 and he feels personally betrayed by the narrow nationalism which has eroded the hopes and idealism of those days.

He has been encouraged from time to time, this past year, to believe that perhaps the rot would stop.

•

After his convincing election win and the establishment of a strong French Canadian government in Ottawa, Quebec's interest appeared for a time to turn outwards.

When Premier Daniel Johnson died a year ago and the quieter Jean-Jacques Bertrand succeeded, Trudeau's hopes rose again. He thought he had a tacit understanding that Bertrand would cleanse his Union Nationale administration of secret separatists and extreme nationalists and co-operate wholeheartedly with Ottawa in tackling the economic and social problems of the province.

Bertrand failed to act, even after he had confirmed his leadership against the nationalists at the party convention in June.

His cabinet—as seen from Ottawa—continues to be a coalition paralysed by its divisions and unable to offer leadership.

•

While Trudeau was selling English Canada on the rights of the French language, Bertrand was allowing the rights of English to be nibbled away in Quebec.

After Ottawa and Quebec had reached a compromise on foreign representation, Bertrand permitted the whole issue to be re-opened by receiving French minister Jean de Lipkowski in a manner calculated to snub the federal government.

Trudeau calls this struggle over protocol and prestige "the battle of the red carpet" — an expression of contempt.

It was the coincidence of the de Lipkowski affair with the riots in Montreal that finally triggered Trudeau's anger into action.

He was appalled that the Quebec government could be quibbling with Ottawa over trifles of pomp and prestige while allowing the situation at home to deteriorate so badly that guerrillas could take over the streets for a few hours.

•

Trudeau complained in private about the absence of leadership in Quebec.

His staff watched the anger mounting within him and spread the word that it might well boil over in his speech to Quebec Liberals in Montreal on Sunday night.

A formal text often inhibits Trudeau's style as a speaker. He is distracted by the sight of reporters turning over the pages of a speech issued in

Austerity Key In New Session

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau this week gets his first real chance since assuming office in April, 1968, to chart a distinctive legislative course for Canada.

The Commons resumes Wednesday after a three-month summer recess and after a brief sitting Parliament will prorogue. The Senate ended its summer break last week.

The second session of the 28th Parliament opens Thursday morning as Governor-General Michener reads the speech from throne—written by the government—in the Senate chamber.

It is in this speech that Mr. Trudeau will be able to set out what his government plans, including ways to achieve the "just society" he has said is its aim. And if he follows through with what he has said in the last few weeks it will be marked by austerity.

THRONE SPEECH

The throne speech beginning the first session of the 28th Parliament in September, 1968, Mr. Trudeau's first as prime minister, contained few new policies. Most of the legislation it outlined were leftovers from the Pearson administration.

Included were increases in postal rates, amendments to the Criminal Code and an official languages bill.

Only 11 government bills will die on the order paper when Parliament prorogues.

Five are bills dealing with corporation, the establishment of an educational broadcasting agency, property expropriation regulations, amendments to the Income Tax Act and the customs tariff.

The other six are Senate bills dealing with hate literature, the Supreme Court Act and trust, insurance and loan companies.

The 11 bills probably will be presented again.

It is widely predicted the new session will be no bed of roses for the government.

FIVE PUPILS DISMISSED FOR LSD IN SCHOOL

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP)—Five students have been dismissed from Handsworth Secondary School here after being caught with LSD in their possession in school.

Peter Powell, school board chairman, said they were boys and girls in Grades 10 to 12. He said names were not being released.

"The drug was discovered by a member of the school staff," he said.

He said RCMP were called after the five admitted having LSD on the premises.

"The students are dismissed pending a full investigation by the staff of the superintendent's office and a report to the school board."

RCMP said Monday night no charges have been laid.

U.S. to Retain Air Base On Okinawa

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Japan have reached an understanding for the return of Okinawa to Tokyo's administrative control by 1972 while maintaining the U.S. military base on the island, official sources say.

The agreement will call for taking U.S. nuclear weapons off the island, held by the United States since the Japanese defeat in the Second World War, the officials said.

President Nixon and Japanese Prime Minister Eisaku Sato plan to issue a joint statement about the transfer when they conclude their Nov. 19-21 meeting in Washington, the officials said.

It will provide the date and the conditions to be embodied in a formal agreement negotiated after the Sato-Nixon meeting.

Negotiation of the final agreement, Nixon administration officials said, may take a year or more. When the United States and Japan reached an agreement in 1967 for the return of Iwo Jima and the Bonin Islands, it took seven months to negotiate the final details.

SWINGING the Japanese version of the shillelagh, a leftist student demonstrator lays a stave into the back of a riot policeman during a scuffle in Tokyo's Shinjuku area at nationwide demonstrations.

Tokyo Students Hurl Bombs In Clash With Riot Police

TOKYO (Reuters) — Radical students throwing gasoline bombs today paralysed central Tokyo as nationwide demonstrations against the United States and the Japanese government got under way.

At least 400 students were arrested in clashes with riot police. Traffic and rail services were disrupted, and stores and government offices closed to avoid trouble.

Two unsuccessful attempts were made to set off bombs at a pair of U.S. air bases in Japan, and on Okinawa American military police arrested five leftists who entered a U.S. Air Force base at Kadena.

The militant activities were a prelude to parades and rallies involving estimated 450,000 persons police expected to turn out on the annual anti-war day to protest against the war in Vietnam, a U.S.-Japanese security treaty and continued American possession of Okinawa.

All Bishops Vote To Share Powers

VATICAN CITY (AP) — All nine subcommissions of the world synod of bishops have voted in favor of giving bishops a strong new voice in helping the Pope rule the Roman Catholic Church, the Vatican said today.

The majority reports of the groups were sent to the full 146-member synod for final ratification. This is considered a formality.

The proposals then will be handed to Pope Paul who, if he puts them into effect, would virtually end what some liberals have called the papacy's "absolute monarchical rule."

A source said the changes would avert the chance of a Pope issuing a ruling, such as Pope Paul's ban on artificial birth control, without full consultation with the world's bishops. On the other hand, national bishops conferences would be obliged to consult the Roman Curia, the Vatican's administrative organ, before taking major decisions for their own countries.

Some liberals in the synod predicted the pontiff would approve the recommendations to share more of his authority with bishops around the globe.

None of the subcommissions contested the Pope's primacy or his right to make final decisions for the 500,000,000-member church, the synod's English-language briefing officer, Rev. Mark Reuver, said in his daily report.

URGE FAST MOVE

He said all groups urged, however, that the principle of collegiality—sharing by bishops in papal decision-making—be "brought into effect immediately, as the times call for it."

Each group voted to propose that the synod meet regularly and that the pontiff and Vatican keep in constant touch with the bishops in the dioceses.

Father Reuver said a majority in the synod felt also that a small but permanent body of bishops should be stationed at the Vatican to present the interests of national groups of bishops.

advance and he feels unable to speak forcefully from the heart.

On Sunday night he had no text. His staff prepared notes and statistics and he had some hours on Sunday arranging his thoughts.

To catch his words and circulate them swiftly, transcribers and translators worked through Sunday night to make the full text available in English and French by early Monday.

Attention has focused on Trudeau's threats to close down the French-language CBC if necessary to cut off the separatists, and his threats against the Company of Young Canadians.

These are unfortunate examples of Trudeau's tendency to overkill—to dramatic utterances which are mere melodrama.

Much more important is the fact that Trudeau has burst into Quebec politics to try to offer the leadership that he finds lacking in the province. He tried to stiffen spines against the terrorists and to direct attention away from nationalism and separatism to concrete economic and social problems.

•

But Trudeau is not premier of Quebec, able to make his leadership felt at the local level. He is not even the leader of an opposition party with an opportunity to put his ideas before the people in the provincial election next year.

He advised the Quebec Liberals, on Sunday night, to make sure they choose a strong federalist for their leader, at the convention in January. But there are no candidates yet available who appear both strong and acceptable to the party and to the public.

This persuades some observers in Ottawa that Trudeau's friend and colleague, Jean Marchand, will have to change his mind and leave the federal government after all to run as Quebec Liberal leader.

There are suggestions even that Marchand's refusal to run means merely that he is waiting for an overwhelming draft.

What does seem clear is that Trudeau has committed himself to battle with the separatists and extreme nationalists and will use whatever weapons are necessary.

"You can count on us," he said. "We shall not allow the country to be divided, neither from within nor from without . . . I tell you again that no crisis will find us absent anywhere in Canada, especially in Quebec."

are doing clearing work. Test drilling is still being done and access roads are being built.

Utah said in June it will spend $73.5 million on mine development. The daily capacity of the mill will be 33,000 tons of ore. It estimated reserves at 280 million tons.

Reeves said it had not been decided whether an independent community would be constructed, or whether Port Hardy will become the principal centre. In any case, housing and other social development will be necessary, he said.

He also said he did not have the competence to predict the life of the undertaking, although 20 years has been suggested as a minimum.

Unilateral Ceasefire 'In Effect'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said today President Nixon's latest orders to commanders in Vietnam amounted to a unilateral cease fire.

While speculation continued over whether Nixon might announce a unilateral cease fire—In his Nov. 3 speech to the nation, Mansfield said the president already had made a basic change in policy by ordering troops to limit themselves to "protective reaction."

Asked by a reporter if this was a de facto ceasefire, Mansfield said "I think that is what protective reaction means."

KEROUAC

'Beat' Generation Writer Dies

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI) — Author Jack Kerouac, considered the first of the "beat generation" writers, died today at St. Anthony's hospital.

Kerouac, who had lived here for nearly a year with his wife Stella and his mother, was taken to the hospital and underwent surgery.

Kerouac, 49, regarded as the founder of the "beat generation" after the Second World War, gained fame with his book "On the Road."

Kerouac wrote more than two dozen books and had one ready for publication next month. His books sold several million copies and were translated into 18 languages.

Kerouac's brother-in-law, Charles Sampas, news editor of the Lowell Sun, said "Jack didn't mean it to be the 'beat generation' as it developed, "he meant beatific—sort of spiritual rather than materialistic."

Invited Out By Cambodia

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Cambodia says it wants the International Control Commission to be withdrawn by the end of the year, but the reasons for the decision have not been officially disclosed yet.

"You know more than I do," said External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp when asked for comment. Sharp was in New York for an address Monday night before a U.S. foreign policy group.

A British spokesman announced Monday that Cambodia had requested that the Canadian, Polish and Indian members who comprise the ICC in Cambodia leave.

Carpentry Class Needs Tools

The YMCA's youth department wants to borrow tools for a carpentry class for boys eight to 15.

The 50 boys registered are being taught by volunteer union carpenters.

A creative drama class for 13 to 17-year-olds will be held at the Y Tuesdays, from 4 to 5:30 p.m. Registration forms are available from the youth department. Kay Howard is giving the course.

Work Awarded On Repair Dock

OTTAWA (CP) — Pacific Piledriving Co. Ltd. of Victoria has been awarded a $75,708 contract for harbor repairs at Port Hardy on the northern tip of Vancouver Island, the public works department announced Monday.

Board Eases Over-19 Enrolment

Greater Victoria school board approved a policy change Monday designed to make it easier for certain students over 19 to complete high school.

The Public Schools Act states that school boards are not required to provide education free to students who are 19 before Sept. 1. The Act leaves it up to individual boards to decide whether such students will be allowed to attend, or whether they will have to pay a fee.

The revised Greater Victoria school district policy, as presented by Victor Thompson, director of secondary instruction, enrolment of over-age students will be at the discretion of the district superintendent or the principal of the school concerned.

Thompson said drop-outs and grade 12 repeaters over 19 will still have to pay the annual $250 fee.

But, he added, the board does not want to penalize "deserving" students who have been unable to complete grade 12 before they are 19 for reasons beyond their control, such as illness.

Over-age students have a choice of completing junior and senior matriculation in a local high school or at the Institute of Adult Studies.

Indian Program To Continue

A cultural and academic enrichment program for 17 Indian pupils at Craigflower Elementary School will be wholly financed by the Greater Victoria school board.

Trustees learned Monday that the federal Indian affairs and northern development department will not finance the enrichment program.

Cost of the program to the end of 1969 is $400.

The program involves tutoring by Indians who have been successful after adopting goals and aims attuned to white Canadian culture.

"We are very much concerned that so few Indian children are graduating out of our high schools," explained special education services co-ordinator E. G. Callbeck.

Most of the Indian tutors will be drawn from the Institute of Adult Studies.

Professors Facing Dismissal

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dr. Kenneth Strand, president of Simon Fraser University, said Monday he has told eight suspended professors they face dismissal hearings in 14 days.

The eight, all in the political science, sociology and anthropology department at the suburban Burnaby campus, were suspended two weeks ago after going on strike to protest university handling of the department.

Letters to the eight from Dr. Strand asked them to appoint a delegate to the dismissal board.

The university will appoint its own representative and a chairman will be selected by them, or in case of disagreement, by the chief justice of the British Columbia Supreme Court.

Salamanders Speaker's Topic

Dr. Gerhart Friedmann of the University of Victoria's physics department will speak on salamanders Thursday at 4:30 p.m.

The lecture will be held in Room 062 of the Elliott Building and will be preceded by coffee, to be served at 3:30 p.m. in Room 205.

ALBERTA TREASURY BRANCHES

Two Justices Say Act Invalid

OTTAWA (P) — Two Supreme Court of Canada justices said today in a minority judgment that the Alberta Treasury Branches Act is invalid because it invades the federal field of banking.

But the majority of the nine-member high court found it unnecessary to make such a finding in dismissing an appeal by Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Green of Edmonton in connection with an agreement they signed in 1958 with a treasury branch.

The Greens sought to annul the agreement, under which they transferred properties to the Alberta government, on the grounds that the province had no authority to be in the banking business. They also alleged breaches of the agreement.

Mr. Justice Ronald Martland, writing the majority reasons for the court, said even if the provincial treasurer had no legal authority to lend funds to the Greens, "there being nothing illegal about the transaction but at most lack of authority in the provincial treasurer to make the advance, the plaintiffs would have no answer to an action for money had and received.

"In reaching that conclusion, I do not find it necessary to determine the constitutional validity of the act," said Mr. Justice Martland.

MUST RETURN MONEY

Mr. Justice Hall, writing the minority judgment in which Mr. Justice Wishart Spence agreed, said the Treasury Branches Act is invalid because Alberta is prohibited from passing banking legislation, a federal responsibility.

Mr. Justice Hall added, however, that this finding would not stop Alberta from recovering the money loaned to the Greens. "Regardless of that issue, they must return the moneys they received," he said.

Under the 1958 agreement, the Greens transferred to the provincial treasurer Green's Garage in Wainwright, Green's Garage in Edmonton, their Edmonton Home, property at Valleyview and others.

In return the treasurer agreed to allow credit on Breckenridge Speedway Ltd. and other businesses owned by the Greens. There was also a lease-back on the businesses and other considerations.

Mr. Justice Martland said the Greens "cannot demand a re-transfer of the properties from the Crown unless they can establish that there is no obligation on their part to repay the moneys which the properties were partially to repay."

"They cannot establish the fact when, if their contention as to the unconstitutionality of the act is correct, they are in the position of having received Crown moneys through the unauthorized act of the Crown's agent, in which they participated."

Seat Request Under Study

The Greater Victoria school board will study a request from View Royal residents for their own elected representative on the board.

The View Royal Ratepayers' Association, in a letter to the board Monday, said the 3,500 people in View Royal should have a voice on the board.

There are currently three Victoria representatives, three from Saanich, two from Oak Bay and one from Esquimalt.

Board chairman Carron Jameson pointed out that the board is already the maximum size permitted by the province.

Army Rebels In Chile

SANTIAGO (AP) — President Eduardo Frei Montavla imposed a state of siege on Chile today and recessed Congress indefinitely amid mounting reports of a burgeoning army rebellion in his copper-rich country.

Two army units of the 2nd Division, based in Santiago, rebelled early in the day, and within hours there were persistent reports that other units were joining in.

The government announced it was facing "an attempt at military sedition."

A presidential decree read over radio and television proclaimed the state of siege, a modified form of martial law.

The crisis in Chile, which has not had a military coup in more than 30 years, follows by only a year an army revolt which seized power in Peru and a more recent military upheaval in Bolivia.

The leader of the uprising in Chile appeared to be Brig.-Gen. Roberto Viaux Marambo, retired recently from command of the 1st Infantry Division at Antofagasta, 500 miles north of Santiago.

AGED EXEMPTED ON SCHOOL TAX

ST. BONIFACE, Man. (CP) — A special meeting of city council Monday unanimously approved a motion exempting pensioners from school taxes.

The motion now must go before a regular meeting for approval. If passed there, an amendment to the city charter would have to be passed by the provincial government.

To qualify for the exemption, the taxpayer must be past 65 years of age receiving the old-age pension, be a resident of St. Boniface for the last 15 years and be a property pwner in the Greater Winnipeg City for the last 10 years.

•

Single persons cannot earn more than $3,100 a year and married pensioners must not earn in excess of $4,000 to qualify for total exemption.

The exemption will be either the total school tax or $120, whichever is the greater.

If a couple earned $4,050, the extra $50 would be subtracted from the $120. allowing a reduction of $70 in the school tax.

A one-mill increase in property tax will be levied to cover the estimated cost of the scheme.

Anti-Pollution Lobby Urged By Conservationist Judge

CAMPBELL RIVER — A unified anti-pollution lobby is necessary to get governments and the public concerned about the problem, the Campbell River Pollution Control Society was told.

Author conservationist Magistrate Roderick Haig-Brown said the first step is to unify all existing pollution fighting groups to begin feeding accurate information to the public.

He said some groups have already begun getting together to put pressure on the provincial government.

One of the possibilities they are fighting is pollution of the Gulf of Georgia, Haig-Brown said.

"We know a great deal about (pollution of the gulf) because the current sets northward from the Fraser River, which brings all that southern pollution up," he said.

"It circles around Cape Mudge, and we are adding to that stream of pollution in the gulf ourselves."

NDP Meeting

Rev. H. T. Allen, a vice-president of the Victoria constituency NDP association, said at least five members from the riding will attend the party's national policy conference in Winnipeg next week.

A report in Monday's Times that British Columbia will not send a delegation to the conference was incorrect, he said.

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

So-called "fire weather" to which foresters began to give their earnest attention about 50 years ago, is not peculiar to the North American continent. The Americans and Canadians learned much from the Swiss.

In some valleys of the Alps, there blows from time to time an intensely dry wind called the "foehn". The foehn is so dry that when it is prolonged it changes the woodwork on the outside of a house into the condition of dry tinder.

It causes fires that, once started, spread with uncontrollable rapidity. When the foehn is on the way, Swiss patrols go from house to house in the villages and order all domestic fires extinguished.

In the tall timber on the West Coast, the parching easterly winds that all foresters fear are called "fire winds." When they are preceded by a lengthy period of warm dry weather the timber has become so inflammable that fires seem to start as if by magic. The awful magic is the fire wind that is feared wherever tall forest covers the land.

It's Revolution—Now! And It's by 'Old Power'

There's Youth Power and Black Power and Flower Power and now Charlotte Whitton is preaching the gospel of Old Power.

And the 73-year-old Ottawa alderman is preaching revolution, telling "oldsters" over 65 to leave their rocking-chair retirements and sound off.

The tart-tongued former mayor, Monday, began a barnstorming tour of 10 cities with a speech to the Victoria chapter of the Men's Canadian Club.

She told an audience of men, most of them of her generation, they must stand up and be counted if Canada is to be saved.

●

The elderly must re-assert what Miss Whitton calls "the four absolute pillars of truth, honor, right and justice".

She used acid humor and a bundle of statistics to attack the youth cult and back up her claim that the aged have power they can't even recognize.

"We have been so dumb we accept as essential fact the fallacy that "one half of Canada's population is under 25 years of age".

Miss Whitton's argument is that the population cannot logically be divided into two simple and effective divisions.

"Of Canada's 21 million people there is an effective youth sector of only 3.2 million, all from 16 to 24 years of age—in all, only 15 to 16 per cent of the population.

"No less than 6½ million are infants or kids up to 14 years old, and with another 400,000 at the age of 15—almost 34 per cent of the entire population."

The third and greatest group are those between 25 and 64, the adult and mature according to Miss Whitton, making up 43 per cent of the nation.

●

Then there are the oldsters, those over 65, who number 1.6 million, eight per cent of the population.

"We have some 50,000 to 60,000 more than all the glamorous teenagers—the 16 to 19-year-olds."

And age power is voting power, said Miss Whitton.

She said one in every seven or eight federal electors in 1968 was over 65 years of age.

She warned of a growing storm of anger among the aged over being unjustly shunted aside because of society's preoccupation with the young.

"These hundreds of thousands who have lived out a lifetime to Canada are getting angrier and angrier every day, as they face discrimination in a work-to-age rule, in their substance being diverted by discriminatory taxation to underwrite and finance drop-outs."

●

Part-time employment by those over 65 is going up but their wages are being taxed and used to finance student loans for two of every five students at Canadian Universities, she said.

Their taxes are being used to sponsor the Company of Young Canadians.

"The present aged and aging are as entitled to priority in their claims upon this country's thoughts and planning and resources as the youth in their phantasmagoria whose work has not yet begun."

Finally Miss Whitton hurled down the gauntlet.

"Are we going to be patriots or pikers?" she asked.

"It's time to speak up and act, and the time is shorter than you think."

VILLAGE MOURNS CHILD DEATHS

TEREMENDO (Reuters)—This isolated Mexican mountain village today mourned 18 children who suffocated under 20 tons of earth while collecting sand for a basketball court on the local church ground.

The bodies of the eleven boys and seven girls were dug out from the rubble Monday after a huge operation by the 9,000 inhabitants of the village with spades, knives, pots and bare hands.

The children were part of a group of 60 which left catechism school early Sunday evening with buckets and spades after being told by parish priest Rev. Javier Frias to collect sand to build the basketball court.

Twenty-three children between eight and sixteen ran ahead and had started digging in a disused sand mine when the cave-in occurred. Five escaped with minor cuts and bruises.

Some of the peasant women whose children died, gathered outside Father Frias' church, accusing him of sending the 18 to their deaths.

"Nobody wanted to play basketball; the game is the work of the devil," one mother said.

Attitudes at Home Shape Policy: Sharp

By STEPHEN SCOTT

NEW YORK (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp says governments must take into account new attitudes at home and try to come to terms with them in shaping foreign and domestic policies.

He told the Council of Foreign Affairs in a speech here Monday night that Canada has been influenced by the tremendous surge of social dynamism in her French-speaking community and the attitude of the new generation.

The expression of the French-speaking community was long overdue, he said, but it places a great strain on national unity. The attitude of the new generation is a change that affects all countries.

"In this environment," Sharp said, "there is no way for Canada to creep under the friendly umbrella held up by the United States, there to be sheltered from the worst of the weather."

"Bombarded by domestic and international forces we cannot control," Canada must find her place in the world "and stand there as best we can."

Canada stands next to the U.S., "our closest friend and ally, but in our own place, in our own way."

He addressed a non-profit group dedicated to promoting the interests of Americans outside their own borders.

UNEASY ABOUT UN

On other points, he said:

—Canada feels "profound uneasiness" over the present and future effectiveness of the United Nations.

—Canada is not "bugging out" of NATO and her hope of recognizing Peking is a sign of the "enlargement" of her outlook.

—Just as important as her steps in these two areas are new initiatives, approaches and contacts in French-speaking Africa, Japan and other Asian countries and Latin America and "our developing dialogue with Eastern European powers and the steady increase in our aid to developing countries."

—Canada's foreign policy review is a process that cannot be hurried.

"What we are seeing and what we see is not so much change of direction as enlargement of interest; not withdrawal but diversification."

Canada, an Atlantic, Pacific, Arctic and American nation with limited resources, turned to multi-lateral institutions as a means of fostering her objectives. Above all she looked at the UN.

Korean Cabinet Changed

—SEOUL (AP) — President Chung Hee Park reshuffled six of his 20 cabinet ministers today and appointed a new director of South Korea's Central Intelligence Agency and chief presidential secretary.

Premier Chung Il Kwon's cabinet and the two key officials tendered resignations Monday to give Park a free hand in reorganizing his government following his landslide victory in Friday's national referendum.

The referendum approved a constitutional amendment that allows Park to seek a third consecutive term in 1971.

Park appointed former army Gen. Kim Ke-Won as new director of the intelligence agency, replacing Kim Hyung-Wook. Ke-Won retired Sept. 1 after serving three years as army chief of staff.

Park also named Kim Chung-Yum, outgoing commerce and industry minister, as his chief secretary, succeeding Lee Hu-Rak. Lee had served in the post since Park was elected president in 1963.

Paik Sun-Yup, the current ambassador to Canada, was named transport minister.

Burning Rectal Itch Relieved In Minutes

This Special Hemorrhoid Remedy Contains A Unique Healing Substance That Relieves Pain As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

One of the most common afflictions is a condition known as "Itching Piles." It is most embarrassing for the sufferer during the day and especially aggravating at night.

If you want satisfactory relief—here's good news. A renowned research laboratory has found a unique healing substance with the ability to promptly relieve the burning itch and pain. It actually shrinks hemorrhoids. This substance has been shown to produce a most effective rate of healing. Its germ-killing properties also help prevent infection.

In one hemorrhoid case after another "very striking improvement" was reported. This improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions.

All this was accomplished by a healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—developed by a world-renowned research institution. This substance is now obtainable in ointment or suppository form known as Preparation H. Ask for Preparation H Suppositories (convenient to carry if away from home) or Preparation H Ointment with special applicator. Federal initiative within collective bargaining kept a lot of people off the streets last year.

155,128 to be exact.

Collective bargaining is a lot like a finely oiled piece of machinery. It can run along smoothly for years, without any notice, but just let it break down once and everybody hears about it.

For example take those disputes last year which requested Federal assistance. Of the 165 labour-management disputes that called for Federal Department of Labour conciliation and mediation, 157 were settled before they resulted in strike action and without loss of production or pay. A little basic arithmetic shows that Federal initiative was successful in 19 out of every 20 disputes the Department entered. Incidentally, those 157 cases, settled without a strike, involved 155,128 workers. And that's a lot of people kept off the streets.

In light of this, and since 835 other Federal union contracts were settled without assistance we think it's fair to say that collective bargaining really does work. In fact collective bargaining is the best way known for labour and management to solve their differences in a free society.

No one ever really wins a strike or lockout. Labour loses wages. Management loses profits. Sometimes our whole economy suffers. A strike or lockout is nothing more than a costly failure in communication.

So, next time you read of a work stoppage within Federal Labour jurisdiction, remember, for that one, 125 contracts were settled without breakdown. Not a bad batting average when you add it all up.

But we believe it should be even better; through early mediation and continuous labour-management communication. It can be done. It is being done.

That's part of what we're all about.

J. D. Love, Deputy Minister

The Gauntlet

ONE OF THE GREAT strengths of Prime Minister Trudeau in his open confrontation with Quebec separatists is that he can talk to the people of Quebec as a Quebecois. Hard-hitting criticisms which, coming from an Anglo-Canadian, might invite accusations of racism, must be answered on their merits when they are delivered by this bi-lingual son of Montreal and recognized champion of Quebec rights.

Mr. Trudeau made it very clear Sunday night that those rights do not include breaking away from Canada. He made it equally clear that even talk of such an occurrence is having serious effects on the province socially, politically and economically—that Quebec is losing out in regard to international investment, domestic investment and population movement. "The folly of past years has lasted long enough," he said.

Recent events have brought the Quebec situation to a critical point and Mr. Trudeau's response along with them. The man who refused to be driven from an outdoor platform by the missiles of a Montreal street mob, who plunged among jeering Vancouver critics regardless of personal contact, who urged government leaders at municipal level to disregard threats by violent minorities who seek to disrupt official ceremonies—has now declared a frontal attack on subversive elements who scheme to break Queebc away from Canada. Ottawa's role will apparently become more active.

The failure of the provincial government to move decisively to find an acceptable solution to the St. Leonard English-language school embroglio roused Mr. Trudeau's concern, along with that of many Canadians. Here was a rejection by French-Canadians of the linguistic safeguards which Mr. Trudeau had persuaded English-speaking Canada to extend to French-speaking minorities.

Then the questionable activities of M. de Lipowski, the minister from Paris who courted Quebec with gratuitous advice and snubs to the Canadian government, further irked the Prime Minister.

And the breakdown of the organized community life of Montreal for several hours during the recent policemen's strike brought further attention to subversive elements which took advantage of an anarchical situation.

Now Mr. Trudeau has given warning to separatist advocates in the French network of the CBC, and in the Company of Young Canadians, that their anti-Canadian activities must cease. Canadians will not support through their taxes the campaigns, overt or otherwise, of persons who seek to destroy Confederation.

It may well be that the current tribulations of Quebec will strengthen Canadian unity, and Mr. Trudeau's timely attack will help to provide a focus for the non-separatist people of the province. Certainly Mr. Trudeau can be expected to pursue the matter with energy. He made Canadian unity the key point of his election campaign, the only major commitment that he undertook. He can neither tolerate, nor afford, a reversal on that point.

No One Will Give Way

I was driving along a road here the other day, a road without sidewalks. Coming along in front of me on my side, but spread out casually, oh so casually, across the road, were a bunch of dead-pan, cold-eyed young girls. They did not move over or show any recognition of my approach. I had two choices, either to stop or to go around them. I chose to go around rather than confront—and had to pass them. I thought as yet there are still people like me who will compromise, but when you all grow up no one is going to give way. You are all going to have one another.—T. Cooke, No. 205, 715 Vancouver Street.

Inflated Mail

We suffered a serious setback in the fight against inflation when we tolerated the postmen's strike roughly 14 months ago. The strike then lasted nearly a month and, without very much argument, their claim for more was allowed. In a little less than a month after the increase, some agitation was started by the postmen for Saturdays off.

This was allowed the following February and has continued since. I don't know what mail service everyone gets, but I am satisfied that "all" the mail is not delivered each day.—Harry Wyer.

A Hollow Tory Finger in the Canadian Dam

THE Progressive Conervative conference at Niagara Falls produced a resolution on the use and export of water which is not merely self-contradictory on its face but dangerous for the encouragement it may well afford to the predatory United States Nawapa lobby. According to the final report, the Conservatives would establish a national water resources board to work out and co-ordinate national water policy and commence immediate consultation and co-operation with the provinces.

Western

This board would be instructed, among other things "to preserve and ensure the availablity of an adequate supply of clean water for Canada's present and future needs in the various fields."

It would prepare, in co-operation with the National Energy Board, a complete water inventory, project respective availability of and demands on Canadian waters to the year 2100 and maintain an inventory of Canada's actual and prospective supplies and needs thereafter.

No Inventory

The above recommendation correctly assumes that we do not have such a complete inventory now; nor are we in a position to estimate our future demands for water and the supplies which will be available to meet them.

But given this situation, the conference illogically backed into a second recommendation which in effect approves exports. It reads: "On the basis of available evidence of the quantities of water available to meet our immediate and long-range needs, the conference found that there is no great opposition to limited exports of water (i.e. 5 per cent of surplus water) as a marketable resource, provided that the long-range needs of the country are fully protected."

Obviously there is no way of knowing whether long-range needs would be fully protected, if exports were permitted. It is not even established that there exists a "surplus of available water in the light of probable demands".

Despite the campaigns of Senator Frank Moss and his allies in the United States, there is no urgency whatever about this matter.

The Conservative committee, at an earlier meeting, observed that "the flowing water shortage in the U.S., the effect of this and the question of matters relating to international waters and the possibility of substantial sales of water by Canada, offer challenges and opportunities."

It is somethimes suggested that Canadians have a moral obligation to help their water-short neighbors.

U.S. Problem

But the high-ranking U.S. officials have themselves testified that they have no absolute shortage of water; merely a shortage of clean water.

Why is there an obligation on Canada to help a much richer nation clean its own water on the cheap?

There is a second important question. Why, in the present state of our knowledge, should we sell on the cheap?

As Arthur Laing, who was formerly responsible for northern development, has pointed out, water is our ultimate resource.

In a very prudent warning against haste, he said of our water resources in the House of Commons on Jan. 31, 1968: "If we reserve as long as we possibly can a final commitment of them, then this nation is going to experience a tremendous national capital gain in the improved value of these resources."

It is odd that the Conservatives should overlook this most important point when they have suddenly developed a high degree of interest in capital gains from the taxation standpoint.

Any layman contemplating our water-laced northern terrain might be forgiven an immediate impression that our resources are virtually without limit. But in fact vast areas of the north are covered with what is essentially pond water held by perma-frost.

If drawn off, it would not be replaceable, or only over very long time periods, and its withdrawal might have serious effects on vegetation biological life, and even—as General McNaughton suggested—on climatic conditions.

What is available for use is running water and our total streamflow, far from being limitless, was stated by the same high authority to be "of a similar order of magnitude to that of the United States."

On the Prairies we have often been water-short. (So, of course, are the arid regions of the United States but their logical resort is to other parts of the republic and these—it is interesting to observe—appear curiously disinclined to admit the moral obligation which some Americans, without shadow of justice, attribute to us).

Mr. Bennett's Dam

But even in the north, we have problems. Only lately Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia, who is so solicitous for the welfare of the Mackenzie people that he wants to annex the territory has caused direct injury not only to them but also to the people of northern Alberta by building his dam across the Peace.

For the time being at least there is insufficient water to satisfy both the Mackenzie and British Columbia but the Conservatives lightly talk of exporting water to the United States.

At least four provinces, at various times and for good reasons, have declared their opposition to water exports. Any commitment at the present time would be dangerous and ought to be resisted.

For many years it was national policy, and in the circumstances of the time sound policy, to bar the export of further water power.

In theory such exports were temporary and retrievable; in fact since power is the life substance of modern communities, it would have been impossible to revoke such exports.

On one critical occasion when this appeared necessary, the United States held that revocation would be an unfriendly act.

The traditional power policy became obsolete with the development of nuclear energy on a commercial basis; this meant, for practical politicians, that we had to make the best deal while we were still in a position to do so.

But technology has not made water obsolete and is not likely to do so. Once U.S. communities become dependent on Canadian water, it will be impossible for us to draw it off for our own needs (now perhaps unsuspected) without involving this country in a "conflict situation" to borrow the new Conservative academic jargon—with the United States.

Trevor Lloyd once described the Nawapa scheme as "an exercise in sophomore engineering." General McNaughton, speaking to the Royal Society in June, 1966, charged that:

"This is a concept, monstrous not only in terms of physical magnitude, but monstrous also in another and more sinister sense in that the promoters would displace Canadian sovereignty over the national waters of Canada, and substitute therefore a diabolic thesis that all waters of North America become a shared resource, of which most will be drawn off for the benefit of the United States midwest and southwest regions where existing areas will be made to bloom at the expense of development in Canada."

Question of Judgment

The Conservatives would certainly deny that they have anything of this nature in mind. It is unnecessary to question their sincerity; merely their judgment. By advocating limited exports from a "surplus" at present purely hypothetical and by coupling this with a proposal for a package resource deal extending to oil and gas, they are helping to open a door for a premature U.S. grab.

By an exercise in sophomore politics, they are encouraging interests, already powerful in the U.S. Senate, which for some years have been employing their considerable resources to brain-wash us into approval of such a policy.

It is to be hoped that the Trudeau government which has been ingenious in detecting imaginary threats to our soveriegnty will recognize a real one when it sees it and repudiate the ill-considered policy endorsed by the Conservative conference.

Speaking in the Future Tens

THE APPARENT INEVITABILity of an eventual changeover to the metric system in all Canadian measurements is increasingly engaging the attention of science and industry in this country. The metric system, employing metres, grams and litres as the basis of measurements of distance, weight and volume, is now used by 90 per cent of the nations and is involved in 80 per cent of the world's trade.

Britain, the United States and Canada have been the main holdouts for the foot, pound and quart system, along with Australia and New Zealand and South Africa. But Britain is already in the process of going metric: the coinage is being converted to decimal fractions, and paper trade standards are being made metric. By the mid-seventies Britain hopes to have made a complete switch.

This will leave Canada with a familiar dilemma: whether to go ahead and convert to the metric system before the United States or after. For the trend seems clear, and despite the enormous costs of conversion the demands of science and trade, and the convenience of conformity, should soon make the logical metric system universal. There will, of course, be a long period of adjustment, perhaps accompanied by many bruises to sentiment, tradition and custom. But the advantages should over-rule these in the end.

Land measurements may be one of the last to alter, for the existing easy breakdown of square miles into sections and acres will not follow when hectares take over. And the need of changing the millions of machines, tools and gauges to comply with the decimal system will be complicated and expensive. It has been estimated that for the United States to make the change during a 20-year period would cost about $11 billions. Clearly, there should be adequate compensations for such an undertaking.

Canada has already run into problems, for with our large export trade, particularly to Europe, the clash of metres and feet entails considerable adjustments. Lumber exporters have experienced this. With Britain going metric, our problems will increase. But if we switch as soon as possible, our problems with the United States — our chief customer and source of our imports —will also become serious.

Clearly the situation calls for careful planning, and this should be carried out in conjunction with the appropriate authorities of Britain and the United States. Whatever the cost of conversion may be, one thing is certain; it will never get less as long as our industrial, scientific and commercial activities increase.

Cutting Away the Brambles

SAANICH MUNICIPAL LEADers have expressed their sincere appreciation for young people who last Saturday cleared away some of the blackberry tangle and other growth choking a stretch of Colquitz Creek. These were students with a special interest in fighting pollution and improving the environment.

"They did a tremendous job," said Saanich parks administrator Bert Richman. "We saw water for the first time in several areas of the creek." The community saw more than that. It saw what young people can do — and do cheerfully — for the benefit of everyone. Here, if it were needed, was an example of constructive effort by the young to measure against some of the destructive and unfortunate activities of a relative few in their generation.

More than brambles were cut away at Colquitz Creek last weekend. A few misconceptions about today's young people went with them.

FROM LONDON

By DAVID HUMPHREYS

A Fight to Advance Overseas Aid

THE Pearson commission on international development has a diligent band of followers at Westminster and Whitehall who have been striving mightily to save overseas aid from the treasury axe. Their task is not easy.

The British cabinet is reviewing spending of all departments for the next three years with the intent of reducing total spending by something in the order of $1 billion.

Chancellor of the Exchequer Roy Jenkins is astute enough to realize that restraint must be practised if the government is to move beyond mere recovery from years of financial disaster to expansion. Both he and the prime minister have taken care during the last two weeks to bridle the euphoria that has developed within the Labor Party simply because the nation has moved from doom to promise.

They now hope that the electorate will forget or forgive the harsh years in the realization that life under Labor is not so bad after all.

Faced with these political pressures, the government must hold certain articles of faith in international development aid if there is to be any increase over this year's $540 million appropriation. Perhaps the government's motives are being viewed with undue cynicism. Only a month has passed since Mr. Wilson pledged that the government would not reduce aid programs to underdeveloped countries. Why, therefore, the present concern over a routine, long-range budget review?

First, simply to avoid a reduction is not food enough for those who have firmly embraced the Pearson commission's proposal that developed countries should transfer, net, 1 per cent of their gross national product to underdeveloped countries; of this .7 per cent would be government aid. At present total British aid is running at .83 per cent of which .42 is government aid, the remainder private aid. The annual government budget would have to double from the estimated $583 million for 1969 to $1.1 billion by 1975 according to the Pearson commission's objective.

Officials within the Ministry of Overseas Development believe government must lead; the flow of private capital tends to fluctuate with various credit and investment factors. Certainly, the present emphasis on exports, now the exclusive preserve of the Board of Trade, cannot help but contribute to the total picture. Between 1964 and 1968 private capital invested in developing countries fluctuated between a low of $296 million in 1967 and a high of $501 million in 1965.

There are outward signs now that a sequel to the Pearson commission's report is being written behind the scenes and this is a story of the practical perils along the road to the concepts of the global village free from the present disparities of rich and poor. In the British case these perils are entirely quantitative rather than qualitative. The British aid program parallels remarkably closely the recommended pattern of the Pearson commission

Several events of the last three weeks have not augured well for the Pearson missionaries. First was the address to the Labor conference of Mr. Reginald Prentice, then minister for overseas development.

The conference passed a resolution calling for more overseas aid after a forceful speech by Mr. Prentice

Within a week Mr. Prentice lost his job at overseas development in the major Wilson cabinet reshuffle. He become minister of state at the Ministry of Technology — for three days. Then he resigned, declaring that he believed he could fight the battle for more overseas aid as a back-bencher better than in the ministry. Mrs. Judith Hart was moved from paymaster general to overseas aid and within a week was forced to justify her new department's programs before the treasury.

Troubled Labor back-benchers lent moral support last week with a motion protesting against the government's failure to fulfil their commitment to hypothecate one per cent of the GNP for overseas aid. Mr. Prentice was among 75 signers.

The Pearson commission dealt in long-range terms with the advantages to the developed nations of a stable world order achieved through an ordered aid system. In the short-range this concept is not easily sold to an electorate worried about their pocketbooks.

Looking Back

From the Times of Oct. 21, 1909:

Sir Percy Fitzgerald, the South African statesman who addressed the Canadian Club this afternoon, has a pleasing disposition which makes him popular among both English and Dutch. One of the foremost men in Transvaal politics, he is head of the Progressive Party which constitutes the opposition to the government led by General Louis Botha. Visiting Canada for the first time, Sir Percy said he was tremendously impressed by the Dominion's potentialities.

LETTER FROM QUEBEC CITY

By PAUL WILLIAMSON

French Canada Wants Strong Leader, or Does It?

Like many incidents of violence which have plagued Montreal in recent years, the outbursts of October 7 were just too far from Quebec City to cause more than a brief mention and shrug of the shoulders. Local newspapers had Montreal in the headlines for the week, and television stations carried special reports for a day or so, but colleagues at work, neighbors and the man in the street seem to have little to say about the problem.

Williamson

And the substantial victories of government candidates in the four by-elections held the day following the Montreal police strike suggest moreover that Quebec voters in places other than Quebec City are not dissatisfied with the current quality of government in the province.

★

Many people see the government's response to the police strike as swift and decisive. The National Assembly's action in passing a law ordering striking police and firemen back to work is praised.

The suggestion that the government could have acted earlier is brushed aside. The many other crises confronting the provincial government do not seem to be considered a result of the Bertrand government's action or inaction. Nor for the matter is the current chaotic situation in Quebec blamed on either municipal officials or Ottawa.

Yet an outsider in Quebec can see several extremely serious situations developing.

Hospital workers across the province have called for a strike vote after 18 months of unsuccessful negotiation. School teachers in two districts are on strike, and strikes may spread to other districts in a dispute between teachers and the government which has lasted almost two years.

The argument about the Murray Hill monopoly of passenger pick-ups at the Montreal airport, which involves the federal government as well, has turned violent before. Conversation with taxi drivers suggests this dispute, which dates from Expo 67 days, is likely to get worse.

Montreal police and firemen threatened to hold "study groups" several months ago when the precarious financial situation of Montreal led to suggestions of alterations in the employees' pension fund.

Yet when they did hold "study groups" they caught the city administration napping and the mayor in St. Louis.

A western Canadian living in Quebec often wakes up with a sense that society is crumbling around him in a way that it could not in other parts of Canada.

★

One simply cannot picture John Robarts or Premier Bennett permitting the situation to deteriorate to the point where federal troops must be called in.

To suggest this last point to a French-Canadian is often to strike a responsive cord.

What is lacking in Quebec politics currently is a strong leader. When the Quebecer praises the government for acting quickly in Montreal rather than condemn it for the previous months of inaction, he is applauding the decisive authoritarian leadership which has frequently characterized the province in the past.

He is praising the leader who keeps the lid on tight, restricts unions, and muffles the voices of extremism in both religion and politics. He bring to mind the image of Duplessis.

Such nostalgia discloses one of the disruptive inner conflicts which has beset French Canada since 1960. For a strongman government with a conservative bent is no longer possible.

The quiet revolution initiated by the government involved the province in vast public expenditures which meant increased taxes and financial squabbles with Ottawa. It also moved the Quebec worker, particularly the white collar worker, into the mainstream of post-war North American suburban life.

The defeat of Lesage suggested among other things that the spending policies of the Liberals and the resulting high taxes were just too much. French Canada was being pulled too quickly from the world of Duplessis.

The Union National, of course, did not return to more conservative policies and has in effect continued the programs born in the Lesage cabinet.

But it the French-Canadian seems somewhat uncomfortable about government spending, he is certain that at an individual level he does not want to return to the earlier financial attitudes.

Thus the conflict. The acquisitive Quebec voter of 1969 talks of the need to return to a more conservative government, but lives a life style which suggests the opposite. Critical of large-scale government expenditures aimed at bringing Quebec's standard of living to the level of the rest of the continent, the individual citizen is quick to take advantage of easy credit to do just that for himself.

★

And the strong leader, who might be influential enough to check the change in the Quebec way of life, is nowhere in sight. Caouette's candidates were soundly defeated this month, Levesque's Parti Quebecois, rightly or wrongly, is associated with the violence of separatist activities, and the Liberals are currently leaderless.

As a result, the Union National, by acting decisively in crises instead of avoiding them, will probably continue to have the support of the majority of Quebec citizens.

Mayan Mysteries Under New Study

By WALTER SULLIVAN
New York Times Science Editor

As a first and essential step toward deciphering the ancient Mayan writings, preparations are being made to scour the Central American jungles to photograph and assemble a photographic collection of every known inscription.

With all available ideographs assembled in a single publication, it is hoped that photographers can unravel the historical records of the Maya. This, in turn, may reveal why the greatest civilization of pre-Columbian America disintegrated long before the arrival of the white man.

Dodging Snakes

The project has been designed by a British archeologist, Ian Graham, who for the last 10 years has been roaming Central America, dodging snakes and pulling back vines to reveal hidden monuments. His plan to assemble photographs and drawings of all known inscriptions has been endorsed by a panel of leading specialists in the field.

One such specialist, Dr. Gordon Ekholm of the American Museum of Natural History in New York, likened Graham to the 19th-century archeologists — men of independent means who went into the wilderness on their own.

The Maya civilization is thought to have risen between 1500 and 300 B.C. and to have flowered between 300 and 900 A.D. Their temples and public buildings testify to their architectural achievements. They developed an elaborate calendar and they used a numerical system with 20 as the base number.

The Maya ideographs resemble those of Chinese in that a basic ideograph can be modified, in meaning, by the addition of an affix. However, the writing, in Graham's view, shows no evidence of influence from Asia or Europe.

Nor is it yet clear, Graham said, to what extent — if any — the writing is phonetic.

When the Spaniards arrived, the Maya civilization was in decay, but extensive libraries survived. The Maya had developed a bark-fibre paper. However, a Spanish cleric, Bishop Landa, reportedly suspected the Maya writings of being heretical and had them destroyed.

Thus, according to Graham, only four codices survived and now are in Madrid, Dresden, East Germany, and Paris. Study of the ideographs, or glyphs, in those documents has made it possible to decipher some of them, but the meaning of a large part of the Mayan writings remains obscure.

Take 16 Years

This is true, Graham said, even though there are still a million or more Central Americans who speak Mayan in one or more of its 12 modern dialects.

If, as Graham suspects, it would take one man some 16 years to visit the 200 sites where inscribed monuments are known to lie, the project may ultimately cost a half million dollars, he believes. His academic supporters are exploring ways of financing the program.

Lookout tower tops Mayan fortress

There is urgency to the effort, because tourists, vandals and dealers in ancient art, as well as weather, are destroying many of the old monuments. Some, with long rows of glyphs, are being broken up so that the glyphs may be sold individually, thus eliminating any possibility that their hidden messages will be deciphered.

Graham told of the joys and rigors of his work. Sometimes he has to ride muleback through swamps where the mules sink belly deep and, as each foot pulls free, the sound is like a pistol shot.

The sight of a boa constrictor overhead is welcome, he added, for they are too small to bother people, but big enough to eat the poisonous snakes. He keeps a snakebite kit handy.

His technique is to photograph the monumental inscriptions both in daylight and at night when, by lighting the stone from various angles, he can highlight features that have almost weathered away.

Sort Into Families

From all these photographs he then makes drawings of the glyph sequences to appear in the book alongside one of the better photographs.

His intent is that cryptographers will zerox the drawings, cut out the glyphs and sort them into families as part of the code-breaking process.

He hopes that computers may prove useful in this respect.

'BUYING WAY OUT OF JAIL'

TORONTO STAR

Imprisonment for debt is something that most Canadians associate with the long-ago England of Charles Dickens' novels.

Yet every day in Canada men and women are committed to jail because they are unable to pay a debt owing to the Crown. This debt is called a fine, assessed on the traditional principle of "$30 or 30 days." If you have the $30 dollars you go out of court a free man; if you haven't you serve the 30 days.

A large proportion of the people in Canadian jails reached their cells by this route. Essentially they are there not because they were convicted of an offence, but because they were short of cash.

There have been many protests in recent years over this survival of medieval "justice." What may be the most influential has come recently from a research team appointed by the Candian Bar Association and consisting of Professor Alan W. Mewet of the University of Toronto faculty of law and William B. Common, former Ontario deputy attorney-general.

In their report, Professor Mewet and Mr. Common recommend that imprisonment for non-payment of fines be abolished except where the failure to pay is due to wilful defiance rather than lack of means. Fines should be continued as a more lenient punishment than imprisonment, not as an alternative to a term in jail.

This is a sensible approach.

If a judge or magistrate considers an offence serious enough to warrant imprisonment, he should impose a suitable term, with no option for the accused to buy his way out of it by paying a money penalty.

If he thinks that a fine is sufficient punishment, that should be the limit of the penalty.

If the fine is not paid, it should be collected by ordinary civil procedure, like other debts, not by throwing the defaulter into jail.

THE GALLUP POLL

Creditistes Gaining On the Federal Scene

Rank and file voters seem to have had other things than politics on their minds during the last couple of months, judging from the latest Gallup political report.

Apart from the fact that the voting strength behind the Liberal party, sagging since the first of the year, seems to have checked itself at least temporarily, changes in political sentiment are small, nationally, as shown by the following table:

	Liberal	PC	NDP	Soc. Cred. and Others
CIPO pre-election report (June, 1968)	47%	29%	18%	6%
Election June 25, 1968	46	32	16	6
Sept., 1968	49	26	17	8
Nov.	52	27	14	7
Feb., 1969	51	27	15	7
April	47	28	18	7
June	41	30	22	7
Aug.	39	29	24	8
TODAY	40	27	24	9

The above are national figures, and are based on the 67 per cent of eligible voters who expressed a party preference when asked:

"If a federal election were held today, which party's candidate do you think you would favor?"

Although the national figures show little change, some interesting developments occurred regionally. For example, the Creditiste party in Quebec has been gaining ground all year, and although a long way from endangering the Liberals (who have the support of more than half Quebec voters currently) they now have the support of one in five voters—making them the second national party in La Belle Province.

Similarly, the NDP is noticeably stronger in Ontario than it was in August, gaining most of their new strength from the Liberals in that province. The NDP is still, however, the third party in Ontario.

'A Cruel Use of Human Beings'

THE GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

Economy in government is a fine thing, seldom achieved; but there is something inhuman about the methods by which the federal government now proposes to achieve economy, and something, too, which would seem to encourage inefficiency — which is certainly not economy.

Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau said in August that most government departments would be required to spend no more in 1970-71 than they had spent in 1969-70.

This could mean that a minister who had been cautious, efficient, careful how his money was budgeted would find himself trapped by his own competence. It could also mean that a minister who had been incautious, inefficient and thrown his money around would still be in a position to be spendthrift.

Lasting economy cannot be achieved by blanket freezes. It can only be achieved by searching out waste and inefficiency and rooting them out where they are found. The blanket method does no more than put a comfortable covering over lack of economy, and tempt the efficient to be sure that there will be plenty of surplus padding the next time round.

It is in the methods by which the government would deal with the people in the civil service that its inhuman character becomes apparent. To begin, it proposes to dispense with them by groups, not as individuals.

Casual workers will be among the first to go. It sounds reasonable; the reality could be serious injustice. Many casual workers are not what the public understands by casual: persons who have been hired for limited periods of time to do special tasks.

They are people who have been on the federal payroll for years, but never given permanent status.

This has arisen in part because some ministers have wished to enlarge their empires, but not be seen to do it by unduly large increases in permanent staff.

Many casual workers have, in fact, been exploited; and the exploitation is now to be completed by their firing.

●

Worse still is the attitude to permanent workers over 60. They, too, are to be among the first to go. There is real cruelty in this action.

People who have made their careers in the public service will suddenly be cut off — as no private business could cut off older workers without inviting a general strike.

They will be granted what is described as their earned pensions: that is, they will receive the pension bought by their contributions and those of the government to the moment when they are fired.

This will leave them as much as 10 per cent short of what they had reasonably expected to be their retirement pension. It will leave them without the income which they would have made in those last few working years.

●

Because pensions are related to the pay received during the highest six consecutive years (and the last years are usually the most highly paid), it could also leave them with unexpectedly low pensions.

When one contrasts this with the generosity with which the government treated men in the armed forcs who were forced (or invited) to accept early retirement, it is inconceivable that Ottawa should be so discriminatory in its attitude to one group of public servants compared with another.

Many of the military settlements were so generous that the term "the golden handshake" was used to describe them, and Auditor-General Maxwell Henderson was severely critical.

If the government does not want to earn the reputation of disposing of its old folk on ice floes, it must grant the people it forces out the pensions they would have received at normal retirement time.

At an earlier stage when Mitchell Sharp, as Finance Minister, wished to create an impression of economy, he too froze the civil service; but people were not fired. Attrition was permitted to reduce the ranks; people were not hired to fill the vacancies created by retirements or departures.

Attrition could serve the purpose now. The normal attrition rate in the public service from 1965 to 1968 was 10.5 per cent — an average of 21,000 vacancies a year.

In two years this would total 42,000 vacancies, and Mr. Trudeau has talked of reducing the number of positions in the next two years by only 25,000.

●

It is apparent what he is doing. He wishes to create a psychology of economy so strong that it will be imitated in the private sector.

To do that, firings would be more effective than the shifting of the public work force to fill the vacancies which cannot be left empty.

A bitter edge is added by continuing to hire while firing, for hirings are not to cease. It is a cruel use of human beings.

Saanich Favors Region Plans

Saanich council voted unanimously in favor Monday night of having the single-purpose Capital Region Planning Board absorbed by the growing multi-purpose Capital Regional District.

Details of the transfer were presented by Ald. Ian Stewart of Victoria, and Tony Roberts, planning board director.

The regional district, already responsible for regional sewers, regional parks and regional hospitals, will become responsible for regional planning. But individual local planning and zoning control will remain with the municipalities.

Stewart pointed out that provincial Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell has warned that financial aid will be cut from the Capital Region Planning Board next spring.

Local municipalities now had the opportunity of approving terms of the transfer of regional planning to the Capital Regional District, rather than having the move take place without reference to municipalities as happened in the Vancouver area, he said.

LIVING DOCUMENT

The regional plan, when it is developed, would be "a living document" capable of revision by the regional board.

It was not conceived that it would be a detailed map alone. At the beginning, it might just consist of a regional approach to highways.

There are provisions for making the regional plan binding, by a strong majority vote. But it could be, he said, that a regional plan would not be accepted as binding, or only parts of it.

Roberts said a distinction has to be drawn between municipal and non-municipal (or unorganized) areas.

"We see a regional plan being advisory or binding," he said.

"But if it is binding it would contain general use of land, but I would not call that zoning, not that detail.

CONCERN TO ALL

"In the unorganized areas, there is provision for the province to hand over to the regional district zoning power so you could have the regional board determining zoning in the unorganized areas."

At present, in the unorganized area west of Victoria, zoning control is held by the provincial government. There is no zoning in the Highland district and in the Gulf Islands.

Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis said what happens in one area is of concern to all. In Los Angeles, while on a scale which would never apply here, there are more than 300 single-purpose boards exercising some sort of authority, some of them with individual taxing powers.

Ald. Alan Newberry, chairman of lands and planning committee, said Saanich's 38 square miles cannot be looked at in isolation from the region.

Victoria city has also approved the transfer of regional planning into the Capital Regional District. The peninsula municipalities of Central Saanich, North Saanich and Sidney have tabled the issue.

Oak Bay To Study Condominiums

The lands and buildings committee of Oak Bay council will consider the building of condominiums on municipally-owned property on Milton Street.

The project was tabled at Monday's council meeting when Ald. Alex Hendry refused to discuss it further.

Ald. Frances Elford proposed the condominiums as an answer to "displaced families" who lose their homes through apartment development under the Oak Bay plan.

Ald. Douglas Watts suggested that such a building could well end up being Oak Bay's first low-rental project and added:

"We have to live with reality. This could influence other developers if they move into that area."

ELIMINATE PROFITS

Ald. Elford argued that the project would eliminate the profit factor. Ald. Watts retorted, "Private enterprise is usually more efficient."

Passed to the council's streets and traffic committee was a complaint by Florence Street residents of water and debris, caused by oil and grease work of Saunders and Hitchman's garage.

Mrs. Jessie Kilbride, 2150 Florence, said "there's enough muck to bury everyone in this council."

The residents have continuously complained that the garage's employees park their cars on the street and block residents' driveway.

PROBLEM PARKED

Action on the parking problem is stalled until a survey has been made of residents' reaction to time limitation on parking.

Bylaw 2731, which includes the demand for 150-per-cent parking for all apartment construction was also tabled after two developers argued that the 150-per-cent requirement was unnecessary.

Both M. A. T. Nugent, 1003 Newport, who owns apartment property in Saanich and the city, and Don McAdams of Park Pacific Apartments Ltd. warned that such a requirement could discourage development because of the high cost of land.

Council received a complaint from the Architectural Institute of British Columbia that Park Pacific Apartments Ltd. had used an architectural draftsman — not an architect — to prepare its final drawings.

After the building inspector assured council that all requirements of the building code were met, Ald. Ian Horne said:

"It's up to the institute to do its own policing. It's not up to council to interfere."

Before the Judge

The voice of Ted Mills, clerk of the court, nearly went hoarse in court Monday during the reading of 18 charges involving false pretences and theft against Sharlene Qunie, no fixed address.

She pleaded guilty to all charges and was remanded by Judge J. A. Byers until next Monday for a pre-sentence report and sentence.

She admitted obtaining goods from T. Eaton Co. on eight different occasions by using a credit card that did not belong to her.

She also pleaded guilty to obtaining through false pretences merchandise from Simpsons'-Sears Store.

The eight theft charges were for stealing dresses, a brown leather jacket and a leopard coat, all under the value of $50, at T. Eaton Co. and the Bay.

Det. Tom Smith told the court the goods had been recovered.

"She co-operated by telling us where she obtained the merchandise," he said.

"You gampled your liberty for your obsession for driving," Judge William Ostler told 19-year-old James A. Van Welter, 751 Meaford, who pleaded guilty to driving a car while his licence was under suspension.

He sentenced him to three months in jail.

Prosecutor J. W. Anderson noted the accused had committed two similar offences in July.

Man Guilty on Reduced Charge

Ralph Dale Gardiner, 25, of 1325 Miles Street was found guilty in Assize Court Monday afternoon of dangerous driving and remanded for sentence until Wednesday at 9:30 a.m.

He had been charged with criminal negligence in the operation of a motor car causing the death of Ernest Brian Modeste, 1077 Modeste.

Modeste was a passenger in the car when it collided with another car in the 1000 block on Esquimalt Road at 1:14 a.m. on Aug. 13.

A 12-man jury, after deliberating its verdict for four hours, found Gardner not guilty of criminal negligence but guilty of dangerous driving—a lesser offence.

In his charge to the jury, Mr. Justice R. A. Wootton said it had the choice of convicting Gardner of criminal negligence, dangerous driving or of acquitting him altogether.

"If you find him guilty of dangerous driving, you must find him not guilty of criminal negligence," the judge said.

Defence counsel Lloyd McKenzie, QC, said Gardner should not be convicted of criminal negligence because this was defined in the Criminal Code as "wanton or reckless disregard for the safety of the lives of other people."

Gardner, he said, was the victim of circumstances in that he was driving a friend's car and was unfamiliar with its mechanism.

Modern forest management is a balancing act: the balance of payments versus the balance of nature.

On one hand sits the weighty fact that forest resources are Canada's biggest source of export income. For example, as Canada's largest forest products company, we at MacMillan Bloedel ship a daily average of 10,000 tons to customers in more than 50 countries. It's a big plus for the Canadian economy, but a big harvest from the forests we manage.

On the other hand, the balance of nature must be preserved; the forests must be renewed. Tomorrow's jobs and wages depend on how well and how wisely we use the land.

This is why we plant four seedlings for every mature tree we harvest—over 60 million to date. We cut no more wood in a year than is replaced by growth. Our intensive forest management practices will produce up to 40% more wood per acre than could be expected from unplanned growth.

More productive forests for all time: more export income for all Canadians. A happy balance.

Fried Trout in Sour Cream Sauce

Wash 4 trout, cleaned, ½-lb. each, under cold water and sprinkle cavities with salt. Roll fish in ½-cup flour which has been spread over wax paper, shake off excess flour. Heat 2 tbles. of butter and 2 tbles. oil in a heavy 10 to 12 inch skillet. Lower the heat to moderate when the foam subsides and fry the trout 2 at a time, for 5 minutes on each side. When browned, keep trout on platter in a 200 F oven while the sauce is being made.

Pour the fat from the skillet and replace it with 2 tbles. of butter. Scrape up the brown pan drippings with a wooden spoon and stir over low heat. Add 1 cup of sour cream and continue stirring for about 3 minutes without letting the cream boil. Stir in ½ tsp. lemon juice and pour sauce over the hot fish. Garnish platter with 1 tbles. finely chopped fresh parsley and serve at once.

BUSINESS and FINANCE

Aquitaine Co.

Aquitaine Company of Canada Ltd. last week suspended drilling at the Aquitaine et al Hudson Walrus A-71 oil and gas test well in Hudson Bay, 250 miles east of Churchill, Manitoba.

Decision to suspend the well at 3,926 feet was made because of the seasonal build-up of ice in Hudson Straits, which would impede removal of equipment from the Bay. Measures are being taken to enable re-entry of the well in another drilling season.

DuPont

The DuPont Co. reported Monday third-quarter earnings of $1.76 a share of common stock, down from last year's $2 a share.

Net income for the first nine months of 1969 was $277 million, compared with $281 million last year. The earnings per share for the nine-month period were $5.80 compared with last year's $5.90.

Chrysler

Financially-troubled Chrysler Corp. profits plunged 87 per cent in the third quarter of this year, falling to $3.8 million or seven cents a share from the $29.7 million or 63 cents in the comparable period last year.

The third largest U.S. automaker said that its sales of $1.56 billion in the third quarter were about the same as last year. Board chairman Lynn Townsend and president Virgil E. Boyd blamed the profit slump on generally higher costs and improving 1970 model cars.

Tantalum

A contract to ship 20,000 pounds of cesium oxide to Russia has been accepted by Tantalum Mining Corp. of Canada Ltd., 60 per cent owned by the Goldfield Corp. and 40 per cent by Chemalloy Minerals Ltd. of Toronto.

The cesium-containing mineral pollucite will be shipped from the company's mine at Bernic Lake, Man., opened last month.

Johns-Mansville

Canadian Johns-Manville Co. Ltd. will raise the price on all grades of asbestos fibre by 3 per cent effective Jan. 1.

Karl V. Lindell, chairman of the board, said the increase is due to rising costs of labor and materials.

North Pacific

North Pacific Mines Ltd. Krain property in Highland Valley is undergoing diamond drilling south of a previously drilled sector, with which interconnection may be proven.

This and the Dansey block of claims is under option to Brameda Resources Ltd., which could earn 70 per cent interest by bringing them to production. Brameda has an agreement with Noranda Exploration Ltd. to provide funds for the work, thereby splitting the interest equally, leaving 30 per cent for North Pacific.

Up to $450,000 may be spent to the end of 1971, of which $47,979 had been spent to the end of August.

Imperial

The first hole of a diamond drilling program on Imperial Metals and Power Ltd.'s Merritt coal property in co-operation with C. Itoh and Co. (America) Inc., is completed to a depth of 590 feet.

Four seems of good quality were intersected in a vertical hole drilled near the centre of the property — one seven feet thick, one eight feet thick, one 20 feet and the last one five feet. The drill is being moved to the second target, to be drilled 1,000 feet northwest of the first.

The Merritt coal is classed as high volatile bituminous B, with low sulphur content.

Steelmen Warn Of Price Hikes

HAMILTON, Ont. (CP) — Steel industry spokesmen warned Monday that the consumer may eventually have to pay for salary increases granted more than 14,000 steelworkers following an 80-day strike.

Spokesmen for the Steel Co. of Canada Ltd. and Dominion Foundries and Steel Ltd., said across-the-board price increases in steel products seem inevitable.

A new three-year contract accepted by the steelworkers at Stelco fabricating plants in Ontario and Quebec gives the average worker a basic $8,436 a year by 1971, plus additional payments for overtime and shift work.

R. Ross Craig, executive vice-president of Dofasco, said that although the company's workers are not unionized, Dofasco usually matches wages and benefits improvements won by Stelco employees.

"We don't like to see our prices go up," he added, "but what do you expect when costs keep rising?"

"The effect of these tremendous increases, from a sales point of view, is staggering," another industry spokesman said.

Kenneth MacNaughton, vice-president of product sales for Stelco, said the impact of the wage settlement has important implications on steel prices.

Mr. MacNaughton said other costs, in addition to wages, have risen since the beginning of the year.

"I would assume there will have to be an upward adjustment in prices to compensate for these increases," he added.

An additional 2,800 steelworkers employed by Stelco in fabricating plants in Hamilton, Toronto, Brantford and Gananoque, Ont., and in Montreal Monday voted to accept the contract ratified by 11,500 members of the United Steelworkers of America, Local 1005, 24 hours earlier.

The contracts differ only on minor points.

Granted was a basic general increase of 75 cents an hour by Aug. 1, 1971, six cents more for a cost-of-living bonus and five cents more in annual increment.

Workers in the lowest category now earning $2.51 an hour will get $3.32 by 1971.

Foreign Aid Hike Urged By Pearson

MONTREAL (CP) — Lester B. Pearson, former Canadian prime minister, said Monday Canada's foreign aid program should be increased substantially from last year's total of $175,000,000 in aid to $587,000,000 by 1975.

Mr. Pearson, who recently headed a World Bank commission on international development, urged rich nations to liberalize their "discriminatory" trade agreements with the "third world" of 70 underdeveloped nations.

The gross national product of the 70 countries increased an average of 4.8 per cent last year while Canada's GNP increased 7 per cent.

"This means that the rich nations, such as Canada, are going ahead much faster than the poorer nations and that the gap is widening rather than closing."

Mr. Pearson said in a speech to a women's service club there is a "dangerous" feeling among some people, especially in the U.S., to reduce foreign aid.

But he stressed that foreign aid is not the only solution to the problem of underdeveloped nations.

Private enterprise must be allowed to invest freely in those nations, trade barriers must be removed and underdeveloped nations must be given special treatment.

If these goals were met, most of the 70 underdeveloped nations would be self-sustaining by the end of this century.

$ EXCHANGE

VICTORIA—Purchase of U.S. funds in terms of the Canadian dollar was quoted by the Royal Bank today at $1.07⅝ for cheques, $1.07¼ for cash, $1.06¼ for silver. Sales were $1.08⅛ for cheques and $1.08¾ for cash.

MONTREAL (CP)—U.S. dollar in terms of Canadian funds was unchanged at $1.07 11/16. Pound sterling was off 3/16 to $2.57⅛.

NEW YORK (CP) — Canadian dollar down 1/32 at 92 27/32 in terms of U.S. funds. Pound sterling down 7/64 at $2.39 11/64.

ORDER LACK TO CLOSE FARM PLANT

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — About 300 workers of White Farm Equipment Co. Ltd. will be laid off by the end of this month because of a fall in demand for farm equipment it has been announced.

George Vincent, president and general manager of the company, said in an interview the plant's combine assembly line would close down and possibly re-open in mid-January.

Cancellation of orders for about 400 combines from the United States and Turkey and slow sales in Western Canada were blamed for the shutdown.

The plant employs about 700 workers.

Massey-Ferguson Industries Ltd.'s North American combine plant here announced earlier this month that 250 employees were to be laid off at the beginning of November.

Small Investor Short-Changed Analysts Report

NEW YORK (AP) — A survey of security analysts in the United States indicates that 72 per cent of them feel the small investor is short-changed on professional investment advice.

One respondent said that the large institutional investor receives better research because there is more competition to get his business and because advisory services can expect larger orders from him.

Another of the 493 analysts surveyed said firms find it unprofitable to serve the small investor. A third respondent maintained that small investors receive expert advice but in smaller quantities and later than the large investors do.

The survey, conducted by Don Howard Personnel Inc., found that half of the analysts criticizing the treatment of the small investor attributed it to fundamental, long-term problems in the industry and that 27 per cent blamed solely the recent problems in keeping up with demand. The remaining 23 per cent did not offer a reason.

New Export Corporation Will Remove Deterrents

MONTEBELLO, Que. (CP) — Jean-Luc Pepin, federal minister of industry, trade and commerce, says the new Export Development Corp. will greatly improve Canada's ability to sell abroad.

He told the annual convention of the Canadian Export Association Monday night the new federal agency, which became effective Oct. 1, has a maximum lending power of $800,000,000—$300,000,000 more than the old Export Credits Insurance Corp.

"Today the Export Development Corp. can finance local costs in foreign countries where these are an integral part of an export transaction."

On another side, Mr. Pepin said, the corporation can insure up to $1,000,000,000 on a broader range of commercial dealings including such service industries as consulting and advertising services.

OFFERS INSURANCE

The corporation, among other things, will offer insurance for Canadian firm making capital investment abroad, against non-commercial risks such as nationalization, damage caused by riot or rebellion, transfer and convertibility of earnings or invested capital.

G. O. Loach, re-elected for a second one-year term as chairman of the export association, said the export credit and financing arrangements offered by the new corporation "will remove many of the deterrents to the development of trade in the Pacific rim, Latin America and other market areas."

In many respects, he said, export financing in Canada will soon become more competitive, and probably more flexible than in many other countries.

Mr. Loach, vice-president of Union Carbide Canada Ltd., added:

"Besides opening new doors for Canadian-owned firms, it should encourage many foreign head offices to look with more favor on Canadian plants for export participation."

Replying to arguments that the development corporation may encourage the export of jobs, Mr. Loach said the experience of the United States over 23 years, during which a similar investment guarantee program has been in effect, disprove this proposition.

WILL BE EXTENDED

Canada's development aid program will, as time goes on, be extended and diversified in both composition and direction. Companies not participating should be in contact with the International Aid Office in Ottawa.

"Canada's aid grants and loans last year totalled about $350,000,000. This money is earmarked for purchase of Canadian products and this can be quite profitable business."

Mr. Loach said the association recommends that special priority be given to the rapid development of exports to the Pacific rim nations, Latin America, Eastern Europe and the Middle East.

This should be done because money spent in these areas would show a quicker return per dollar than in the highly industrialized markets and with a view to reducing Canada's dependence on the United States economy.

Legislation Aims At Finance Firms

New limitations on foreign investors became effective at the weekend and apply to companies having at least 25 per cent of total assets in loan and instalment sales contracts.

Although legislation permitting the limitations is not yet through parliament, effect was given so that there could be no sale of companies, or purchase of control, during consideration of the bill, Finance Minister Benson explained.

Between now and proclamation of the bill, any share transfers that would be prohibited under the terms of the act would have voting powers suspended.

The bill got past Senate, but time did not permit it to be considered by the house of commons at the session just ending.

The companies play an important role in financing retail trade and in financing business and industry through loans for equipment and inventory. The government considers it important to preserve a significant Canadian-controlled element in this type of financial enterprise.

The limitations provide that no more than 25 per cent of the shares of the capital stock of a company may be transferred to non-residents and not more than 10 per cent to any one non-resident. They apply to each class of shares separately.

Existing shareholdings by non-residents over the above limits are not affected but may not be increased. Companies with more than 50 per cent of their voting shares owned by one non-resident as of today will be exempt as long as that condition continues to exist.

The purpose of the legislation is to establish a system of governmental supervision of federally-incorporated companies that act as investment intermediaries through borrowing funds from the public and using a substantial portion of their available assets for investment purposes.

Nixon's Banking Proposal Meets Strong Opposition

WASHINGTON (WP) — The Nixon administration's proposal to reorganize the federal banking agencies has run into opposition before it even leaves the drawing board.

Sen. William Proxmire (D—Wisc.) will tell the Senate today the plan is an attempted "end-run" around Congress. House banking and currency committee chairman Wright Patman (D—Tex.) said he would introduce legislation of his own to revamp the bank regulatory structure.

Both legislators complained that the administration has ignored Congress and consulted only the American Bankers' Association on the plan.

SPLIT POWERS

Widespread reports have circulated that the proposal would strip the Federal Reserve Board of its regulatory powers and divide them between the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation and the comptroller of the currency.

The poposal would be sent Congress as an executive order, becoming automatically effective in 60 days unless Congress disapproved, according to the reports.

However, a treasury spokesman Monday denied the existence of any concrete plans in this area. If any proposals become firm, there will be "a full round of decisions" with Congress, he said.

Several sources indicated that the originally quoted target date of Nov. 15 would not be achieved.

A special committee of the American Bankers' Association met here last week with government officials to discuss the issue. A treasury spokesman explained that the session was at the bankers' request "to discuss the pros and cons of various plans which have been suggested in recent years."

NEW MEASURE

Patman said Monday he will introduce legislation to create a single bank regulatory agency within a few weeks. The measure may also strengthen some present regulatory prohibitions, aides suggested.

Questions have been raised that the FED, traditionally most conservative of the bank agencies, should not regulate both credit and banking. Removing it from regulatory concerns would leave the FED free to concentrate on monetary policy, the reasoning goes.

Proxmire, in a speech prepared for delivery today, ticked off statistics on the bank merger policies of all three agencies, and called the comptroller's office "substantially more lax" in this area.

He predicted "disastrous" effects on bank competition if the comptroller were given primary responsibility. "We could have a wave of bank mergers under the benign sponsorship of the comptroller resulting in the concentration of banking assets in the hands of a few banks," Proxmire asserted.

More Major Oil Blowouts Loom, Say Scientists

WASHINGTON (WP) — An offshore oil disaster like the Santa Barbara Channel spill can be expected to occure once a year by 1980 if the nation doesn't learn more about oil blowouts, warns a White House science panel.

The President's panel on oil spills, appointed after a Union Oil well off the California coast spewed thousands of barrels of oil into channel waters, said the United States simply does not yet know how to control and clean up massive oil spills either from offshore wells or tanker ships. It "urgently" recommended a five-year program to gain the know-how and prepare to use it.

"The United States has neither the technical nor the operational capability to cope satisfactorily with a large-scale petroleum spill in the marine environment," said one of two related panel reports issued Saturday. "The technology does not exist to prevent virtually all the oil in a massive spill from being deposited on shore."

The panel also released figures indicating the amount of oil spilled in Santa Barbara Channel following the blowout last Jan. 28 was far greater than previously believed—between one and three million gallons during the initial period of major spill and the period of minor spill which followed. The figure generally used up to now has been 231,000 gallons during the major spill period.

NEW LEASE SALES

Saturday's reports came only a few days after the announcement by Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel that he plans at least three new lease sales during the next year of offshore oil lands under his jurisdiction. Oil drilling has already been resumed at Santa Barbara Channel under stringent new regulations.

Warning that supertankers of the future would carry much more oil than spilled at Santa Barbara, the panel said, "announced plans call for 150-million-gallon tankers".

The panel said since 1954, some 8,000 offshore wells had been drilled, with eight resulting in oil blowouts and 17 in gas blowouts, only a few serious. "If offshore development continues to expand at the present rate and the frequency of accidents remain the same, 3000 to 5000 wells will be drilled annually by 1980, and we can expect to have a major pollution incident somewhere every year," the panel said.

For that reason, it said it welcomed Hickel's efforts to stiffen drilling regulations. The panel said it was conceivable the incidence of blowouts might decline naturally as shallower mineral deposits were exhausted and drilling was deeper, but "the probability of blowouts cannot be reduced to zero."

U Thant Could Act As 'Honest Broker'

WASHINGTON, (WP) — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie has suggested that U.N. Secretary General U Thant be invited to act as an "honest broker" in working out a "viable political situation" in South Vietnam.

The Senator, who discussed the Vietnam war with Thant at the U.N. last week, said the Secretary General should be left to his own devices "to work out whatever it is possible to work out, and it may be nothing."

Muskie said it is obvious each side "wants power or wants to share power in South Vietnam. This is what the war is about." The senator said a viable political situation would be one that gives each side a current share in power and "what each would regard as a reasonable opportunity to expand their share of their power."

ON HIS OWN

The senator said he thought the United States should make it clear "we would have no predetermined agreement to accept whatever thesis he (Thant) might come forward with."

The Maine Democrat, said Thant, who knows the area and "knows how to move in an Asian situation of this kind," could explore the possibilities of getting elements of South Vietnam—the NLF, the Saigon government—together in setting up political arrangements for the government of South Vietnam.

Muskie, speaking on the television interview program "Issues and Answers" (ABC) said such an arrangement with Thant would be "preferable to holding a club over the present government in Saigon in a unilateral attempt to make political arrangements."

Muskie said negotiations could take place in advance of an election in South Vietnam and reiterated his position that "an electoral commission representative of all elements, not only the NLF and the governments, but other elements in South Vietnamese society ought to establish the election and run it."

Woman Wins Her Own Divorce Case

By PAT DUFOUR

A Victoria school board employee, Mrs. Mae Stangowitz, 2005 Cook, Monday became the second woman in Canada to act as her own lawyer and gain a divorce.

Appearing before Mr. Justice John G. Gould of the B.C. Supreme Court, Mrs. Stangowitz described herself as being "Just numb, scared!"

She said she made up her mind to fight her own case when she read of a Toronto woman's successful bid last February.

In half an hour Mrs. Stangowitz had been granted her divorce. The total cost of her freedom amounted to "about $70."

Mrs. Stangowitz says many women want divorces but, through lack of money to pay lawyer fees, live in misery.

"The average costs are beteen $550 and $700 I was told when I phoned a lawyer last June. A friend of mine, who is paying for his daughter's divorce, is stuck with a $2,000 bill."

Dubbing herself a "lunch-hour lawyer," Mrs. Stangowitz says she spent every lunch hour for a full month, studying procedures at the public library.

●

"I also had a good detective who cut his charges, and I went along as a witness to save money."

She said it was important to study, read and make sure the papers are properly completed.

"A lot of women would do it but they're afraid that they'll fill in something incorrectly, and then have to start all over again."

STANGOWITZ
. . . 'just numb'

Appearing in court Monday morning, Mrs. Stangowitz said a lot of the divorce cases she heard before her own could have been handled as hers was.

Her $70 bill included detective fees, five copies of petition for divorce, court costs and registration fee.

At least one lawyer was sympathetic to Mrs. Stangowitz's cutting corners.

●

"He was just going out the door when he heard that I was going to appear as my own lawyer and witness.

"He came back and sat down. When it was all over he offered his congratulations."

Mrs. Stangowitz who took a day off to present her case, was back on the job today.

Barrett Slams Appeal Fund As Big Business 'Charade'

By DON VIPOND

The provincial government launched another welfare study group Monday but it was NDP House leader Dave Barrett who went into orbit.

In a bitter attack on financing British Columbia's social services, he branded the United Appeal drive as an "annual charade" which permits the government and big business to escape their responsibilities.

"What a sham, what a mockery, what a 16th-century attitude toward services," said Barrett, MLA for Coquitlam and a professional social worker.

His remarks followed announcement by Welfare Minister Dan Campbell of a Greater Vancouver area citizens' congress to study and recommend changes in public and private welfare programs.

It's the "umpteenth-million" study, said Barrett today in exasperation. Plenty of research by professionals has already shown what's needed — "Government action."

The NDP solution would be area social centres providing comprehensive services rather than the mass of agencies which now duplicate administration.

One example of duplication: Parolled prisoners are now assisted by the Salvation Army and the John Howard Society among others. But such work is really a responsibility of the federal government.

Newspapers 'Hypocritical'

The welter surrounding welfare has produced "non-agencies" like Cool-Aid, said Barrett, describing them as "courageous attempts" to cut through red tape and provide needed services.

He took a shot at the paradox of seasonal fund drives such as ones led by newspapers to "fill empty stockings at Christmas." the rest of the year editorials berate "the lazy loafers on welfare," he said.

"This is the kind of hypocritical standard our young people look on with disgust."

Where Barrett's attack peppered the United Appeal, it drew angry retorts from Campbell and Peter Darling, chairman of Greater Victoria's campaign.

Barrett's comments on United Appeal funds were "unbelievably irresponsible and mischievous," said Campbell.

"This member is apparently so intoxicated by his reach for the leadership of the NDP that he is willing to undermine the community partnership that is required if we are going to deliver an effective social service program in British Columbia. . . ."

United Appeals are an important part of community involvement and volunteer dollars are one way of "breathing life" into social service programs, Campbell said.

He said Barrett had abused hundreds of volunteers who contribute to the province's social services and the NDP should repudiate his remarks.

Darling said Barrett's comments had done "untold harm" to the campaign.

FLIGHTS CANCELLED, a flock of fogged-in seagulls fret on Legislative Building lawns this morning. Meanwhile, at Victoria International Airport, Air Canada's two morning flights were cancelled because of fogged-over runways. Cloudy conditions are clearing this evening but rain is on the way. Wednesday, say weathermen, more cloud but no fog.

STRAP USE DECLINES

Punishment Statistics Kept Under Wraps

Use of the strap in Greater Victoria schools continues to decrease.

And trustees continue to keep secret the number of times the strap is being used.

There was a 46-per-cent drop in incidents of corporal punishment during the 1968-69 school year, compared to the 1967-68 year.

School district superintendent A. J. Longmore explained to trustees Monday that no figures were being made public because "they could be misconstrued."

LACKED POWERS

In 1968 the school board trustees attempted to pass a motion banning the strap in Greater Victoria schools, but found they did not have the power to do so.

Under the Public Schools Act teachers have the power to discipline a student.

BROADLEY
. . . teacher matter

Longmore said today pressure is being put on teachers to find methods other than corporal punishment for discipline.

"Corporal punishment is to be used only as a last resort," he said.

Longmore pointed out that teachers are finding other methods. Since the corporal punishment survey began three years ago incidents of strapping or spanking have decreased by 62 per cent.

INTENSE CONCERN

"Corporal punishment is non-existent in senior secondary schools," he said.

Board chairman Carron Jameson said the trend is away from harsh discipline to "intense personal concern with students."

Greater Victoria Teachers' Association president Bill Broadley feels that discipline should be left in the hands of teachers.

"There is always a stress on trusting students," he said. "Trusting teachers should also be stressed."

Broadley said there is no one way to discipline a student and often this depends on the personalities of the teacher involved.

"I believe in corporal punishment in some cases.

"Some children come from permissive homes and the strap would be a traumatic experience," he said. "For other children the strap is used effectively at home and is the only way to make that child understand he has gone too far."

SADISM SOMETIMES

Broadley said this is why it is important for teachers to know the backgrounds of their students.

"There have been cases where the strap has been used too much but generally there is much less corporal punishment than there used to be," he said.

Broadley said occasionally a sadistic personality becomes a teacher and there is little to prevent this because of the inadequacy of personality tests for teachers.

Trustees have been invited to a meeting Monday with the GVTA where methods of discipline will be discussed.

"Discipline and corporal pubishment are not the same thing," siad Broadley.

He said Monday's meeting would probably be private because of the emotional nature of the subject discussed.

SCHOOL TOILETS TAXED

The City of Victoria is going to charge rent on toilets and urinals in city schools.

City assessor A. G. Joyce informed the Greater Victoria School Board Monday it will cost $442 in 1970, $2 for each toilet and $1 for each urinal.

The move by the city comes with new provincial legislation permitting rental charges against land otherwise exempted.

"There's a tax on everything these days," commented board chairman Carron Jameson.

Oak Bay Rules Out Any Bonus for Police

It appears the 17-member Oak Bay police force will have to settle for the same wages as the Victoria force — and go without either parity with Vancouver police or the two-per-cent "morale boost" bonus won by Saanich.

Oak Bay Mayor Fred Hawes said today his men have two choices — they can accept the pay increase awarded Victoria police by the B.C. Mediation Commission or they can go to compulsory arbitration.

Arbitration would be by the mediation commission and it was that body which set the Victoria scale and, after a review, ruled the scale is adequate.

ANOTHER MEETING

Police and Oak Bay's police commission held a two-hour meeting Monday in effort to resolve the pay dispute.

Hawes said today that another meeting is planned for Monday, or sooner.

"There was some reluctance on the part of some of the police to go to arbitration. Now, they will have to go back to their members and decide which course they want to take."

Hawes said he received notice this morning that the case has been scheduled to go before the mediation commission Nov. 4.

"In all fairness — and we want to be fair to them — they should be given enough time to prepare if they want to go to arbitration. In view of the Nov. 4 meeting, we may have to get together sooner."

Sgt. Jack Groves, president of the Oak Bay Policemen's Union, said this morning: "we are still trying to negotiate outside the mediation commission."

He said he had definite feelings about the issue but added that he has been asked not to say anything at this time.

In an effort to gain parity with the Vancouver police force, Victoria's police commission and force took their case to the mediation commission. The police were awarded a 14.56 per cent increase over a period of two years.

Dissatisfied with this, the city police asked for a review of the decision. This was done and the decision upheld.

Also headed for compulsory arbitration the Saanich police commission and police force settled their dispute at a meeting Wednesday when the police were awarded a 16.56 per cent increase over a 22-month period, an increase of two per cent over that given to city policemen.

In Esquimalt, Constable Jack Wright, president of the Esquimalt Policemen's Union, said the contract with the municipality expires Dec. 31.

Driver's 'Worst Enemy' Is Himself, Not the Road

Knowing where the bad intersections are is only one step towards driving home alive.

It's knowing what to do when you get to them that counts, says Dennis Wagner, general manager of the Victoria Safety Council.

He was commenting on a recent Times survey of the city's six most dangerous intersections. They are Douglas and Hillside, Trans-Canada Highway and Douglas, Saanich and Douglas, Bay and Government, Burnside and Douglas and Trans-Canada and Burnside.

Don't blame accidents on the police or traffic engineers, says Wagner.

"We drivers are, in the main, our own worst enemies."

Everyone thinks he's a good driver until he crosses the Malahat in fog or tangles with rush-hour traffic on Government Street.

For self-styled experts and beginners there are many safety courses.

High school driver education courses are available at most area schools. If a school hasn't one, contact the safety council and it will get a course going, says Wagner.

Commercial driving schools offer refresher courses as well as introduction to highway protocol.

A driver simulator course combining on-the-road training and classroom instruction is offered by the British Columbia Automobile Association.

But certificates don't mean safety unless drivers use what they know on the streets.

The highway signs that say Drive Defensively are not just decoration.

ANOTHER BIG CLINIC URGED BY RED CROSS

The Red Cross Blood Clinic hopes today to match its performance Monday when they drew 133 units of blood.

The quota, then, as today, was 100 pints.

The clinic at 1040 Fort is open until 4:30 this afternoon and from 6:30 to 9 tonight.

Wednesday the clinic moves to the University of Victoria for three days. The quota for each day is 100 pints.

LORNA VINDEN, VICtoria wheelchair athlete whose example has given hope to many a paraplegic, asks no favors from life. Though paralyzed to the armpits, she holds down a responsible job, makes a home for a family of two boys, and drives an automobile fitted with hand controls. Also, Mrs. Vinden has brought honor to her city in Pan-American sports competition.

★

Self-sufficient? Gallantly so. But today she needs help of a sort she can't supply for herself, and I hope her community will pony up with it.

On Nov. 25, Lorna Vinden is scheduled to set out for Buenos Aires as a star member of the Canadian team chosen to compete in this year's Wheelchair Pan-American Games. I'm told—though not by her—that her chances of scoring high in shot put, javelin, and wheelchair slalom are bright.

At Hamilton last August, she did very well in trials sponsored by Canadian Wheelchair Sports Association, to the B.C. branch of which she belongs. So did Victoria swimmer Gwen John, who presently received word that she had made Canada's Pan-Am team.

Lorna, though she holds an all-Canada pentathlon crown, received no such notification.

A lesser spirit might have fussed and fretted. But she swallowed her disappointment and pitched into the task of campaigning for the $1,200 needed if Mrs. John were to go to Buenos Aires.

An anonymous donor, more power to him or her, boosted the drive well over the top with a $1,200 cheque.

Then, on Oct. 14, Lorna Vinden got a long-distance call from Toronto that for a moment made her wonder whether to laugh or cry.

★

She too had been chosen for the Canadian team, but because of a foul-up at Toronto association headquarters, notification had been delayed.

A scout in Canada Manpower, where Mrs. Vinden works as central filing clerk, told me on Monday how matters stand with the fastest wheelchair pilot in the west.

She yearns to compete at Buenos Aires, but with only $300 of the neeessary sum raised, her chances at the moment seem mighty slim.

Here, friends, is a lady of grit and merit.

★

Her wheels are ready, and—except for the $900 lacking—so is she.

A donation sent to Canadian Paraplegic Association, 232—440 Simcoe Street, will help her on her way.

ALTHOUGH SUBURBAN man has pushed deep into what once was open country, the smart raccoon survived and even flourished. But his numbers in this area may have been drastically reduced by such a winter as still tingles my ears when I remember it.

We haven't seen a coon or a coon-track on beach or in woods for months, and the other day a reader offered what she feels may be a clue to this wholesale disappearance.

She and her husband were working on their place when they discovered the body of a long-dead racoon in a tree crotch. Their conclusion was that old black-mask had perished from the unprecedented cold of January.

I relayed the suggestion to Keith Mundy, assistant chief of wildlife for B.C. Fish and Wildlife branch. Racoons are fairly hardy creatures, Mundy told me, but they do not hibernate in the strict sense of the term, and it's possible that the Victoria ringtails took a cruel beating when the north winds blew.

★

Victoria is well up in the racoon's northern range. To some extent at least, the breed may have shared the fate of another creature that migrated toward the limit of its climatic zone.

This is the opossum, which spreads from its southern habitat into the central United States when one mild winter follows another.

"Then a hard winter," Mundy said, "and a virtual wipeout of possums in that territory."

Victoria's quail, a "subsidized population" not native to our province, also got hit pretty hard here, and even harder in the Okanagan.

★

However, the salvation of the flocks lies in their reproductive capacity. With hatchings of perhaps 16 at a nesting, the quail population shouldn't be too long in reaching its former abundance.

The same for the racoons. The females that weathered through to springtime could be counted on to expand their tribe with litters of from one to six young.

This could mean future bad news to chicken, peach and cherry raisers, but I'm relieved to know that at least some of these furry moonlighters are still about.

Even though they've feasted at our expense more than once, we can't help liking 'em!

Bill WALKER

The weekend in review, or would you believe that a certain football team in Vancouver appears to have caught Metsomania . . . or, if you like . . . Parkermania.

At least the latter term brings it closer to home, because the British Columbia Lions certainly have been giving new coach Jackie Parker everything they've got.

After an opening-game loss in his new tenure, the Lions have gone three for three, and get this: If they can win the next one, next Sunday at Winnipeg, they would be nearly in.

Nearly in third place and the playoffs in the western conference of the Canadian Football League, that is.

True, they haven't really been beating anybody who is anybody, just the clubs they have to beat. But they have been winning, and basically the playoff story is this:

If the Lions can win their next two, which are their last two, they are in, definitely. If they win the first, and lose the second against Saskatchewan, and Edmonton Eskimos win no more than one, they also are in.

Otherwise it will be Edmonton. The Esks have dates remaining with Calgary and Saskatchewan.

Winnipeg, to make it, would have to win both of their games while the Lions and Esks lose both of theirs.

Saturday night at Empire Stadium, the Lions took a whole page out of the book the New York Mets made popular. Jake Scott made a Tommy Agee catch of a Paul Brothers pass for the winning touchdown and they waited until the final minute of the game to do it.

Heaven forbid such an admission, but there were some disbelievers hereabouts who were all set to give up on the Lions, completely and finally.

If they do get into the semifinal, they'll meet Calgary, who already have made it into the runner-up berth. Stay tuned for later reports.

●

On other football fronts, Saskatchewan Roughriders, now the third best football club in the land, salted away first place in the west by their 24-18 triumph over Calgary. And they may have moved up a notch in two in the Grey Cup stakes as well because of what happened elsewhere.

Their chances must improve considering the fact that both Ottawa and Toronto have lost their best running backs.

Ottawa lost Vic Washington earlier in the week with a knee injury, and he is out for the balance of the season. Then on Sunday, Toronto lost the services of Dave Raimey by a similar knee injury.

In measuring Hamilton, 51-8, the Argos turned on an awesome display of power against a club that is rated tough defensively. But the most surprising part is that the Argos held the Tiger Cats in check as well as they did.

Certainly the loss of Raimey will hurt their overall attack, but they appear to be getting stronger defensively as the season progresses, and it would be no surprise if they do go all the way.

Washington was the breakaway type of runner the Riders relied on heavily and his injury may hurt the Riders more than Raimey's loss will hit the Argos. At least that is the thought here.

There were a few heroics below the line that bear comment too.

●

Joe Kapp and his Minnesota Vikings went on national TV for the first time this season and came out smiling like winners should.

Kapp was subject to a heavy bombardment by the St. Louis line in the early going, but never faltered, and threw three touchdown passes in the 27-10 vicitory. The Vikings showed one of the best defences of the season in throttling the St. Louis attack.

Meanwhile, the two powers that be, Dallas and Los Angeles remained on track in their march to what all the experts say will be the NFL championship final, the Vikings willing.

Los Angeles, with quarterback Roman Gabriel threading the needle, gave it to Green Bay 34-21, and ended the popular conception that "the pack is back." The 34 points the Rams scored were more than any other club has tallied against Green Bay since 1961, and from here it looked more like a tribute to the L.A. power than any breakdown in the Green Bay defence.

Dallas, the while, was doing the same type of thing to Philadelphia, 49-14. And if you're thinking of a future TV date, keep Nov. 23 open, that's when the Rams meet the Cowboys in what could be the playoff preview. At any rate it should be a battle of the throwers, Craig Morton, who tossed five TD passes for Dallas Sunday, and Gabriel, who can also blow his horn over Sunday's display against Green Bay.

●

And it would be an oversight, too, to let pass what took place in Los Angeles on Saturday night.

"Clear the Track, Here comes Shack," the billing notice said in lights.

The record said the Los Angeles Kings were winless in three games.

So what happened?

Shack arrived on time, so did the Kings.

Shack got three goals, the first time in his NHL life that he had scored a hat trick, and coach Hal Laycoe had a victory and a 5-0 shutout over Oakland for his personal home ice debut.

But that's the way they do things in L.A. isn't it?

CLARENCE CAMPBELL
. . . more authority

NHL PRESIDENT DETERMINED . . . . . . TO CURTAIL BRAWLING

Now I Have Tools, Says Campbell

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Hockey League's board of governors has approved recommendations by Clarence Campbell that will give the league president additional authority in dealing with major infractions.

Campbell outlined the changes Monday. A memorandum to the governors, team general managers and coaches, referee-in-chief Scotty Morrison, officiating supervisors and the officiating staff had previously been sent out.

The changes are:

The minimum automatic fine for leaving the players' bench or penalty bench has been increased to $100 from $50. Under the new definition, the president has the power to increase this amount at his discretion.

He has also been authorized to impose a fine not exceeding $5,000 against any club whose players make a mass exodus from their players' bench without sufficient justification. This fine is in addition to any fine imposed on the individual players of the club.

Previously Campbell could not assess a fine against the club, although he was free to fine a coach or player.

In the third and possibly most stringent amendment, a player's or club official's salary is automatically forwarded to league headquarters while the party is under direct suspension by the president. Money collected in this manner does not go to the NHL but to the NHL Players' Emergency Fund, under an agreement with the NHL Players' Association.

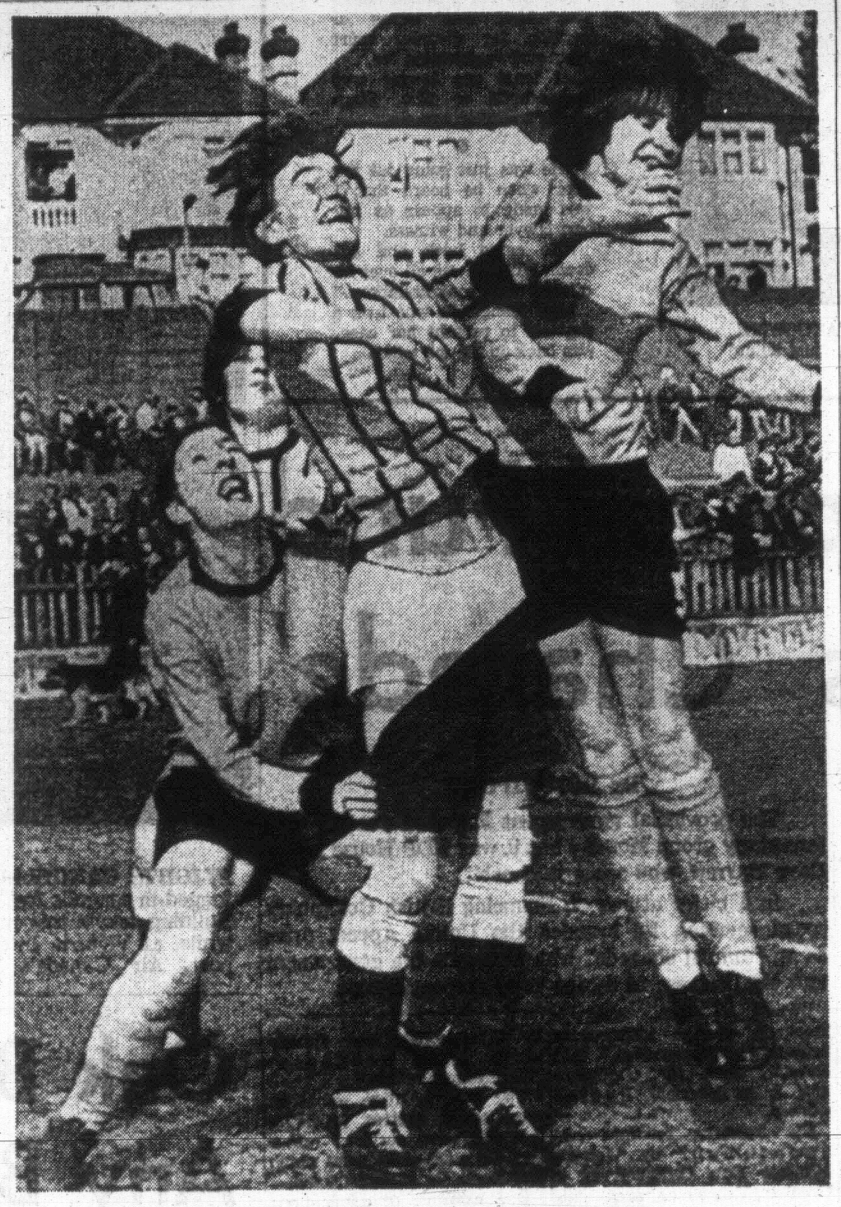
Previously, Campbell's maximum fine to a player was restricted to $500 "for any infraction."

"I did not have any authority to make the club pay in the salary before," Campbell said. "Previously I could only fine an individual player a maximum of $500."

Last Friday the league president barred Wayne Maki, now with Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League, for 30 days with loss of salary. Ted Green, Boston Bruins defenceman, who received a fractured skull in a Sept. 21 stick-swinging duel with Maki at Ottawa when Maki was with St. Louis Blues, was barred for 13 league or playoff games, with loss of salary, and fined $300.

Green, released from an Ottawa hospital one week ago, is recuperating from the injury and will sit out the first 13 games after being declared medically fit to play by a doctor designated by the NHL. He is not expected to return before the final month of the season.

Campbell said he is "determined" that this type of incident will stop and "now I have the tools it will."



DON'T LOOK NOW, BUT . . .

Mets Have Their Day On Alley of Champions

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Mets savored the fruits of the World Series baseball championship here Monday, Mets Day, in a shower of ticker-tape and accolades normally accorded heroes.

Though formal tributes sparkled, the fervor of the festivities failed to measure up to last week's spontaneous celebration after the once-hapless Mets defeated Baltimore Orioles 5-3 in the final series game.

Monday's day of tribute began with the team riding in a 12-car motorcade up Manhattan's lower Broadway-renamed the "Alley of Champions" for the day—while thousands of persons, many of them school children, shouted: "We're No. 1!"

"For eight years New York has loved the Mets and today they're No. 1." said Mayor John V. Lindsay. "And they're No. 1 not because of a miracle, but because they never gave up."

The crowd nearly drowned out Lindsay, and other city officials as well, with cheers for the Mets. Only Mets manager Gil Hodges was given quiet attention. Someone held a sign reading: "Gil Hodges for Mayor."

Hodges said he was "happy and proud."

Joan Whitney Payson, elderly owner of the team, said only: "Let's go, Mets!"

West Division Finally Gets a Scoring Leader

MONTREAL (CP)—Centre Phil Goyette, of the St. Louis Blues, is the first player from the National Hockey League's West Division to lead the individual scoring race since the 1967-68 expansion to a two-division, 12-team circuit.

Goyette, traded to the Blues last summer by New York Rangers, has two goals and six assists for eight points in four games. His assists total ties him for the lead in that department with all-star defenceman Bobby Orr of Boston Bruins.

Orr also has one goal to his credit to tie him for second spot in the over-all scoring race with forward Ab McDonald of St. Louis at seven points.

Eleven other players are tied for fourth place with five points each. Of the 26 leading scorers, 13 are from each division, the first time the new West Division has had as many in the leaders' list since expansion began.

SHOW IMPROVEMENT

In team results, the West has also pulled a few surprises. Of 11 interlocking games played, the newcomers have won four, lost five and tied two.

Last season the East had a wide edge after the same number of interlocking games, with eight wins, two ties and only one loss.

Gerry Cheevers, Boston's red-hot goaltender in last spring's playoffs who recorded only three shutouts all last season, has played two games so far in this schedule and has yet to allow a goal.

Ed Johnston, Cheevers' partner, has played two games and has yielded four goals, giving the Bruins a one-goal-against combined average and the lead in the goaltending race.

Rookie forward Garnet (Ace) Bailey of Boston leads the individual penalty parade with 26 minutes, while Minnesota North Stars lead the teams with 105 minutes.

BOBBY HULL
. . . told Hawks

HULL CLAIMS HE'S RETIRING FROM HOCKEY

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says that Bobby Hull has announced his retirement from hockey.

The paper says in a copyright story that Hull announced his retirement last week in a telegram to Tommy Ivan, manager of the Black Hawks.

"Tommy and I had a fine meeting," The Globe quotes Hull as saying. "But when Ivan went to get clearance from Bill Wirtz, he was told there'd be no concessions."

Cougar Coach Hoping For Return of Power

He has the holdovers, but Victoria Cougars' coach Doug Anderson is beginning to wonder what has happened to the scoring power.

There were, at the last callover, nine players who were with the club last season when the Cats collected the B.C. Junior Hockey League title and the provincial crown.

"But you wouldn't guess it by glancing at the team's leading point-getters," said Anderson. "Maybe tonight's the night they start moving."

That's Anderson's wish as Cougars prepare to greet Vancouver Centennials for the first time. The newest entry in the B.C. Junior League tackles the Cougars at Memorial Arena tonight at 8:30.

HOPES BOOSTED

Ted Plowe, the 19-year-old rookie winger from Williams Lake, is setting the early Cougar scoring pace with six goals and five assists in five games.

Anderson's hopes climbed a bit today with the probability that holdover winger Shayne Webster will return to the lineup tonight after sitting out two games with a rib injury.

The coach feels the club scoring punch will be boosted with Webster operating on a line with centre Lon Miles and right-winger Scott Munro.

Another roster switch will have Robbie Little working between Plowe and Bruce Cowlick, and Chris Riddell pivoting Greg Robinson and John Kwasney.

Jet Star Ties Scoring Mark

NEW YORK (AP) — Don Maynard snared two long touchdown passes from Joe Namath, tying an American Football League career scoring record, as New York Jets downed Houston Oilers 26-17 Monday night and seized first place in the Eastern Division.

Namath fired second-period scoring bombs of 57 and 54 yards to Maynard and Jim Turner booted four field goals, leading the Super Bowl champions past the rugged Oilers before a record AFL crowd of 63,841.

The huge Shea Stadium throng, including baseball's world champion Mets, saw Maynard equal Art Powell's league record of 81 touchdowns.

TOP RECEIVER

Maynard, an original member of New York's once-struggling AFL franchise, grabbed seven passes in all for 212 yards, high for the season among AFL receivers.

Turner, connecting from 17 yards in the first quarter, and then from 48, 45 and 21 in the second half, brought his total to 15 field goals in 21 attempts this year.

The Jets fell behind 7-3 early in the second period. Beak Moore intercepted a Namath pass and sped 51 yards for a Houston touchdown. But the Jets took the kickoff and quickly moved on the ground to their 43-yard line before Maynard slipped behind defender Miller Farr, caught Namath's pass on the Houston 20 and romped across for the go-ahead score.

RUGBY PLAYER IN 'POOR' CONDITION

Peter Cubis, a University of Victoria rugby player who collapsed on the field during a Saturday match in Nanaimo, was reported in poor condition at a Victoria hospital today.

Cubis underwent head surgery Saturday night in Victoria to relieve pressure on the brain.

It was later learned by Victoria Rugby Union officials that Cubis had complained of severe headaches for several days but appeared in excellent condition prior to Saturday's match.

Indian Cricket Fans Set Fires in Stands

HYDERABAD, India (Reuters) — Crowds hurled chairs and bricks at police and started bonfires in the stands here Monday, forcing the third cricket Test Match between India and New Zealand to be abandoned.

The crowds became restive after rain held up the match for 30 minutes in the afternoon.

Police and tear-gas squads took up riot positions and the match was abandoned as police chased trouble-makers from the stands.

The match was abandoned as a draw with India and New Zealand having won one Test each in the tree-match series.

Empress Scores Shutout Victory

Saanich Wings shaded Ingraham Buckaroos 4-3 and Empress Paint blanked Al's Imperials 7-0 during Stuffy McGinnis Hockey League action Monday at Memorial Arena.

Ian Philips, Don Wilson, Gary Lang and Dick Gibbons notched goals for Saanich while Gordy Strongman, John Robson and Ken Mast replied for Bucks.

Fred Moulson paced Empress with two goals as goalie Jim Place recorded the shutout.

Moose in Salt Lake

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI)—Minnesota North Stars of the National Hockey League Monday signed defenceman Elmer "Moose" Vasko and assigned the 12-season veteran in the NHL to Salt Lake City of the Western League for conditioning.

Williams Named Top AL Manager

NEW YORK (AP) — Ted Williams, baseball's first million dollar manager who led Washington Senators to their first winning season in 17 years, has been selected The Associated Press' American League Manager of the Year.

Williams, winning the honor in his first year as a manager, edged another first-year man, Billy Martin, who was fired after directing Minnesota Twins to the Western Division title.

WEAVER THIRD

Williams drew 113 votes to 102 for Martin in the balloting by 286 sports writers and broadcasters. Earl Weaver, who took Baltimore Orioles to a runaway Eastern Division title, drew 70 votes.

Williams, a Hall of Famer and the most recent of the .400 hitters, became Washington's manager after he was offered stock in the Senators and a salary that added up to more than $1,000,000. He led the team to a 86-76 win-loss record and a fourth-place finish.

Hill Doesn't Plan to Quit

LONDON (AP) — British racing driver Graham Hill was in satisfactory condition Monday after a four-hour operation on his legs, broken in a 150-miles-per-hour crash in the United States Grand Prix two weeks ago.

Hill said: "So long as I'm competitive after this, I'll race."

ACTION PLANNED TO BLOCK TRANSFER

Pilots Eye Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Seattle Pilots' board chairman confirmed Monday he has been talking with Milwaukee baseball promoters about relocating the club's American League franchise.

But Dallas-Fort Worth interests are also "very much in the picture," William R. Daley said in a telephone interview with the Milwaukee Sentinel.

"I would be happy to come to Milwaukee, if we could get permission from the American league," he said.

The situation will be assessed by league president Joe Cronin today in Chicago.

Seattle Mayor Floyd Miller asked Cronin for a meeting. Miller said he is convinced Seattle can support a major league baseball team.

Attendance at Seattle this season was 680,000. This, plus the condition of remodeled Sicks' Stadium as an interim facility, make the Pilots' position shaky.

And Slade Gorton, Washington State attorney-general, said he plans "immediate legal action" to block transfer of the Pilots' franchise.

World Soccer Crunch Coming Wednesday

LONDON (AP) — The crunch comes into World Soccer Cup qualifying matches Wednesday in the European zone.

Hungary tackles Denmark in Group 2, Italy meets East Germany in Group 3, Northern Ireland travels to Moscow for a match against the Soviet Union and The Netherlands face Bulgaria in Group 8.

Sweden reached the finals with a 2-0 victory over France and became the eighth team to qualify for the finals in Mexico next year.

The others are England: automatic qualifier as winner of the World Cup Trophy four years ago; Mexico, a team that qualified automatically as host country; Belgium, Peru, Brazil, Uruguay and El Salvador.

The Irish, with star dribbler George Best in the lineup, must defeat the Russians in Moscow to clinch a place in the finals.

Carey Paces Field

Colwood's Art Carey, scoring a one-over-par 74 at Gorge Vale, led the field Sunday in the first round of the Victoria and District Golf Committee's fall monthly medal series.

Second portion of the three-round series will be played next month at Colwood.

Oak Bay professional Vaughan Trapp and a pair of Gorge Vale amateurs, Gord Jones and Brian Stott, shared second with 75s. Uplands' Ken Nott and Carl Zwick of Gorge came in with 76s.

Stott, a six-handicapper, won low net honors with his 69, one stroke better than Jones.

Victoria professional Bill Wakeham missed qualifying for last weekend's Sahara Invitational in Las Vegas, scoring a 75 in the trial.

Wakeham will try again this week in the Haig Open at Costa Mesa, Calif. After that, he'll head to San Francisco and try his luck in the Lucky Open.

Two Linemen in Chase For Top Football Award

MONTREAL (CP)—Five former winners were in the running today after the first ballot to choose the outstanding player, top Canadian and lineman of the year in the Canadian Football League.

The voting is conducted by CFL writers and broadcasters on behalf of a distillery.

On the first ballot, one player from each team in each category was chosen.

Previous winners up for honors again are quarterback Russ Jackson of Ottawa Rough Riders, halfback Bill Symons of Toronto Argonauts, flanker Ken Nielsen of Winnipeg Blue Bombers and fullback George Reed and defensive tackle Ed McQuarters, both of Saskatchewan Roughriders.

The selections, in order and by teams:

British Columbia Lions—Jim Young, Jim Young, Ken Sugarman.

Edmonton Eskimos—John Lagrone, John Wydareny, John Lagrone.

Calgary Stampeders—Jerry Keeling, Larry Robinson, Granville Liggins.

Saskatchewan Roughriders—George Reed, William Baker, Ed McQuarters.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers—Phil Minnick, Ken Nielsen, Phil Minnick.

Hamilton Tiger-Cats—Tommy Joe Coffey, Bill Danychuk, Henry Sorrell.

Toronto Argonauts — Bill Symons, Bobby Taylor, Danny Nykoluk.

Ottawa Rough Riders—Russ Jackson, Russ Jackson, Billy Joe Booth.

Montreal Alouettes—Sonny Wade, Larry Fairholm, Harry Olszewski.

WON HONORS TWICE

Jackson was named outstanding player and top Canadian twice, in 1963 and 1966. If he wins again in the outstanding player category he will equal the record of Jackie Parker now head coach of B.C. Lions, set in 1957-58-60.

Symons was last year's outstanding player.

Nielsen was top Canadian in 1968.

Reed, runner-up to Symons last year, won the award in 1965.

McQuarters was top lineman in 1967.

FIRST TIME

For the first time, two linemen are in the running for the title of outstanding player—John Lagrone, defensive tackle with Edmonton, and Minnick, linebacker with Winnipeg.

The results of the second ballot, which will cut the field to six semi-finalists, will be announced Tuesday, Nov. 4, when nominators select three players from each conference.

UVIC SAILORS LEAD REGATTA

SEATTLE — University of Victoria Sailing Club won the two-day University of Washington regatta, which ended Sunday.

Two Uvic 420s, one skippered by Doug Hemphill with Marion Stratham as crew and the other skippered by Bob Tanner with Holly Raines as crew, combined for a 32-point total in the round-robin event sailed in light, shifty winds on Lake Washington.

UBC placed second with 46 points and Royal Roads of Victoria was third with 51 points.

Hoop Players All on Deck At Wyoming

LARAMIE, Wyo. (AP) — Four Negro basketball players showed up for practice Monday at the University of Wyoming, ending speculation that all Wyoming's black athletes might walk out in sympathy with 14 Negro football players who were dropped from the team Friday.

Basketball coach Bill Strannigan said everybody on the team turned out for Monday's late afternoon workout.

The football players were dismissed for participating in a protest demonstration after their coach, Lloyd Eaton had forbidden his players to participate in student demonstrations.

Tyees Clinch Top Spot; Three Tied for Second

Victoria Tyees clinched first place and one of two playoff berths in the Inter-High School Soccer League by deadlocking Mount Douglas Mountainmen 2-2 Monday at Carnarvon Park.

The draw gave Tyees 17 points and put them out of reach of Mount View Hornets, Claremont and Esquimalt Dockers, locked in a three-way tie for second spot with 14 points with only one match remaining to each squad in the regular schedule.

In other games played Monday, Hornets and Dockers played to a scoreless draw at Esquimalt and Oak Bay bounced host Belmont 6-3.

Mount View's defending champions play host to Victoria, Claremont is at home to Mount Douglas and Esquimalt plays Oak Bay at Royal Athletic Park in Friday's windup matches of the league schedule.

TYEES START LATE

In the event of a second-place tie, the final playoff berth will be decided on scoring statistics.

Mount Douglas seemed to have the game sewed up after holding a 2-0 half-time lead on goals by Jim Hunter and Mike Squire before Tyees finally started moving.

Stu Taylor, who bobbled a first-half spot kick, produced the first Tyee goal and Rob Williams connected with the tying shot during an extra seven minutes added because of delays caused by injuries.

PLAYERS EJECTED

In a close-checking affair at Esquimalt, Docker goalie Mike Yeager and Wally Falconer of the Hornets were both ejected for arguing who was at fault for their collision 10 minutes from time.

Glen Lorimer replaced Yeager but a good defence made his job easy.

Belmont played Oak Bay even after Peter Mason scored a first-half hat trick to give Bays a 3-0 lead.

Rick Sylvester scored the first of three goals to cut the margin to 3-1 but a Belmont back miskicked just before intermission on a throw-in by David Mason, who made it 4-1 at half-time.

Gerry Spencer and Dan Lomas, with his 19th goal, scored for Bays in the second frame between tallies by Sylvester.

Tonight's Top Television Shows

MOVIE TO WATCH tonight is on Channel 12 at 7:30. The Tall Men, it's a 1955 western starring Clark Gable, Robert Ryan, Jane Russell and Cameron Mitchell. Shortly after the Civil War two Texas gunslingers bent on robery join a cattle drive. Other movie fare tonight is somewhat less appealing. Channel 6 at midnight offers a 1960 fantasy, Dinosaurus.

McQUEEN. 9, Channel 2, 6. All the World's a Stage. McQueen takes on a tough assignment when he attempts to crack down on a fly-by-night agency exploiting would-be actors. Everyone wants to get in on the act—including McQueen's assistant, who winds up with a modelling job. Austin Willis, Murray Westgate and Laddie Dennis are in the guest cast.

★ ★ ★

STRANGE REPORT. 9:30, Channel 9. "Who Weeps for the Doctor?" A man is faced with a slow and lingering death and Strange must confront the dying man's loved ones, who feel obligated to help hasten the inevitable end. Anthony Quayle is Strange.

★ ★ ★

RED SKELTON. 8, Channel 2, 6; 8:30, Channel 7. Ed Sullivan plays host for a moment, introducing Red out in the audience before Skelton and Kaye Ballard get down to the business of slapstick and a stoned Willie Lump Lump applying for a driver's licence. Miss Ballard is the bureau clerk who turns out to be more lethal than Willie behind the wheel. In his pantomime spot, Red becomes a man catching his own dinner in a fish-house, and Paul Revere and The Raiders supply the musical interludes.

MOVIE OF THE WEEK. 8:30, Channel 4. "The Monk." Good yarn. This is one of those typical private eye crime tales in which the hero spouts glib dialogue, the plot is totally incredible, and the writers manage to come up with a plot gimmick every 20 minutes or so. George Maharis is fine as the hero, Gus Monk, and he gets excellent support from the San Francisco backgrounds, Jack Albertson, Raymond St. Jacques, Carl Betz and Janet Leigh. We won't bore you with plot details because the story never interferes with the action.

WORLD PREMIERE. 9, Channel 5. "The Lonely Profession." (1969). Better-than-average, made-for-TV private eye film with a very good performance by Harry Guardino as a small-time detective who gets involved in a wild case. After a frightened girl (Ina Balin) shows up in Guardino's office, he's plunged into a series of events and narrow escapes which keep the suspense mounting. A host of stars including Dina Merrill, Dean Jagger, Jack Carter, Barbara McNair and Fernando Lamas, do very well in supporting roles, and the great San Francisco (again) locales, slick dialogue and action, plus sharp editing keep this detective story moving at a fast clip. For those who don't catch on before the finale, there's a dandy surprise ending.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL. 11:30, Channel 2. SFU Clansmen vs. UBC Thunderbirds at Empire Stadium.

★ ★ ★

THE GOVERNOR AND J. J. 9:30, Channel 7. The cast isn't trying so hard to be funny this outing, which helps. Instead of shooting rapid-fire cuties, Governor Dan Dailey slows the pace down, as he pushes for Indian legislation after daughter J. J. starts the ball rolling. Guest Jack Gilford has fun playing a comic old Indian much taken with J. J. and her form of sign language. Fighting for a good cause also adds more impact to the repartee.

MARCUS WELBY, M.D. 10, Channel 4. "All Flags Flying." Fairly interesting drama about an old man with a young wife and child, who refuses to face age or pernicious anemia. Against a yachting club background, Welby puts up with the patient's blustering ways, and quietly offers a few truths to young wife Ruta Lee, who humors her husband playing a baby doll role.

SWINDLING SUCKERS with a yen for show business is the specialty of McQueen's adversary tonight. (See listing). Austin Willis is special guest star as the head of the sham agency that takes money from aspiring actors and actresses in return for lessons and promises of non-existent employment. Also starred is Margot Kidder (centre) and Lorraine Thomson. Channels 2 and 6 at 9 p.m.

NET FESTIVAL. 9, Channel 9 "Three by Martha Graham." Tune in for a memorable evening of modern dance, adapted for television with a rare understanding of the medium, and a full appreciation of the art of Martha Graham, perhaps the greatest choreographer of the dance America has ever produced. Though she will participate in two of the three dances you will see tonight, her contribution is rather that of a magnificent presence, particularly as the grief-stricken Hecuba, mother of the doomed and tragic Trojans. Where her art will stagger you is in the brilliance and style of her choreographic design, encompassing as it does the exaltation of the spirit in "Seraphic Dialogue," the passion and the tragedy of war in "Cortege of Eagles," and the humor and imagination of "Acrobats of God." All three will fascinate you, but Hecuba and the "Cortege of Eagles" is unforgettable.

PERFECT,

Boats are machines. Sometimes they don't work like they ought to. Boat dealers are not machines, but sometimes they don't work right either. Since you salty dogs must be content with something less than perfection, it pays to look for the closest thing to it.

U.S. May Repeal Homosexual Law

WASHINGTON (WP) — A federal task force has recommended the repeal of laws against homosexual activities between consenting adults.

The group of 14 experts, appointed by the National Institute of Mental Health (NIMH), also recommended changes in government regualtions and the policies of private industry that bar homosexuals from jobs.

The task force concluded that these changes would "reduce the emotional stresses and improve the mental health" of the nation's 3 million to 4 million adult homosexuals.

SOCIAL HARM

"The extreme opprobrium that our society has attached to homosexual behavior, by way of criminal statutes and restrictive employment practices, has done more social harm than good and goes beyond what is necessary for the maintenance of public order and human decency," the task force said.

The group emphasized that its recommendations would not effect sexual behavior that "violates public decency or involves the seduction of minors."

The task force recommendations, one of the few government statements on the problem of homosexuality, follows the lines set forth by such panels as the British Wolfenden Commission, the ninth International Congress on Criminal Law and the American Law Institute.

ASK STUDIES

This task force went beyond those reports, however, and urged NIMH to support studies on the legal and social implications of changing laws against heterosexual behavior, such as adultery and fornication, between consenting adults.

The task force commented that public attitudes toward homosexuality as well as other sexual practices are changing.

"Discreet homosexuality is being recognized as the private business of the individual rather than a subject for public recognition," it said.

Changing laws against homosexual activities, the report stated, would reduce the possibility of blackmail — "a constant hazard to the homosexual under present conditions."

The task force recognized that a change in the laws is not enough to give the homosexual full employment opportunity, security and acceptance in society.

The task force also recognized that the employment of homosexuals may not be desirable in all cases — especially "in highly sensitive positions."

The 21-page report, which calls homosexuality "a major problem for our society" for both homosexuals and their families, found that:

"Homosexual individuals can be found in all walks of life, at all socio-economic levels, among all cutural groups within American society, and in rural as well as urban areas."

The task force also recommended studies in the biological and genetic causes of homosexuality, personality factors that characterize homosexuals, and ways to treat them in order to decrease their discomfort and increase their "productive functioning."

Brandt Confident He Can Hold Office

By LIONEL WALSH

BONN (Reuters) — Willy Brandt was elected chancellor of West Germany today, becoming the first Social Democrat to head the government in the 20-year history of the post-war federal republic.

The Bundestag (lower house) voted Brandt, 55, into power on the first ballot, sending the Christian Democrats into opposition for the first time.

Brandt's coalition of Social Democrats and Free Democrats gave the Socialist leader 251 votes, only two more than the required absolute majority of 249.

The Christian Democrats cast 235 votes against Brandt. There were five abstentions and four invalid ballot papers.

A burst of applause went up from the Socialist benches when Speaker Kai-Uwe von Hassel gave the result.

Von Hassel, 56-year-old Christian Democrat, was re-elected Speaker Monday by a vote of 411 to 72.

REPLACES KIESINGER

Brandt told a television interviewer: "I am satisfied and grateful for the trust placed in me—and quite frankly I am a little proud that I can now carry out this high office."

Kurt George Kiesinger, the outgoing chancellor, said the new coalition would be in a difficult position, faced with the strongest opposition the West German parliament has ever had.

"One will see how long it will last," Kiesinger said.

Brandt, the first Socialist to head a West German government since the two-year chancellorship of Heinrich Mueller ended in 1930, left the lower house immediately after the vote to receive his documents of office from President Gustav Heinemann.

Kiesinger today will formally hand over office before Brandt is sworn in at a plenary session of the Bundestag.

STREAMLINES CABINET

The new chancellor today also present his streamlined 15-member cabinet to deputies of his own party.

Up to the last moment today it was not certain that Brandt would win in his third attempt to become chancellor.

At least four of Walter Scheel's 30 Free Democrats wavered in their support of Brandt. Six defectors would have been enough to deny the Socialist leader victory on the first ballot.

Brandt, foreign minister of the outgoing "grand coalition" for nearly three years, has pledged to be a chancellor of internal reform and to leave international relations firmly in the hands of Scheel, who will take over the foreign ministry.

The new chancellor wants to reform the structure of West German life, improving the tax system, liberalizing universities and expanding justice reform.

TO REDUCE VOTING AGE

The left-liberal coalition also plans to give workers a larger say in running industry and to reduce the voting age to 18 from 21.

But despite Brandt's assurance that he wants to concentrate on domestic affairs, political observers believe he will exercise a strong influence on foreign policy.

The new government will be a staunch supporter of British admission to the Common Market, and is determined to seek improved relations with the Soviet Union and the Communist countries of Eastern Europe.

Brandt is heading for difficult times in his first weeks in office. West Germany has to cope with a run-away economic boom and to decide on upward mark revaluation.

Many Christian Democrats give the new government a life of 18 months at—most, but Brandt is confident of completing the full four-year term.

FORMER MAYOR

Brandt made an international name as mayor of West Berlin from 1957 to 1966, but the Socialists under his leadership were unable to capture the government in the 1961 and 1965 elections.

Brandt was born Herbert Frahm Dec. 18, 1913. He was illegitimate and was reared by his grandfather, a Socialist. He took the name Willy Brandt legally in 1948.

He became an ardent Socialist, and when Adolf Hitler took power, he fled to Norway and became a Norwegian citizen. When the Nazis overran Norway, he went to Sweden, and did not return to Germany until after the Second World War.

Brandt is married to his second wife, Rut, a Norwegian. They have three sons—Peter, 21, Lars, 18, and Matthias, 8.

Board 'Swamped' On School Use

The Greater Victoria School Board is being swamped with requests for evening use of schools.

"The demand for use of school gymnasiums and other accommodation has reached an all-time high this year," Trustee Peter Bunn, chairman of the building and grounds committee, told the board Monday.

Since Sept. 15 the board has issued more than 1,000 permits for evening use of schools.

Bunn said the board is still receiving requests but that all gymnasiums are now fully booked except for Friday and Saturday evenings.

The board agreed to send a letter to Education Minister Donald Brothers outlining the great use of schools by community groups.

The province is studying joint use of community facilities.

Activities at the schools include basketball, soccer, floor hockey, badminton, square dancing, scouts, church groups, choirs, fashion shows, panel discussions and political meetings.

SCHOLARSHIPS

Final year students in Greater Victoria schools were awarded $75,909 in scholarships and bursaries after completing June examinations.

There were 110 students receiving board scholarships and another 208 students who had a portion of their university fees paid because of high averages.

In 1968 a total of $69,082 was awarded in scholarships and bursaries.

DISTRICT COLLEGE

A bid by the Greater Victoria School Board to bring a district college to this area has been endorsed by three neighboring school districts.

The school districts of Sooke, Saanich and the Gulf Islands all agreed that district rather than regional colleges should be set up.

11 reasons why you should be enjoying the convenience of a Chargex credit card.

1 THOUSANDS HONOUR YOUR CHARGEX CARD
And the number is growing every day. You can use it with thousands and thousands of Canadian merchants, many of them right in your own neighbourhood. You can use it for more than 250 different types of goods and services. Almost anything, from air travel to clothes for the family.

2 YOU OFTEN NEED THINGS BEFORE PAYDAY
It may be new shoes for the kids, or new soles and heels for your own shoes. It may be a new tire for the car. Or perhaps you want to entertain visiting relatives. Your Chargex card can be a help solving just about any pre-payday crisis.

3 YOU CAN TRAVEL WITH A CHARGEX CARD
Use it to get you to other countries, and use it when you get there. Wherever you see the familiar blue, white and gold symbol you know that your Chargex card is welcome. Even when the identifying name is different. In the United States, the name is BankAmericard. In Great Britain, Ireland, the Bahamas, Jamaica, Barbados, Trinidad, Tobago, Malta, South Africa and Gibraltar it's Barclaycard. In Japan, the name is Sumitomo Card. And in Mexico, your Chargex card is welcome where you see the name Bancomer Card. They all identify credit cards backed by some of the world's greatest banks, just like your Chargex card.

4 YOU MAY NEED CASH IN AN EMERGENCY
Whether the emergency arises at home or while you are a visitor in another country, your Chargex card will help. Just present your Chargex card at any bank displaying the familiar blue, white and gold symbol. They'll see you get the cash you need.

5 A CHARGEX CARD COSTS YOU NOTHING
You pay nothing to get it, and there are no annual membership fees as there are with many other cards. And, when you pay for purchases within 25 days of your statement billing date, there are no service charges. A lot of convenience at no cost.

CHARGEX

6 YOU DON'T NEED TO CARRY A LOT OF CASH
Your Chargex card eliminates the risk of carrying too much cash. It works just like cash for almost anything, almost anywhere. As long as you have your Chargex card with you, you'll never be stuck.

7 IT'S THE MOST CONVENIENT CREDIT CARD
Your Chargex card eliminates the need to carry many other charge cards because it is welcomed for such a large variety of goods and services. The Chargex card is truly an all-purpose card, good for more than 250 retail categories in all.

8 YOU CAN DO YOUR BANKING ANYWHERE
Your Chargex card is backed by four progressive Canadian banks, but you don't need to have an account with any of them. You can enjoy the convenience of a Chargex card no matter where you bank.

9 YOU WRITE ONE CHEQUE FOR EVERYTHING
You are sent one monthly statement for everything you buy with your Chargex card, and write just one cheque to pay for all your purchases. That can save you a lot of valuable time, and save you money on the cheques you write too.

10 A CHARGEX CARD HELPS YOU BUDGET
There is a sensible limit to the amount you can spend with your Chargex card. Quite a help when it comes to keeping the family budget in shape.

11 CONVENIENCE OF EXTENDED PAYMENTS
When you find your expenses are unusually high in one particular month, say for a new living room rug or new outfits for the children, you can stretch your payments over several months.

You may enjoy using your Chargex credit card for just some of these reasons. Or you may like all eleven reasons, and add a few of your own. If you don't have a Chargex card yet, pick up an application from any bank or merchant displaying the blue, white and gold Chargex symbol.

Remember, no matter where you bank, you can enjoy the convenience of a Chargex credit card.

The Chargex credit plan is backed by The Royal Bank of Canada, The Toronto Dominion Bank, Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce and Banque Canadienne Nationale.

Chargex is the trade mark for Canada's new all-purpose credit card plan.

Trapper's Cabin in the Classroom

By SUSAN MAYSE

Whatever you're talking about, whichever side you take—Wilma Wood will argue for the other side.

She isn't argumentative, though.

Illuminating the other side of any argument, she feels, makes people take a second look at beliefs they've held for years.

She's dedicated to education and enlightenment—of children and adults, friends and strangers.

Mrs. Wood is educational director and publicity officer for the new provincial museum.

In addition, she teaches five mornings a week, to groups of students touring the museum.

The museum's education department policy, which Mrs. Wood has been instrumental in shaping, has abandoned the "stuff-the-kids-with-facts" approach to learning.

Instead, the education program, including school tours, and the museum school, tries to spark interest in children, urging them to depend on their own creativity and imagination rather than textbook-learned facts.

Museum School

"We want to reach out half way to them and have them stretch out their imaginations to reach what we're offering."

Discipline is still necessary, but self-imposed discipline, not the "outside" kind, she said.

The museum school, opened earlier this month, offers an intensive one-hour lesson to classes attending with their teachers. The topic changes every month. Man's impact on fur-bearing animals is the October lesson, taught by Mrs. Wood, or museum volunteers, called Docents. They teach with props like furs, traps and a fully-rigged, life-sized trapper's cabin.

The museum school will expand, Mrs. Wood hopes, to the point where professional teachers can be hired to conduct the classes.

"Where else would these children be able to walk around in a trapper's cabin and feel the furs, and really learn about man's impact on fur-bearing animals in a one-hour lesson?" she said. "That's what we're here for."

Doing three jobs disguised as one has strengthened, not diluted, her feelings about living, teaching and learning.

"The secret of good living is to have time to do things. The worst thing you can ever say is 'I haven't got time.' It's not true—it's an excuse."

Wilma Woods finds time for many things—but not for everything she wants to do.

Knitting, reading, attending the symphony and walking are her most frequent pastimes.

She and her husband Vern are a car-less family, preferring walking and buses.

"We had a car once. We just never really got around to buying another."

With Dara Levi (daughter of the morning star), a Burmese cat, the Woods live in a sunny duplex with just enough garden and lawn to keep busy but not enslaved.

Mrs. Wood came by her job at the museum by a round-about route.

While in high school, she worked as a reporter for a Brandon, Manitoba, daily newspaper. She attended university for several years, and worked on a series of Eastern newspapers as reporter and women's editor.

Classrooms Bare

She taught creative English and counselled a girls' club in Winnipeg for two years, then taught typing and record-keeping in Victoria for a year.

Then a "help wanted" ad caught here eye—education director for the museum.

"I came in and saw what the museum was like, and got terribly inspired, so I sent in an application."

Any job Mrs. Wood has worked at has been a challenge, and this one seemed likely to maintain the pattern.

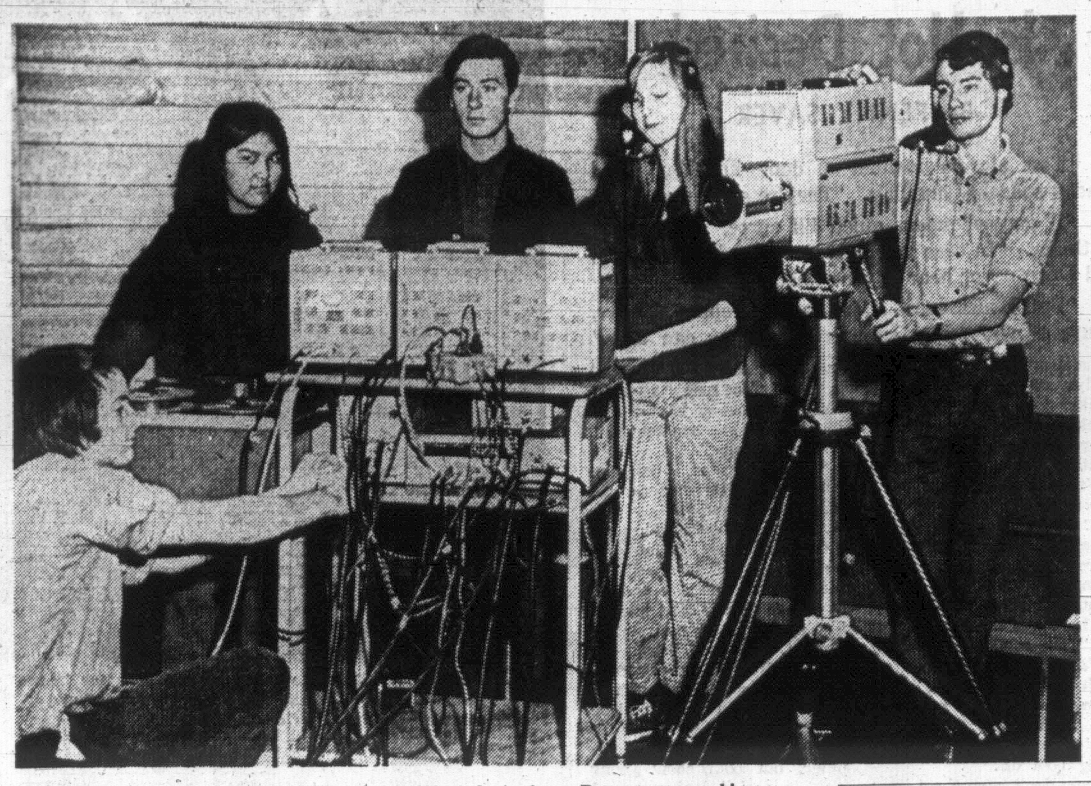
"When I arrived, there were a desk, a chair, and three empty filing cabinets in this office," she said, "and all the classrooms were absolutely bare.

"That was only a year ago."

Today, Wilma Wood's office, just down the hall from the Newcombe Auditorium, overflows with books, papers, flowers, museum volunteers, and businesslike wall calendars that show a crowded schedule.

The classrooms, designed to hold classes for instruction of schoolchildren touring the museum, are no longer bare, but are rich in teaching aids from beaver skins to bones to fossils.

Wilma Wood displays snowshoes, part of museum school equipment.



Who says learning is dull? These Grade XII students from Duncan are making a television special to be shown to Duncan students, and eventually residents, as part of their course in television production. Their subject matter is provincial museum exhibits and what goes on at the special classes held there by museum volunteers. Ranged behind the video-tape equipment provided by the Duncan school board are from left, Matthew Fair (kneeling), Chris Jang, Ken James, Jeanette Nagel and Don Sked.

Church Auxiliaries Unite to Plan Improved Community Services

An ecumenical meeting to pilot ways of uniting works of three church women's auxiliaries was held recently at Lake Hill's Sacred Heart Church.

Members of the Catholic Women's League, United Church Women, and Anglican Women's Auxiliary met for the joint regional meeting.

Mass was celebrated by Rev. Donal Lehane, pastor of Sacred Heart. He explained the symbolism and history of the vessels and vestments used in the service.

Mrs. Rita Frederick of Belmont Park, chairman for the afternoon, outlined the purpose of the ecumenical meeting, and introduced guest speakers Mrs. John DiCastri, board chairman of the Victoria Hostel for Girls, Miss Elizabeth Forbes, Volunteer Bureau, Elford Home, and A Friend at the Door, and Miss M. Passmore of Meals on Wheels.

Greetings were given by representatives of each of the church groups.

Questionnaires were circulated after the meeting, and members were asked to comment on how they reacted to the afternoon and what they would like to see at future meetings.

Inventions, Tongue Twisters Make Schoolwork More Fun

Could you build a working computer out of a few blocks of wood, a sheet of metal, and some bobby pins?

Fortunately, the question is likely to remain hypothetical.

But when Oak Bay Junior High School students were challenged last week to construct a working model of an invention out of pins, elastic bands, paper and other relatively non-scientific materials, three students managed to come up with something.

Probably the most unique was an elementary but workable seismograph put together by 15-year-old Marshall McCall, 805 Newport, a Grade 10 student.

The list of required materials for the contest tax a non-inventor's mind with their number and irrelevance—much less how to coax them together into a working earthquake-recorder.

Marshall took advantage of most items on the list:

A ruler, three pins, two paper clips, three elastic bands, a nail, a wooden baseboard, a clothespeg, a piece of string (any length), a piece of paper which could be folded but not cut or torn, and a six-inch-square piece of cardboard which could be cut—surely a potential invention to no one but a future Nobel prize-winner.

The contest, initiated by Oak Bay teacher Phillip Garside, was part of a fun week at the school that included other contests, displays and entertainment.

The inventions were judged by the school's science club and teachers, and a device that transported letters down a long ski-lift affair won first prize. Marshall's seismograph placed second.

Science isn't the only subject that is taught with imagination in local schools.

Things like onomatopeia, which only a genius can spell without looking it up, are introduced with a lovely passage by Dylan Thomas instead of a dull definition.

Alliteration is much more fun to learn about when you use the literary device in a tongue-twister contest.

Here are some written by Helen Becker's Grade 7 students at View Royal School.

Sweet Sue sat silently slurping, slopping, swirling and splattering spaghetti.

If Father Fred filleted fresh frisky fish, where's the funny fish Father Fred filleted?

Black Bats blue blood blotched the blackened barn.

Stanley sailing on the sea sought the land to seek the shells slowly sinking in the sea while scribes described the shining scene.

A pointed purple parasol pointing out a parking place in Princeton.

Pretty Polly picked a plump pink pumpkin in a pretty purple pasture.

Pounds of pale pink peanuts plastered on a painted piece of packing paper.

Leather Jewelry Looks Handmade

By FLORENCE DE SANTIS

Latest material to be used for jewelry in Paris is leather, with a hand-made look to the bracelets, necklaces and pendants.

For a bracelet, Chenard-Alexandre attached leather strips to a dog-collar clasp, making a wide but light gauntlet for the wrist. Evany used leather laces attached to gold circles to wind round wrists.

Necklaces ran to leather cords mingled with black wooden beads and golden links. Pendant effects were created with double cords run through golden rings to end in tassel-like chains at the bottom.

Leather jewelry is part of the trend to the honesty of natural materials used in fashion, suits the casual sportswear mood of young clothes.

Knock If Answer Is Not Desired

By PENNY SAVER

"I've always wanted a door knocker," said Gladys suddenly one day. "They're so genteel."

"If genteel means quiet, I'll agree," commented Mathilda. "In case you haven't noticed, I have one, and I can never hear anyone knocking."

"But I just want it for looks," replied Gladys. "Anyone who really expects an answer can ring."

The next time I went to see Gladys, there was a door knocker on her door. I knocked, and after waiting several minutes rang.

"Mathilda was right, you didn't hear me knock."

"No, but doesn't it look nice? And it was only $2.98."

Gladys' knocker is brass colored and shaped like a sailing ship. It is quite small, about six inches in length.

"There was another style as well," she told me, "showing a Viking, but this was so much more traditional."

Now that the boot season is here again so is the age-old problem of how to get a snug fitting boot off.

If you don't have a pet bear like Christopher Robin to lean against, why not try a boot jack?

I found one the other day for $2.98 that was made of hot pink plastic. The book heel fits in a groove and stays steady while you pull.

When one of the women on my street inherited a lovely antique table with thin, shapely legs and no noticeable scratches, she decided to put it in the front hall. "After all, what's the use of having nice things if no one can see them and be envious."

The trouble was, it didn't go with her terribly modern wall plaques.

After a bit of searching she discovered just what she needed: A pair of small pictures painted on silk and set in ornate gold-colored frames. The period match may not be perfect, but at least the antique feeling is consistent.

These pictures are around six or seven inches long including the frame. Each is completely different from the other, but both show young girls in period costumes and settings. A set of two pictures is $10.50.

There is also a large single picture in the same sort of frame for $11.50. This shows a dancer in period costume with an audience of one.

Please call 382-3131 between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. for information on the items in this column.

Vests are very fashionable this year and even the longest of this selection of three can be knitted for a fraction of the cost of any found in the stores. The plain vests are easy enough for a novice knitter.

KNIT AND CHAT

By MAY MAC LEAN

Falling Socks Fixable

Dear May, I was wondering if anyone had come up with a solution to keeping hand-knitted calf-length socks up on the leg without garters?

My socks always sag after the first wash and sometimes even before. I have used elastic thread and nearly cut off the circulation in my husband's legs. No matter how tightly I knit the ribbing, it always happens.

I enjoy knitting and would love to knit socks, but this situation deters me. — Mrs. A.M.F., Ottawa, Ontario.

I think the simple solution in this case would be to knit the ribbing on one or even two sizes smaller needles—have you tried this?

I am just wondering too if you press the ribbing after finishing? With socks, it is entirely unnecessary, in order to save the elasticity of the rib.

I am just wondering too, if when you wash the socks, you dry them on stretchers? This would cause the ribbing to stretch and lose all the "spring" and elasticity that is needed to hold the sock up.

There is an elastic thread that is very fine, almost like coarse sewing thread. I have seen this used along with the wool for the knitting of the ribbing. I don't think this fine weight would cut off the circulation. Try as I have suggested the size or two smaller needle. I think this will solve your problem.

I have had several letters requesting pullovers and vests or waistcoats for teen-agers in loose open-work stitches, some say crochet, others knitted. I am sorry I just don't have such a pattern. These are just fad items that are usually only with us for a very short while, and they are only worn by a very small segment of the population. So I think you can readily understand why yarn manufacturers are reluctant to put out patterns for these items.

However, my pattern No. 6719 is a crochet openwork fishnet type of shell, which I think can readily be adapted to the current style that is in vogue. It's a very see-through type of stitch, and if made longer, and larger than normally worn, it would fit in to the present teen-age fashion bracket.

This week's pattern has instructions for vests in stocking-stitch or the traditional Irish fishermen pattern. The hip-length style is belted for extra dash. And all three styles are in sizes 12-18 and made from a dressy type of yarn on No. 8 needles.

These vests are just right for wear to the office or over slacks, or for extra warmth under a coat before the winter really sets in. I am sure you will want to knit more than one, and they will make ideal gifts.

To order Leaflet No. 7-68, send 35c in coin or money order (no stamps or personal cheques, please). Your order must be accompanied with a stamped, self-addressed, return envelope, a long one if possible. Send to May E. Mac Lean, "Knit and Chat," care of the Times.

Alberta May Legislate on Clothes Labelling

By GLENNIS ZILM

EDMONTON (CP) — "More women should press for fabric labelling and fabric information to be permanently attached to garments," says a senior home economist with Alberta's department of agriculture in Edmonton.

Fabric information should be sewn into garments, Marlene Jubenvill said in an interview. It should be permanently attached so that when a garment becomes soiled, a woman knows how to care for it.

Full fabric information should be included, too, for the benefit of dry-cleaners and launderers so they know how to treat the fabrics safely.

"Bonded and laminated fabrics are examples," she said. "Some now are guaranteed to stand up to dry-cleaning, but others will still separate in the cleaning process. It is not always the dry-cleaner's fault. He often can't tell without a label whether it will hold up or not."

Mrs. Jubenvill says that some legislation calling for fabric information may be introduced to Alberta next year.

"But women don't demand the information—and often don't use it when it is included," she says.

This gives manufacturers an excuse for not including the information.

The department of consumer affairs has suggested that care symbols could be included on labels in garments.

"For example, there might be a little washtub on the label of a washable dress. Or a washtub with an X through it if it isn't washable."

Mrs. Jubenvill also explained some of the differences in bonded and laminated fabrics.

Bonding is the process by which two fabrics are fused together with glue or other adhesives. The outer fabric can be almost any material, such as wool, rayon, acrylic. The liner is usually an acetate or nylon tricot.

The resulting fabric provides stability for loosely-woven fabrics so they are longer-wearing, is self-lined and has increased wrinkle-resistance.

Laminated fabrics have a foam backing that is adhered to the fabric either by heat or chemicals. This process also makes fabrics structurally stable, and adds warmth without weight.

Laminates are resistant to wrinkles and are often inexpensive compared with other materials needed to provide warmth, such as quilted or knitted liners.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Respect a Pretence

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Our family is divided on something and we'd like your opinion. Our father and mother were married for 32 years. Eight months ago, Mother died after a lingering illness and Dad was so broken up over it we thought we were going to have to bury him, too.

After six months Dad's grief miraculously vanished when on a vacation to recuperate he met a woman slightly younger than Mother. You guessed it. They are planning to be married soon. Some feel that out of respect to Mother, Dad should wait a full year to remarry. Others say it's not necessary. What do you say, Abby?—No Name or Town.

DEAR NO: Waiting to show respect for the deceased is a pretence. The time to show respect is while that person is living.

If your father made your mother happy, and gave her a good life, that is all the respect any woman wants. If he wasn't a good husband, waiting a year to remarry (or 20 years!) will not show respect to a deceased wife. It's too late. She is gone!

DEAR ABBY: Our teen-age daughter's boyfriend recently went into the service. He wrote and asked her to send him a picture of her in a bikini, and one in a sheer shorty nightie. He said he wants to put it on a display board!

Our daughter doesn't have any pictures of herself that fit that description yet, but she wrote and told him she would have some taken right away and send them to him.

We disapprove, for frankly we think Christians should not be seen in lustful attire as he has requested. But it seems that she desires to fulfil his every wish rather than abide by our teaching.

Don't you think if this boy really respected her he would not have asked for such pictures? And, don't you think that if she had proper respect for herself and her parents she would try to forget this boy? — Heartbroken Parents.

DEAR PARENTS: Since the boy did ask, and your daughter responded in the affirmative, I would say the matter is out of your hands. But you are correct in stating the boy lacks respect for his girl and she lacks respect for herself.

DEAR ABBY: I notice that some of your readers object to people referring to police officers as cops.

Why? There is nothing derogatory about it. I am told by a British friend that cop is short for constable on patrol.

In San Francisco where I grew up we had a beloved Irish cop who settled our baseball disputes and was our friend and father confessor. We all called him a cop and meant no disrespect. Of course, this was a long time ago, as I am a veteran of the First World War. Best regards.—Chet in Atascadero.

FATHER OF TWIN BOYS: Talk with the boys. Neither accuse nor condemn. If your suspicions are correct, arrange for professional counselling. This could be a stage through which they will soon pass, but take no chances.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Potpourri of Leaves and Flowers Perfumes Bedroom from Glass Jar

By HILDA BEASTALL

The fragrance of leaves preserved long after they are powder dry is an age-old delight now being revived.

Those of us with coastal gardens are in the favored position of being able to grow a dozen or more plants to supply quantities of leaves.

The old name of potpourri is still used. Originally Spanish, the word came to us by way of France and now denotes a mixture of dried flowers or leaves.

By a simple process of drying and the addition of an inexpensive fixative, gifts for friends living in snowbound parts of the country, or our nearby friends who are apartment dwellers, can be prepared in time for Christmas.

It is not too soon to make a beginning, for the ingredients need to be collected and dried before going into gift containers.

First, the leaves to gather include those from: lemon balm, sweet basil, bee-balm, mint, lavender, myrtle, marjoram, rosemary, lemon verbena, and scented geraniums. These are all cultivated, or garden, plants, several of which are in every garden in the city.

Others from the wild will be found by those who walk in the woods. One useful addition is vanilla-leaf, Achlys trifoliata; others will be discovered if you hunt for them.

The removal of a few leaves at this time of year will not impair the growth of any of these plants.

To bring color to potpourri flowers of tiny sweet violets or blue borage can be dried and added to the leaves.

Each person will choose a mixture to suit her own sense of smell, so keep the leaves in separate heaps while drying on paper in an airy warm room. They should be turned until crisp dry.

To fix the fragrance of leaves, put the chosen assortments into separate small jars, then prepare the fixatives: one level teaspoon powdered orris root and one teaspoon of mixed ginger, nutmeg and allspice. Mix these together and add this to a total quart of dried leaves.

Powdered orris is available from local prescription druggists.

Cover each jar tightly, and put away in a dark warm place shaking the jars well every few days. After four or five weeks, little fancy jars or small drinking glasses can be filled and attractively tied with ribbon bows.

The perfume will be given off through the open top of the container from its place on side table or bureau.

By EUNICE FARMER

Dear Eunice Farmer,

Surely those sashes and belts with the long fringe aren't coming back in style again? I remember when I used to wear them and thought they were great until I looked through some old picture albums some years later and couldn't believe them. Lately, all the high-fashion clothes seem to look like they did when I was a young woman. I wish I had saved some of my old clothes. —Mrs. J.G.

Dear Mrs. J.G.:

Yes, the new look today is very much like the look of the '20s, and fringe used almost anywhere is NEW. This is one of my pet suggestions for revamping an old dress—sash it with a silk sash, either solid or print that will hang down almost to the hem of your dress and definitely have fringed ends.

The scarves you see for the neckline have also changed shapes, they may be worn fringed or not, but the new look requires a very long scarf, six or seven feet long. These can be made for a fraction of the cost of a ready-made scarf and only take minutes to make; they also make great gifts for special friends.

Don't feel badly about not saving your old clothes. There is always just enough "new" to the old styles that they never look quite the same. The fun of fashion is wearing something new and wearing it often. Styles change so quickly today it doesn't pay to save anything but rather make something new more often and keep in step.

Mrs. Farmer has many ideas for lovely little gifts you can whip up on your sewing machine, all outlined in her booklet, "Boutique Gifts." If you would like to have this booklet, please send 25 cents and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request to Eunice Farmer in care of this newspaper.

Barons Exploit Blacks

BALTIMORE (WP) — "Who is Goldseker?" a shrill female voice sang out.

"Exploiter!" a full-throated chorus chanted back.

"Who is he exploiting?" she asked.

"The people," they answered.

"What do we want?"

"Stop the exploiting!"

"When?" she asked.

"Now!"

"Whennnnn?" she asked louder.

"NOW!"

The recorded sound of rhythmic chanting grew shrill and loud, bouncing off the marble walls of the high-ceilinged Baltimore courtroom.

The judge squirmed in his chair. When the 40-minute tape recording of picketing outside the downtown Baltimore real estate office of Morris Goldseker ended, the judge said he would like to avoid a replay.

Goldseker had come to court, bringing the tape recording and several reels of movies (some in color) of four months of picketing, to ask the judge to stop it all. The picketing, Goldseker said, was hurting his business, which is buying, selling and renting hundreds of houses in Baltimore's black neighborhoods.

Most of the 20 to 50 persons picketing each Saturday are Goldseker's customers. They complain he and other inter-city real estate dealers in Baltimore are charging them exorbitant prices for their houses and not granting them the same legal ownership rights available to white buyers.

These real estate men have made their livings for years by buying houses in changing neighborhoods in the city from outgoing whites and then selling them to blacks, usually at big markups.

In the trade, this is known as speculation. Hundreds of black home buyers in Baltimore, who are learning they are paying up to double the appraised values for their homes, are beginning to call it exploitation.

Black families are asking for the return of millions of dollars in "excessive" charges.

Blacks Form National Coalition

TORONTO (CP) — Delegates from 28 Negro organizations Sunday formed the National Black Coalition and called for royal commission of inquiry into racism in Canada.

The delegates elected Dr. Howard McCurdy, a biology professor at the University of Windsor, Ont., as president.

Fifteen other Negro organizations represented at the conference refused to join. The meeting was closed to white reporters.

Among the organizations joining the coalition were associations urging the advancement of colored people from New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and British Columbia, as well as the South Essex Citizens Advancement Association in Ontario.

Dr. McCurdy said inan interview the federation has decided tentatively, to work within the existing political structure to change the political system.

The group wants the establishment of human rights centres in urban areas and an eventual coalition with Indian organizations or groups representing the poor or labor.

It will seek lobby legislators for causes involving blacks, and will ask for support from such groups as the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews and the Canadian Council of Churches.

Free Passes In Edmonton

EDMONTON (CP) — Everyone over 65 years old will receive free transit passes effective Jan. 1, 1970, city council has decided.

Previously, passes on the city-owned transit system were given only to persons who received supplementary old-age assistance.

The passes will be good between 9 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. and after 6:30 p.m. weekdays and Saturdays and all days Sundays and holidays.

The city's board of commissioners recommended to council that free passes be eliminated.

Alderman Maurice Weinlos didn't vote on the move—he's already over 65.

LCB Accused of Making Its Own Rules

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Liquor Inquiry Commission, which resumed hearings here Monday, heard the charge levelled against the Liquor Control Board that it operates with rules not laid down in the B.C. Liquor Act.

The charge was made by Ben Ginter, Prince George Brewer, who said, "The act says nothing against standing in beer parlors. But just try doing this and you will find out what happens."

And the act says nothing about not storing liquor in truck trailers, but you can't do this either, Mr. Ginter said.

County Court Judge C. W. Morrow, commission chairman, said he planned to test the beer-parlor - standing - up rule later without revealing his identity.

He also announced that acting LCB chairman W. A. Bruce has agreed to answer in writing a list of questions the commission plans to submit to him today.

Judge Morrow said the public and organizations can also submit questions. At some later date Mr. Bruce will appear before the commission to answer questions.

Nelson Miles Low, counsel for the operators of the motor vessel Fintry—a stern wheeler—appealed to the commission for help in unsnarling the status of the craft so it can sell liquor while sailing Lake Okanagan in the summer with tourists aboard and as a cocktail bar while tied up in Kelowna in the winter.

Roy Wood, assistant editor of B.C. Institute of Technology's newspaper The Link, told the commission that, based on a survey, students in the province want the drinking age lowered to 18 and also want uniform identification cards to get them into liquor outlets.

He said comments from students surveyed called for closer, cozier pubs and taverns in addition to the sometimes inconveniently - located hotel beer parlors, sale of beer and wine in grocery stores, Sunday drinking and beer parlor entertainment.

William Pattison, president of a company operating seven hotels in outlying areas, said first-class hotels require a major investment which doesn't return a profit initially and hotelmen should have an assurance of continuity of liquor regulations to protect their investment.

BARS WOULD HURT

To a question by commissioner Ed Lawson, he said additional liquor outlets not attached to hotels would jeopardize the successful operation of hotels in other than urban areas.

"We must have the beverage room income we now have to maintain our hotels," he said.

D. H. Foxwell, B.C. representative of a French brandy firm, said his company has been trying without success to have the LCB agree to placing even one company product on its shelves.

He said the company's products are sold in Ontario and Quebec, but the LCB has filed continued applications without action.

The hearing continues today.

Nixon Asks Safety Code For Railways

WASHINGTON (CP-AP) — The Nixon administration, spurred by an increase in railway accidents which totalled more than 8,000 in the United States in 1968, has proposed the first comprehensive federal railway safety legislation.

Sending the recommendations to Congress, Transportation Secretary John Volpe last week cited "a steadily rising trend" in rail accidents, many involving shipments of hazardous poisons and explosives.

"Existing rail safety statutes are inadequate to enable the government to respond to the problem," Volpe said, noting that—in an abrupt about-face since last spring—the railways themselves now seem to agree.

Unlike airlines and trucks, railways have escaped any sort of comprehensive minimum safety standards set by the government.

The proposal itself does not outline specific safety measures. Rather it would permit the secretary of transportation to draw up regulations setting minimum standards for, among other items, tracks, rolling stock and loading procedures.

In 1968, there were 812 persons killed and 20,801 injured in train accidents, excluding grade crossing collisions between trains and motor vehicles. Some 3,816 persons died in grade crossing accidents last year.

Man Retires

VANCOUVER (CP) — Don Guise retired Monday at the age of 61 after 22 years with the Vancouver Civic Employees' Union. The last three years he spent as a staff representative when the union became a local of the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

New Liquor Board Urged by Distillers

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Liquor Inquiry Commission received a submission today from the Association of Canadian Distillers, calling for a revision of the Liquor Control Act, a change in the name of the act and a new and separate liquor control board to deal with all licensing matters.

The association, representing 10 Canadian distillery firms, cited several examples from the act in contending it is out-of-date, often inaccurate and unfair to B.C. distillers.

An example of the latter, the association said in its prepared report, is that only distillers within B.C. must pay a licence fee equivalent to one per cent of the assessed value of their lands and improvements.

"The commission will be quick to see that this is most unjust and unfair because distillers whose plants are outside of B.C., but who sell the B.C. Liquor Commission, pay no such licence."

The association said the title of the act should be changed to "The Government Beverage Alcohol Act" because the word "liquor" almost always means distilled spirits and the act and the board is concerned with much more than that, especially beer and wine.

134 PINTS OF BLOOD DOESN'T SAVE STUDENT

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 21-year old Port Alberni man, John Hay, died in hospital here Saturday despite blood transfusions totalling 134 pints received for a bleeding ulcer.

Hay was flown to St. Paul's Hospital, October 3, following treatment in the West Coast General Hospital.

The six - foot - three, 237 - pound student, working in a mining camp to earn money for university, underwent a three - hour operation after his arrival here.

A second operation lasting six hours required 91 pints of blood.

Hay developed double pneumonia following the surgery and was using an artificial kidney to keep up his own kidney function.

SPILLING CARGO of tissue paper and groceries on to the front yard of Mr. and Mrs. Herb Cook was this Johnston Terminals semi-trailer and truck after it slid off a wet Trans-Canada Highway at Koksilah Road early Monday morning. School Board Tables Co-Ordinator Request

DUNCAN — Cowichan District School Board Monday night generally agreed a director is urgently needed to organize recreational activities in the regional district.

Trustee Ernie Goddard pressed for immediate endorsement in principle by the school board that the regional board appoint a director but the resolution was tabled.

Chairman Bruce Devitt agreed the board is "inundated with requests for use of school facilities for recreation purposes" but a referendum would be necessary for the regional board to hire a full-time co-ordinator.

Devitt is also a director on the regional board.

CONFLICTING APPEALS

Goddard said there are too many conflicting appeals and since the regional board now had the authority "we should at least endorse the idea." Both Duncan and North Cowichan have recreation commissions.

In other school board business, the department of Indian affairs has notified the board that Indian families will be required to purchase school supplies at stores of their choice as the needs arise. The money will be issued by the department through requisitions.

The school administration indicated that problems arose in the past when the procedure was not followed so the district superintendent for Indian schools has been requested to aid in assuring Indian students have the required supplies.

DANGEROUS ACCESS

Following a recommendation by district superintendent Eric Lewis, the department of highways will be contacted to make an on-the-spot investigation and discussion of dangerous school crosswalks and accesses near the Trans-Canada Hghiway.

A third-year pupil was struck by a car on the highway near the Koksilah School last week.

"She was fortunately not badly hurt but might easily have been killed," Lewis said.

The driver was charged with careless driving.

Lewis said there were three areas near the highway dangerous for students walking to school: the Koksilah School crosswalk, near the Somenos Elementary School and at the junction of James Street and the highway.

"The problem involves school highway signs, access roads, bus approaches and speed zones," Lewis said.

ONLY SIGNS

Trustee B. C. Annand said the department had been contacted last year regarding the same type of complaint and although other suggestions were made to alleviate the problems, only new signs were posted as a result.

Lewis also said the administration intend to continue the procedure of arranging at report time for individual parent-teacher interviews in elementary schools.

"This was tried on an experimental basis last year and met almost universal approval from both teachers and parents," he said. "It is the most effective means yet found of explaining the students' reports to parents."

The process necessitates that individual grades be closed down for a day or half-day and parents will be notified as soon as schedules have been drawn up.

IT'S NO GIMMICK

Racer to Talk Safety to Youth

DUNCAN — Cowichan School Board Monday night approved a request for a privately-sponsored driver safety lecture and film to be shown to high school students in the secondary school Nov. 7.

District superintendent Eric Lewis highly recommended the project which stresses driving courtesy, safety and common sense "in a manner that student-drivers will listen to and heed."

The program is sponsored by a Vancouver newspaper and an automobile accessory firm.

"It sounds like an advertising gimmick but it isn't," said trustee Ernie Goddard.

He said the lecture is delivered by a driver from the Indianapolis 500 who knows how to gain the respect and attention of students. The only "blatant" commercialism is references to the famous speed race, Goddard said.

Halloween Parties Okayed

DUNCAN — Halloween dances have been approved for Duncan Elementary and Cowichan Senior Secondary schools by Cowichan School Board provided adult supervision can be assured.

No problems have resulted from similar dances in the past and co-operation of parents and RCMP is expected again this year, the board was told Monday night.

The dances are being sponsored by Anglican Minister Rev. Alan Kerr. The Halloween dance traditionally held at Queen of Angels School will not be held because of construction there.

Cowichan United Appeal To Get Under Way in '70

DUNCAN — Chairman Cecil Walkey officially announced Monday the Cowichan United Appeal has been incorporated under the B.C. Societies Act and a fund-raising campaign is scheduled for the fall of 1970.

Community services have held their own fund-raising campaigns in this area in the past. The district to be covered has yet to be determined.

"I am most enthusiastic with the support shown for the Cowichan United Appeal," said Walkey, a local dentist and veteran of seven years as director of the United Appeal in Drumheller, Alta.

BIRDS DYING ON U.K. COAST

LONDON (CP) — Thousands of dead and dying seabirds washed up around the northwest coast of Britain could be an alarming portent for the future of fish in some parts of the Atlantic.

More than 10,000 birds, including gannets, guillemots, cormorants and puffins, have drifted ashore in the worst disaster of its kind since records began 200 years ago. Scientists estimate that more than 100,000 may have been affected, but they are divided on the cause.

LEAKS POSSIBLE

Some believe the birds died of starvation, a theory pointing to some massive upset in the natural cycle of ocean life, perhaps from man-made contamination or shortage of plankton—tiny marine organisms on which fish feed. Others think a more likely explanation is poisoning from thousands of tons of Second World War nerve gases dumped in the sea off Scotland.

Bomb-disposal experts say the lead canisters in which the mustard and phosgene gas was dumped 6,000 feet deep may have sprung leaks from sea-water action, releasing their deadly contents to the surface. Mustard gas dumped in the Baltic has already been the cause of damage to marine life there.

Laboratories in Scotland and England are conducting post-mortems on some of the birds.

A marine biology station at Portaferry, Northern Ireland, reported a massive shortage of plankton this summer off Ireland and Scotland. Thousands of young fish would have died, leaving insufficient food for the seabirds. What happened to the plankton is not known.

If the fish have been contaminated in some way, the consequences for humans eating them could be serious. But one science correspondent said if contamination were due to poison gases, the danger would be offset by the rapid decomposition which they would cause in the fish.

'More Unions Must Turn International'

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (CP) — To protect its membership, the North American labor movement must become more international to cope with the "great octopus multi-national conglomerates," Donald MacDonald, president of the Canadian Labor Congress, said today.

Addressing the biennial convention of the Lithographers and Photoengravers International Union, he criticized those who would "hog-tie the workers and at the same time let the investors run free."

"For some strange reason it appears very good for management and the control of industry to become widespread . . . but when workers follow that pattern there are suggestions that there is something wrong about it."

On wages, he said that in Canada attention is focused on wage increases "but there is little public attention to the amazing increases in profits."

Canada Pressing for New Look in NATO

By CY FOX

BRUSSELS (CP) — Canadian delegates at the North Atlantic Assembly have turned out to be leading advocates of the case for giving NATO a "new look" appropriate to the changing world situation.

With the assembly's two days of active public discussion due to end today, the Canadians are encountering some critical reactions from delegates reluctant to forsake traditional ideas.

The assembly, after seven hours of debate Monday, passed a resolution expressing concern at the present trend in reduction of NATO forces but confining itself to the recommendation that member states "maintain forces at levels adequate for effective implementation of the agreed strategy of flexible response."

Canadian delegates felt the wording implied no criticism of Canada's projected military reductions in Europe. And Jacob Javits, Republican U.S. Senator from New York, wound up the debate by assuring delegates that "Canada and the United States will not fail Europe" in time of trial.

The Canadian delegates, with the Canadian reductions in the NATO European military commitment as their watchword, urged the assembly to place more emphasis on East-West contacts and to work for an atmosphere of detente in international affairs.

SIGN OF CHANGE

The changes emanating from Ottawa signal advanced notions of how NATO should develop in future, Gerald Laniel, Liberal MP for Beauharnois, told the parliamentarians from alliance countries who make up the assembly.

Another Liberal, Ian Wahn of St. Paul's, said he is inclined to believe that Canada is being criticized for its troop reductions as an example designed to deter the United States for similar slashes in Europe.

"Canada is the most affluent underdeveloped country in the world," he went on.

Canadians were no longer content to pay for big military commitments abroad through selling control of their resources and industry to foreign investors.

NEEDS DIFFER NOW

Wahn said NATO has ceased to be what it was in 1949—a means for outside military help to reach a Western Europe still economically reeling from the Second World War.

Europe now is prosperous and, Wahn indicated, should be able to afford greater contribution to its own military security.

He added that many Canadians are looking increasingly to the United Nations because they "see that NATO alone is not enough."

The Canadian northland, subject of increasing attention from Canada's military forces, is just as much part of NATO territory as is Europe, Wahn said.

Shaping up as another point of conflict today between Canadian delegates and other parliamentarians at the assembly was the question of extending NATO's defence responsibilities into such areas as the South Atlantic and Middle East.

Some representatives strongly urged this at the Monday session but Alastair Gillespie, leader of the Canadian group, warned that the alliance can over-reach itself by becoming involved in the Middle East and other regions like the Indian Ocean.

Gillespie, Liberal MP for Toronto Etobicoke, also argued that NATO should become more oriented to the thinking of the younger generation and that greater momentum should be given the political integration of Europe.

Among new initiatives favored by the Canadian delegation chief are East-West contact at the parliamentary level and an increase in the multi-national character of NATO's military forces.

'The future vitality of NATO as an organization will depend on the extent to which (it) shapes itself to appeal to . . . a rising generation," Gillespie said.

Rebel. A big tough car.

This is your good looking family sedan with a special added extra. Brute strength.

You see, at American Motors we build Rebel to stand up to most anything that Canadians and their country can come up with.

Like we weld Rebel bodies and frames into one solid unit. That's so the car can spend its entire life on dirt roads without rattling.

We make the passenger compartment bigger than an intermediate's passenger compartment. In some respects it's bigger than many standard-size passenger compartments.

Example: More front seat leg room than a Cadillac. We do this so you can increase the number and nature of your travelling companions.

Example: Mom, Dad, three kids and a huge wooly hound dog. It's also because we think of Rebel as being a super family car that we put in durable fabrics to cover the seats, doors and ceiling.

That way you don't worry about the scuffing and scraping and dog flea-scratching that goes on around family sedans.

Power is the next consideration.

The best thing we can say about the Rebel 145 hp standard engine is that it's one of the bigger standard engines for a car of its size.

So there you have the basic story on the basic family car with the beautiful base price.

If you want to spend a lot more money on things like big V8's, vinyl roofs, air conditioning, reclining seats, etc., OK.

But that's got to be your decision.

We want you to buy us for what we really are. Not for what you can turn us into.

$3019. Without a big tough price.

"All prices are based on manufacturer's suggested retail factory delivered prices, including federal sales taxes for a Rebel 4-door sedan. Optional equipment and transportation charges extra."

BREATH-TAKING PHOTOGRAPHY

True Star Is the Camera

BATTLE OF BRITAIN
Victoria Premiere
Odeon Theatre

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Despite its impressive all-star cast, the true star of this film is the camera.

The breathtaking aerial photography, portraying the epic air battles over Britain in 1940, has never been bettered and even the bitter dogfights seem choreographed as in some kind of macabre ballet.

The air action generally is vivid and colorful and takes on a strange unearthly beauty when divorced from the horrible consequences—of cities devastated by fire and death; of pilots burned alive in the flaming wreckage of their planes.

TRIBUTE

Beyond that, the film is a tribute to the gallant Few who triumphed over Germany's massed aerial onslaught in the 16 weeks which followed the defeat of the British Army at Dunkirk.

Hundreds of men, women and children attended the first four Victoria showings of Battle of Britain Monday afternoon and evening.

The final show, at 8:30 p.m., was a gala occasion since the audience of 1,400 included members of the 800 Wing, Royal Canadian Air Force Association; the Air Cadets and Air Cadettes of Greater Victoria; Mayor Hugh Stephen and members of city council; and great numbers of veterans and serving members of the three services.

Commander Garfield Dixon represented Lieutenant-Governor John Nicholson.

AUTHENTIC

Some said the film was overdramatized. The majority, I think, would agree that it bears the stamp of authenticity, with a massive accumulation of historical detail and some fine characterizations.

The most interesting, perhaps, is Sir Laurence Olivier's portrayal of Air Chief Marshal Sir Hugh Dowding, commander of Britain's defences in 1940.

An ascetic and something of a mystic, Dowding was famed for his cynical disregard of all matters political, and it was this quality (or failing) which ultimately led to his downfall.

Olivier's interpretation of Dowding provoked some controversy when the film was shown in Britain, yet has been upheld by many war historians.

LACKS DEPTH

My own impression is that, while Olivier effectively recaptures Dowding's mannerisms, he does not give much depth to the portrait.

Hans Reiss looks and sounds like the buxom General Goering when he inspects Germany's Luftwaffe and predicts the British will soon be brought to their knees.

The story opens in the spring of 1940 when the British withdraw their troops from France.

Dowding urges that all British planes be used for the defence of Britain rather than a lost cause in France. A top civil servant (Harry Andrews) expresses Prime Minister Churchill's disapproval of the retreat, but the government yields to Dowding's wishes.

STALL GERMANS

The British strategy is to stall off the Germans, knowing that Hitler has a soft spot for the Anglo-Saxons and is willing to negotiate an armistice.

They deceive the Germans into thinking they are ready to sue for peace, but are really re-arming. As Dowding says: "I'm trusting in God and praying for radar."

The magnificent aerial photography is by Skeets Kelly and John Jordan, and there is an atmospheric musical score by Sir William Walton and Ron Goodwin.

Queen Scraps Christmas Day Broadcasts

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — The Queen's decision to scrap her Christmas Day broadcast was headline news in the British press today, combined with a note of sadness in editorial comment.

Whether the Queen is a born television performer or whether her broadcasts have become a bit of a bore is immaterial, says The Daily Telegraph in lamenting this break with tradition.

"Children value letters from their mother not because she is necessarily the greatest letter writer since Horace Walpole but because she is their mother."

As Queen, Elizabeth was in a sense "the mother of all of us, the embodiment of our history and hopes, all we were and are and will be. That is why we hope to hear from her at Christmas time in 1970 and for many years thereafter."

The Times suggests the break was inevitable. Broadcasting was no longer a miracle; the Commonwealth was no longer a closely-knit community. There no longer is a craving for emotional encouragement in time of crisis.

The first sight of the monarch on television was a fascinating experience but now it no longer is enough for the Royal Family to be exposed to view; the family had to become alive as personalities. In future, the occasions for formal broadcasts had to be selected with care.

WILL CARRY SERVICE

Buckingham Palace announced Monday that the 1969 Christmas Day TV and radio broadcasts will be scrapped but the morning service in the Queen's chapel at Windsor Castle will be televised for the first time. The Queen's Yuletide message will be available for publishing, as usual.

The reason for this, says The Daily Express, is the risk of over-exposure on TV—"that old show business fear of audiences tiring of seeing a star performer too often."

While public attention centred on the announcement, some Britons were more concerned with dropping royalty altogether.

"I know of 50 Labor members of Parliament who have told me privately they would opt for a republic tomorrow," said William Hamilton, Labor MP for West Fife, Scotland, and a vice-chairman of the parliamentary Labor party.

"People become brainwashed into bowing and genuflecting before monarchy," The Daily Mirror reported him as saying.

"There is a lot of evidence from the Commonwealth of a desire to be rid of the lot. Commonwealth countries in Africa and Asia are opting out and I think Australia, New Zealand and Canada will go the same way."

Cosmonauts Say U.S. Welcome 'Revealed Humanity at Its Best'

NEW YORK (AP) — Two Soviet cosmonauts took in a Broadway show and dined in a French restaurant on their first day in the United States. They drank only vodka.

One of them said their warm welcome "revealed humanity at its best."

Maj.-Gen. Georgi T. Beregovoi, 48, and Konstantin Feoktistov, 43, a civilian, arrived in New York Monday from Moscow. They declined an invitation to Mayor John V. Lindsay's reception for New York Mets, the baseball world champions.

"They have just had a 12-hour jet trip and they're pooped," said Col. Frank Borman, the U.S. astronaut who is their host on the two-week tour.

Beregovoi and Feokistov went to their Plaza Hotel suites to rest, then went to see Pearl Bailey and Cab Calloway in Hello, Dolly!

Miss Bailey brought the Soviet spacemen and Borman on stage after the show, to a standing ovation from the audience.

"I love you," she said, and kissed each on the cheek. "But tell me, how do you manage to fly up in space like that?"

"You have to have time and ability to do everything," Beregovi told her.

"How well I know, honey! How well I know," Miss Bailey chortled, and the audience roared.

Beregovoi later told reporters: "I was very much impressed not so much with just the city as with the people and especially the memorable people in the theatre whose welcome surpassed cordiality because it revealed humanity at its best."

The spacemen surprised their hosts by announcing they could not make their scheduled stop at Cape Kennedy, Fla., where the U.S. launches its moon missions. They gave no explanation.

Beregovoi and Feoktistov fly to Houston today, where they will visit the Manned Spacecraft Centre and hold a news conference.

Other stops include the Grand Canyon, California, Detroit and Washington.

Beregovoi is accompanied by his wife and their 17-year-old son. Feoktistov is travelling alone.

Film Star Replaces Ironworker

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) —Film critic Hamilton Allen leaned out of his office window in the Rochester (N.Y.) Times-Union building and yelled to a construction worker on the new Gannett building next door:

"Hey, Bob, come on over; you've got a good review."

Ironworker Robert Forster left the job to read a review that had just come in on the wire. Charles Champlin of Los Angeles Times praised Forster's performance in the otherwise disastrous Reflections in a Golden Eye.

That marked the end of Forster's career as an ironworker, and as a substitute schoolteacher. From then on he was travelling throughout America for such films as The Stalking Moon, Medium Cool, Justine and the unreleased Run Shadow Run.

It is in Medium Cool that Forster really registers as a film performer. He plays a television cameraman in Haskell Wexler's brilliant film about the Chicago violence of summer 1968. Youthful viewers of the movie see in Forster a symbol of the protest generation. Older filmgoers have compared him to the symbol of the Depression generation, John Garfield, whom he resembles in dark handsomeness and vitality.

WON'T BE TYPED

Said Forster: "I suppose I will be identified with the youthful protest generation because of Medium Cool and also Run Shadow Run in which he is also a cameraman in search of truth. But I think Peter Fonda and Chris Jones are more of symbols than I am. I'd just as soon not get typed.

"I'm a little above the line of that generation (he's 28). In some way I agree with them. I've always thought that adults do a lot of irrational things, especially in areas like politics. But now I see the kids doing irrational things, too."

Stripper Has Friends, No Money

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Astrodella, a topless showgirl, isn't supposed to cry—it might slow her recovery from her eye operation.

But when dancers and musicians chipped in to help pay for her surgery, "I just bawled my head off," said the dark-haired dancer, whose real name is Janet Boyd.

Astrodella pops out of a "space capsule" nightly at Howard Hughes' Silver Slipper casino. Then she does an exotic dance and a strip act.

The 22-year-old dancer, a six-footer with a 38-24-36 figure, makes about $425 a week.

But she ran short of money two months ago paying for a cancer operation for her mother, who died last month.

Then, during a routine visit to a doctor, Janet was told she would lose her sight unless she had surgery within a week.

SHAKEN IN ACCIDENT

Both eyes were affected by a hereditary condition, and the trouble was aggravated when she was shaken up in an auto accident last summer.

The operation has been performed, and the dancer expects to regain full vision.

But her health insurance had lapsed, she couldn't work while recuperating, and she faced a bill of about $5,000.

Fellow dancers and showgirls chipped in $160. The orchestra gave her $100.

Entertainers urged friends to send contributions. News columnists and radio and television people passed the word along.

So far there's $500 in the kitty.

Mansfield Suit Settled

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jayne Mansfield's five children will recevie $22,000 each in a settlement of a suit filed after the actress died in a car crash.

Superior Court Judge Arthur Marshall also approved Monday an agreement that three of the children receive an additional $5,000 each because of their injuries in the accident that killed their mother June 29, 1967.

Miss Mansfield was on her way from Biloxi, Miss., to New Orleans, after a nightclub appearance.

The settlement was reached with Gus Stevens, the nightclub owner in whose car Miss Mansfield was riding.

The children, by three husbands, are: Jayne Marie Mansfield, 19; Miklos Hargitay, 10; Zoltan Hargitay, 9; Mariska Hargitay, and Antonio Cimber, 3.

COLOMBO Place, between the archives and curatorial buildings at Provincial Museum, was officially named Monday, when the Colombo Plan conference in Victoria officially opened. Premier Bennett and conference secretary-general John Hadwen view the commemorative plaque after its unveiling.

'Have' Countries Getting Richer On Their Aid to 'Have-Not' Nations

The foreign aid concept's nightmare stalks the Colombo Plan conference here and delegates' statements Monday indicated they are striving to find a way to avoid it.

In a nutshell, the problem is to prevent the program from developing into a modern-day Colonial Plan with the "aid" process enriching the six donor nations at the expense of the 18 recipients.

The barely muffled message coming out from behind the closed-door sessions is that if present trends continue for only a half-dozen years more, the Colombo Plan will be overwhelmed by crisis as the money and manpower flow reverses itself—sending more interest profits and trained technicians from the "have-not" to the "have" nations than the other way around.

SWITCH TO GRANTS

A growing drive is apparent to switch financial assistance from loans to grants and training assistance from scholarships in a host country to posting of specialist instructors abroad by donor nations.

The money situation was openly discussed by technical delegates last week and summed up Monday by Maurice Strong, president of the Canadian International Development Agency.

Strong said some countries charge ordinary commercial interest rates for their "aid" loans and this is pyramiding debt so rapidly that some recipient nations by 1975 will be paying out more in interest than their net inflow of aid.

Strong said Canada was not one of the nations making a profit out of its aid program.

He pointed out 95 per cent of Canada's $298 million aid program in the last fiscal year was in the form of 50-year, interest-free loans with an initial decade of grace on repayments.

The remaining 5 per cent of the total was in the form of 30-year, 3 per cent interest loans on which payments begin in seven years and involving only projects which will earn sufficient revenue to enable the recipient nation to meet the payments schedule.

Strong said Canadian loan terms were "soft" because it was apparent a "very severe problem" of debt repayment is looming for Colombo Plan countries.

He said the Canadian government "is very concerned and anxious" over the mounting financial drain on developing countries struggling to bridge the widening gap between rich and poor nations in the world.

Besides the money drain, delegates at the conference also are concerned about the "brain drain" created by technical training programs under the Colombo Plan.

This was made clear by Mrs. H. E. Pura Santillon, the Philippine delegation's leader, in her speech replying to the official welcome Monday by Premier Bennett.

"They (donor countries) give young people the know-how and they yearn to return to the country of their training—many do," she said.

She said loss of the newly-skilled natives trained abroad may help a developing nation's employment problems in the short run, but over the long term "this must be a transition period only and the (Southeast Asia) region should be helped to strike a balance in its trained personnel."

She urged the conference to look into the problem because developing countries dangerously drained of their educated persons by Colombo Plan programs will not be able to meet development goals.

Design Readied

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—A design for the first dyke improvement project under the $40,000,000 federal-provincial flood control program on the Lower Fraser River is nearly completed, Walter Raudsepp, British Columbia's deputy minister of water resources, said Monday.

Duplexes Backed Despite Protests

Six $40,000-a-unit duplexes on Shearwater Street will be a more profitable development than "some old elastic factory," Esquimalt Ald. William Bell told a public hearing Monday night.

Council agreed unanimously, despite the protests from residents that rezoning to duplex would drop property values. One block on the north side of Shearwater adjoining Porter Street was rezoned from industrial to duplex.

R. E. Cox, 933 Shearwater, said 48 more people in the neighborhood will mean "there will be no place for children to play."

Duplexes are often not "kept up" said Kenneth Garland, 917 Shearwater.

'LOT OF MONEY'

"We have spent a lot of money on the area and hate to see it go down the drain," C. L. Hodgson, Shearwater, told council.

"What will happen when those other 48 people move in? We put money into Shearwater, we developed it, and we want to see other people do the same."

But if the area stays industrially-zoned property values could spiral down even more drastically, council told them.

"Besides, I don't think anyone can make statements on what type of people are going to live there or how many children they are going to have," said Ald. Edward De Costa.

MORE REVENUE

Most aldermen said the development will mean a substantial increase in tax revenue from the area.

Ald. Arthur Young didn't see how $40,000 units could devalue adjacent property, especially compared with the present industrial zoning.

The development is owned by the Bank of Montreal which took over the land when a loan fell through.

A spokesman for the bank said the $240,000 development will do more for the area than a warehouse.

Identity Sought

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police were trying to identify the body of a man found Monday in Burrard Inlet. The body, dressed in blue jeans and a light colored shirt, was found by a tugboat skipper and appeared to have been in the water for some time.

In a Style That Is Lightfoot

By BRYDEN WINSBY

A man called Lightfoot, fringed flare pants and all, came on stage and did his proverbial thing before a packed house at the McPherson Monday night.

Gordon, Lightfoot, rough-edged singer, composer and to some poet, dug into his mixed bag and really did it. Although many of the titles were new, and some not his own, the songs were still Lightfoot, done in the style that is his.

Backed by Red Sheay on lead and Rich Haunes on bass (John Stockfish has departed), he did the whole trip from his early country and western "Steel Rail Blues" to "Leaves of Grass," a sombre protesty sort of thing.

Familiar stuff like "Boss Man," "Canadian Railroad Trilogy" and "Early Morning Rain' were greeted with instant response and new things, the names of which escape me, didn't let anybody down either.

Running through chords on guitars that seem to become a part of his anatomy and ringing the aural membrane of an enthusiastic audience with that different voice of his, Gordon Lightfoot let everyone know why the place had been sold out days in advance.

To some his music is an acquired taste, to others a monotonous drag, but to most of those in the Playhouse Gordon Lightfoot is some kind of experience, especially in a town where shows like his are few and far between.

BLAZE RAZES HOME OF NEW IMMIGRANTS

PORT ALBERNI—A family of Korean immigrants escaped unharmed here Saturday when their first Canadian home was destroyed by fire.

Some of the belongings of Mr. and Mrs. Chan Koo Lee, their daughter, 15, and son, 16, were saved with the help of neighbors.

Their six-room frame home, on Shannon farm, where Lee is a farmhand, was partially covered by insurance. A spark from an outdoor fire or the chimney set the roof alight.

HOME GARDEN

Redesigning Is a Sizeable Job

By HILDA BEASTALL

Redesigning an established garden, even one of five years or so, is a fair-sized job for weekend gardeners. However, with a plan on paper, the heavier work done on weekends and, if you're lucky, in the last hour of daylight, the job should make progress.

Hilda

Some of the lighter work can perhaps be delegated to the better half, so long as agreement has been reached on placement of the plants.

Fall is a good time for lifting and moving nearly all kinds of trees and shrubs. When the moving is done within the garden, it is relatively easy to prevent fine root hairs from becoming dry.

A wet sack draped around the rootball is handy from the time it is dug until the soil is sifted around it in the new place.

Don't forget to have the hose for settling the soil closely around the roots. This serves two purposes: one, ensuring moisture in what may be fairly dry soil; two, water forces out the air and settles the soil close to the fine feeding hairs on the roots. Feeding roots are only formed in close contact with soil.

Moving of plants within a garden is usually done because the gardener has acquired more knowledge than when he first planted. He is more likely to give adequate space for larger shrubs, placing the largest in strategic spots where ultimately they may serve instead of a tree.

The back corners of a lot can be masked with shrubs of large rounded shapes, and a shrub bed coming part way across a lot can have its point emphasized by a tall growing shrub.

It takes imagination to visualize plants 10 years after being put in, but time is fleeting and there is pleasure in knowing that your garden plan has been carefully designed with the future in mind.

Temporary fillers can go in between for the first few years. Quite often a vegetable garden can be grown until shrubs or trees exclude sunshine from the open area being used.

Planning the garden now for the future is to achieve a measure of progress, for progress results from using the best from the past (experience) with what we believe to be the best of the present.

Snowshoed 3,000 Miles To Find a Girl to Marry

By BOB BOWMAN

One of the hardiest pioneers who ever lived in Canada was Hudson's Bay Company factor, Robert Campbell. He came from Scotland in 1832 when 24 years old and got a job on the farm at Red River.

Having been brought up in Scotland, he knew something about sheep and so the company sent him to Kentucky to bring back 1,475 overland.

Only 251 survived the journey as rattle-snakes and spear grass took a heavy toll.

Then Campbell was sent to the district of Mackenzie where he established a trading post at Dease Lake, now in northern British Columbia, and made many important discoveries including the Yukon and Pelly Rivers.

After he had been in the Yukon for 20 years head office in London decided that he should get married and offered to send him a bride.

Campbell was getting along very well with Indian friends and refused.

Eventually he agreed to marry if he could go to Scotland and choose a girl for himself.

His journey from White River, Yukon, began in Sept., 1852, when he followed the Pelly River and crossed the Rocky Mountains to the Liard River and Fort Simpson.

Campbell kept a diary and noted that on Oct. 21 he had to start walking on snowshoes. In this way he crossed Great Slave Lake, Lake Athabaska, and then the wild country to Fort Garry (Winnipeg).

The weather was bitterly cold and sometimes all he could get to eat would be a single squrrel. He was little more than a skeleton on snowshoes.

However, he rested at Fort Garry only for a few days and then continued to Minnesota where he was able to board a train for Montreal.

Then he got to Scotland by ship. By the time he arrived there he had travelled 9,700 miles, 3,000 of them on snowshoes!

Then Campbell chose the girl he would marry. She was only 12 years old and so he returned to Canada and waited for six years until she was old enough to journey to Norway House, Manitoba, where they were married.

Eventually he was fired by the Hudson's Bay Company for refusing to obey orders and took up ranching at Riding Mountain, Manitoba.

The Campbells had a son, Glen, who became a member of Parliament at Ottawa where he was as colorful a character as his father.

Other events on Oct. 21:

1755—Large party of Acadians deported from Nova Scotia.

1872—German Kaiser, acting as arbitrator, awarded San Juan Island to U.S. rather than British Columbia.

1876—First wheat shipped from Manitoba.

1880—Contract signed with CPR to build transcontinental railway.

1886—Canada protested U.S. seizure of sealing vessels in Bering Sea.

Sea Study Spending To Increase

WASHINGTON (WP) — In a major science policy move, the Nixon administration is proposing to strengthen Marine Research in the U.S. by increasing sea study spending by more than 200 million dollars in the next five years.

The increases cover five areas of research and break fresh ground in two places—by proposing a grant-in-aid program to help states manage their coast lines and a huge pilot study of lake water pollution to guide restoration of the Great Lakes.

The funding step-up also calls for an increase in the number of oceanographic laboratories on the Atlantic, Pacific and Gulf coasts, an acceleration of research in the Arctic and a high degree of cooperation in the International Decade of Ocean Exploration, which begins in 1970.

If congress authorizes the program, federal agencies will kick it all off by spending up to $30,000,000 on the five projects in fiscal 1971. With normal growth, total spending on the five-point proposal would run upwards of $200,000,000 by fiscal 1975.

SOLUTION WEDNESDAY

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED L. KARPIN

When the deal presented today arose in the National Team-of-Four Championships a few years ago both South declarers arrived at the same contract via identical bidding sequences. At each table the play to trick one was the same. But then came a parting of the ways. When the scores were compared later it was observed that one of the expert declarers had fulfilled the contract while the other one had gone down.

Both sides vulnerable. West deals.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ◇	Dbl	4 ◇	4 ♡
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♣

At table one our South declarer won the opening lead with his club ace after which he laid down the jack of trumps. West promptly took his ace and cashed the queen of clubs. He then made an excellent play: he underled his ace of diamonds! When East won this trick with his queen, he returned a club, which West ruffed for the setting trick.

At table two, Life Master Richard Freeman, of Atlanta, Ga., was sitting in the South seat. But he did not lead a trump at trick two, for he foresaw what might happen if he did, namely that a third club lead might get ruffed by a defender.

Instead, at trick two, Freeman led a low diamond out of his hand, West capturing the trick with his 10-spot. West cashed the queen of clubs, and then led a spade, hoping that East could win the trick with the king. But dummy's ace won this lead, after which a trump was led, West taking his ace. As is evident, East could not be put into the lead to return a club. When declarer regained the lead, he picked up West's remaining trump and claimed the rest of the tricks.

EVEN AN APE can play school as Samantha Rose, six, of Middlesex, England, calls five-year-old orangoutang, Tuan, to order while four-year-old Njonja, right, pays strict attention during an "art" lesson at Chessington Zoo in Surrey. (AP Wirephoto.)

PM WARNS CBC OF TRUSTEESHIP

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Monday the federal government would not hesitate to put the French network of the CBC under trusteeship if it was decided the network was misusing its funds.

An interviewer on the Radio-Canada-French network-television program Format 30 asked if the government would take such a step and Trudeau replied: "It's possible. Yes, it's possible. I cannot provide a date, but it's possible."

Trudeau did not elaborate on what form the trusteeship might take. He said the government could content itself with a reduction of the Crown corporation's budget.

● BATTLE FOR QUEBEC ●

Separatist Street Riots Anger PM

Prime Minister Trudeau's weekend outburst against Quebec separatists startled many Canadians. Today Ottawa columnist Anthony Westell backgrounds the prime minister's mounting concern about developments in his native province.

By ANTHONY WESTELL

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Trudeau's attitude toward the turmoil in Quebec has mounted steadily over the past year from contempt to concern to anger.

He has watched civil strife increase as the quality of provincial leadership has declined, and he has seen terrorism add a dreadful dimension to separatism.

Trudeau's intellect and emotions have been engaged not only as a Quebecker but as federal prime minister with ultimate responsibility for the welfare of the province. He is also one of the fathers of the quiet revolution of 1960 and he feels personally betrayed by the narrow nationalism which has eroded the hopes and idealism of those days.

He has been encouraged from time to time, this past year, to believe that perhaps the rot would stop.

●

After his convincing election win and the establishment of a strong French Canadian government in Ottawa, Quebec's interest appeared for a time to turn outwards.

When Premier Daniel Johnson died a year ago and the quieter Jean-Jacques Bertrand succeeded, Trudeau's hopes rose again. He thought he had a tacit understanding that Bertrand would cleanse his Union Nationale administration of secret separatists and extreme nationalists and co-operate wholeheartedly with Ottawa in tackling the economic and social problems of the province.

Bertrand failed to act, even after he had confirmed his leadership against the nationalists at the party convention in June.

His cabinet—as seen from Ottawa—continues to be a coalition paralysed by its divisions and unable to offer leadership.

●

While Trudeau was selling English Canada on the rights of the French language, Bertrand was allowing the rights of English to be nibbled away in Quebec.

After Ottawa and Quebec had reached a compromise on foreign representation, Bertrand permitted the whole issue to be re-opened by receiving French minister Jean de Lipkowski in a manner calculated to snub the federal government.

Trudeau calls this struggle over protocol and prestige "the battle of the red carpet" — an expression of contempt.

It was the coincidence of the de Lipkowski affair with the riots in Montreal that finally triggered Trudeau's anger into action.

He was appalled that the Quebec government could be quibbling with Ottawa over trifles of pomp and prestige while allowing the situation at home to deteriorate so badly that guerrillas could take over the streets for a few hours.

●

Trudeau complained in private about the absence of leadership in Quebec.

His staff watched the anger mounting within him and spread the word that it might well boil over in his speech to Quebec Liberals in Montreal on Sunday night.

Port Hardy Area to Boom

The San Francisco-based operator of Vancouver Island's largest copper-molybdenum prospect has signed a 10-year contract to sell the bulk of its copper production in Japan.

Value of the deal between Utah Construction & Mining Co. and the Mitsui Industrial Group is estimated at $430 million.

Utah has been exploring and developing large blocks of claims and mineral leases on northern Vancouver Island near Port Hardy since January 1966.

The interest of this major mining company stimulated scores of small companies and individuals to stake property in the area surrounding Holberg and Rupert Inlets south of Port Hardy.

Mitsui said in Tokyo today the organization will buy copper concentrates beginning in 1972, from deposits estimated at 300 million tons of ore.

In San Francisco, Utah senior vice-president A. Reeves said the contract agreement follows a letter of intent signed with Mitsui Sept. 15.

SAME TERMS

A definitive contract on the same terms was signed Monday, providing for the smelting of 60 per cent of Utah's total production in Japan.

Reeves said Mitsui, which includes Mitsui Mining and Smelting Co., will treat approximately 140,000 tons of copper concentrate a year, from this obtaining about 30,000 tons of copper metal, starting early in 1972.

He said Mitsui will buy at prevailing London Metal Market prices at the time of delivery.

Utah is not committed for the remaining 40 per cent of its production.

AVERAGE PRICE

Utah placed no dollar value on the deal. It is understood that average price per pound of copper is difficult to forecast and that, based on the estimate made in Tokyo, the average value of the Utah deal would be in the area of 57 cents a pound, which is considered unrealistically high.

Nonetheless, Reeves was enthusiastic about the agreement:

"It's a good deal; a good deal for us, good for B.C. and good for the Japanese copper market."

DESIGN STAGE

Utah's property development program has reached the engineering design stage, in which the Canadian firm of H. A. Simons International and Fluor Utah Engineers & Constructors are engaged. The latter, now independent, was formerly Utah Construction and Mining Co.'s construction subsidiary.

Construction of the mill begins in the spring of next year.

COUP HITS SOMALIA

MOGADISHU (AP) — A military coup overthrew Somalia's elected government early today less than 24 hours after the funeral of assassinated President Abdirashid Ali Shermarks.

The council said it will "abolish all the bad things left behind. Somalia will be led by responsible people, and tribalism will be abolished."

Canada Follows U.S. Drug Ban

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada will ban the use of the artificial sweetner cyclamate in food and drink in line with similar United States action scheduled to take effect Feb. 1, reliable sources said today.

Federal Health Minister John Munro was to announce the Canadian decision at a news conference later today.

The action follows the announcement last week by U.S. Health Secretary Robert H. Finch that the sweetner causes cancer in animals.

He said there is no evidence that cyclamate causes cancer in humans.

Two federal food and drug directorate officials were sent to Washington to examine the evidence on which the U.S. acted. Informants said they reported to Munro that the American evidence is conclusive and recommended similar Canadian action.

Talks Commence

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet and Czechosolvakian leaders today began talks in the Kremlin that Prague said would lead to a declaration of "basic political importance."

Austerity Key In New Session

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau this week gets his first real chance since assuming office in April, 1968, to chart a distinctive legislative course for Canada.

The Commons resumes Wednesday after a three-month summer recess and after a brief sitting Parliament will prorogue. The Senate ended its summer break last week.

The second session of the 28th Parliament opens Thursday morning as Governor-General Michener reads the speech from throne—written by the government—in the Senate chamber.

It is in this speech that Mr. Trudeau will be able to set out what his government plans, including ways to achieve the "just society" he has said is its aim. And if he follows through with what he has said in the last few weeks it will be marked by austerity.

THRONE SPEECH

The throne speech beginning the first session of the 28th Parliament in September, 1968, Mr. Trudeau's first as prime minister, contained few new policies. Most of the legislation it outlined were leftovers from the Pearson administration.

Included were increases in postal rates, amendments to the Criminal Code and an official languages bill.

Only 11 government bills will die on the order paper when Parliament prorogues.

Five are bills dealing with corporation, the establishment of an educational broadcasting agency, property expropriation regulations, amendments to the Income Tax Act and the customs tariff.

The other six are Senate bills dealing with hate literature, the Supreme Court Act and trust, insurance and loan companies.

The 11 bills probably will be presented again.

It is widely predicted the new session will be no bed of roses for the government.

FIVE PUPILS DISMISSED FOR LSD IN SCHOOL

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP)—Five students have been dismissed from Handsworth Secondary School here after being caught with LSD in their possession in school.

Peter Powell, school board chairman, said they were boys and girls in Grades 10 to 12. He said names were not being released.

"The drug was discovered by a member of the school staff," he said.

He said RCMP were called after the five admitted having LSD on the premises.

"The students are dismissed pending a full investigation by the staff of the superintendent's office and a report to the school board."

RCMP said Monday night no charges have been laid.

U.S. to Retain Air Base On Okinawa

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Japan have reached an understanding for the return of Okinawa to Tokyo's administrative control by 1972 while maintaining the U.S. military base on the island, official sources say.

The agreement will call for taking U.S. nuclear weapons off the island, held by the United States since the Japanese defeat in the Second World War, the officials said.

President Nixon and Japanese Prime Minister Eisaku Sato plan to issue a joint statement about the transfer when they conclude their Nov. 19-21 meeting in Washington, the officials said.

It will provide the date and the conditions to be embodied in a formal agreement negotiated after the Sato-Nixon meeting.

Negotiation of the final agreement, Nixon administration officials said, may take a year or more. When the United States and Japan reached an agreement in 1967 for the return of Iwo Jima and the Bonin Islands, it took seven months to negotiate the final details.

Tokyo Students Hurl Bombs In Clash With Riot Police

TOKYO (Reuters) — Radical students throwing gasoline bombs today paralysed central Tokyo as nationwide demonstrations against the United States and the Japanese government got under way.

At least 400 students were arrested in clashes with riot police. Traffic and rail services were disrupted, and stores and government offices closed to avoid trouble.

Two unsuccessful attempts were made to set off bombs at a pair of U.S. air bases in Japan, and on Okinawa American military police arrested five leftists who entered a U.S. Air Force base at Kadena.

The militant activities were a prelude to parades and rallies involving estimated 450,000 persons police expected to turn out on the annual anti-war day to protest against the war in Vietnam, a U.S.-Japanese security treaty and continued American possession of Okinawa.

All Bishops Vote To Share Powers

VATICAN CITY (AP) — All nine subcommissions of the world synod of bishops have voted in favor of giving bishops a strong new voice in helping the Pope rule the Roman Catholic Church, the Vatican said today.

The majority reports of the groups were sent to the full 146-member synod for final ratification. This is considered a formality.

The proposals then will be handed to Pope Paul who, if he puts them into effect, would virtually end what some liberals have called the papacy's "absolute monarchical rule."

A source said the changes would avert the chance of a Pope issuing a ruling, such as Pope Paul's ban on artificial birth control, without full consultation with the world's bishops. On the other hand, national bishops conferences would be obliged to consult the Roman Curia, the Vatican's administrative organ, before taking major decisions for their own countries.

Some liberals in the synod predicted the pontiff would approve the recommendations to share more of his authority with bishops around the globe.

None of the subcommissions contested the Pope's primacy or his right to make final decisions for the 500,000,000-member church, the synod's English-language briefing officer, Rev. Mark Reuver, said in his daily report.

URGE FAST MOVE

He said all groups urged, however, that the principle of collegiality—sharing by bishops in papal decision-making—be "brought into effect immediately, as the times call for it."

Each group voted to propose that the synod meet regularly and that the pontiff and Vatican keep in constant touch with the bishops in the dioceses.

Father Reuver said a majority in the synod felt also that a small but permanent body of bishops should be stationed at the Vatican to present the interests of national groups of bishops.

Woman Wins Her Own Divorce Case

By PAT DUFOUR

A Victoria school board employee, Mrs. Mae Stangowitz, 2005 Cook, Monday became the second woman in Canada to act as her own lawyer and gain a divorce.

Appearing before Mr. Justice John G. Gould of the B.C. Supreme Court, Mrs. Stangowitz described herself as being "Just numb, scared!"

She said she made up her mind to fight her own case when she read of a Toronto woman's successful bid last February.

In half an hour Mrs. Stangowitz had been granted her divorce. The total cost of her freedom, amounted to "about $70."

Mrs. Stangowitz says many women want divorces but, through lack of money to pay lawyer fees, live in misery.

"The average costs are beteen $550 and $700 I was told when I phoned a lawyer last June. A friend of mine, who is paying for his daughter's divorce, is stuck with a $2,000 bill."

Dubbing herself a "lunch-hour lawyer," Mrs. Stangowitz says she spent every lunch hour for a full month, studying procedures at the public library.

●

"I also had a good detective who cut his charges, and I went along as a witness to save money."

She said it was important to study, read and make sure the papers are properly completed.

"A lot of women would do it but they're afraid that they'll fill in something incorrectly, and then have to start all over again."

STANGOWITZ
. . . 'just numb'

Appearing in court Monday morning, Mrs. Stangowitz said a lot of the divorce cases she heard before her own could have been handled as hers was.

Her $70 bill included detective fees, five copies of petition for divorce, court costs and registration fee.

At least one lawyer was sympathetic to Mrs. Stangowitz's cutting corners.

●

"He was just going out the door when he heard that I was going to appear as my own lawyer and witness.

"He came back and sat down. When it was all over he offered his congratulations."

Mrs. Stangowitz who took a day off to present her case, was back on the job today.

Barrett Slams Appeal Fund As Big Business 'Charade'

By DON VIPOND

The provincial government launched another welfare study group Monday but it was NDP House leader Dave Barrett who went into orbit.

In a bitter attack on financing British Columbia's social services, he branded the United Appeal drive as an "annual charade" which permits the government and big business to escape their responsibilities.

"What a sham, what a mockery, what a 16th-century attitude toward services," said Barrett, MLA for Coquitlam and a professional social worker.

His remarks followed announcement by Welfare Minister Dan Campbell of a Greater Vancouver area citizens' congress to study and recommend changes in public and private welfare programs.

It's the "umpteenth-million" study, said Barrett today in exasperation. Plenty of research by professionals has already shown what's needed — "Government action."

The NDP solution would be area social centres providing comprehensive services rather than the mass of agencies which now duplicate administration.

One example of duplication: Parolled prisoners are now assisted by the Salvation Army and the John Howard Society among others. But such work is really a responsibility of the federal government.

Newspapers 'Hypocritical'

The welter surrounding welfare has produced "non-agencies" like Cool-Aid, said Barrett, describing them as "courageous attempts" to cut through red tape and provide needed services.

He took a shot at the paradox of seasonal fund drives such as ones led by newspapers to "fill empty stockings at Christmas." the rest of the year editorials berate "the lazy loafers on welfare," he said.

"This is the kind of hypocritical standard our young people look on with disgust."

Where Barrett's attack peppered the United Appeal, it drew angry retorts from Campbell and Peter Darling, chairman of Greater Victoria's campaign.

Barrett's comments on United Appeal funds were "unbelievably irresponsible and mischievous," said Campbell.

"This member is apparently so intoxicated by his reach for the leadership of the NDP that he is willing to undermine the community partnership that is required if we are going to deliver an effective social service program in British Columbia. . . ."

United Appeals are an important part of community involvement and volunteer dollars are one way of "breathing life" into social service programs, Campbell said.

He said Barrett had abused hundreds of volunteers who contribute to the province's social services and the NDP should repudiate his remarks.

Darling said Barrett's comments had done "untold harm" to the campaign.

STRAP USE DECLINES

Punishment Statistics Kept Under Wraps

Use of the strap in Greater Victoria schools continues to decrease.

And trustees continue to keep secret the number of times the strap is being used.

There was a 46-per-cent drop in incidents of corporal punishment during the 1968-69 school year, compared to the 1967-68 year.

School district superintendent A. J. Longmore explained to trustees Monday that no figures were being made public because "they could be misconstrued."

LACKED POWERS

In 1968 the school board trustees attempted to pass a motion banning the strap in Greater Victoria schools, but found they did not have the power to do so.

Under the Public Schools Act teachers have the power to discipline a student.

BROADLEY
. . . teacher matter

Association president Bill Broadley feels that discipline should be left in the hands of teachers.

"There is always a stress on trusting students," he said. "Trusting teachers should also be stressed."

Broadley said there is no one way to discipline a student and often this depends on the personalities of the teacher involved.

"I believe in corporal punishment in some cases.

"Some children come from permissive homes and the strap would be a traumatic experience," he said. "For other children the strap is used effectively at home and is the only way to make that child understand he has gone too far."

SADISM SOMETIMES

Broadley said this is why it is important for teachers to know the backgrounds of their students.

"There have been cases where the strap has been used too much but generally there is much less corporal punishment than there used to be," he said.

Broadley said occasionally a sadistic personality becomes a teacher and there is little to prevent this because of the inadequacy of personality tests for teachers.

Trustees have been invited to a meeting Monday with the GVTA where methods of discipline will be discussed.

"Discipline and corporal pubishment are not the same thing," siad Broadley.

He said Monday's meeting would probably be private because of the emotional nature of the subject discussed.

Longmore said today pressure is being put on teachers to find methods other than corporal punishment for discipline.

"Corporal punishment is to be used only as a last resort," he said.

Longmore pointed out that teachers are finding other methods. Since the corporal punishment survey began three years ago incidents of strapping or spanking have decreased by 62 per cent.

INTENSE CONCERN

"Corporal punishment is non-existent in senior secondary schools," he said.

Board chairman Carron Jameson said the trend is away from harsh discipline to "intense personal concern with students."

Greater Victoria Teachers'

SCHOOL TOILETS TAXED

The City of Victoria is going to charge rent on toilets and urinals in city schools.

City assessor A. G. Joyce informed the Greater Victoria School Board Monday it will cost $442 in 1970, $2 for each toilet and $1 for each urinal.

The move by the city comes with new provincial legislation permitting rental charges against land otherwise exempted.

"There's a tax on everything these days," commented board chairman Carron Jameson.

Oak Bay Rules Out Any Bonus for Police

It appears the 17-member Oak Bay police force will have to settle for the same wages as the Victoria force — and go without either parity with Vancouver police or the two-per-cent "morale boost" bonus won by Saanich.

Oak Bay Mayor Fred Hawes said today his men have two choices — they can accept the pay increase awarded Victoria police by the B.C. Mediation Commission or they can go to compulsory arbitration.

Arbitration would be by the mediation commission and it was that body which set the Victoria scale and, after a review, ruled the scale is adequate.

ANOTHER MEETING

Police and Oak Bay's police commission held a two-hour meeting Monday in effort to resolve the pay dispute.

Hawes said today that another meeting is planned for Monday, or sooner.

"There was some reluctance on the part of some of the police to go to arbitration. Now, they will have to go back to their members and decide which course they want to take."

Hawes said he received notice this morning that the case has been scheduled to go before the mediation commission Nov. 4.

"In all fairness — and we want to be fair to them — they should be given enough time to prepare if they want to go to arbitration. In view of the Nov. 4 meeting, we may have to get together sooner."

Sgt. Jack Groves, president of the Oak Bay Policemen's Union, said this morning: "we are still trying to negotiate outside the mediation commission."

He said he had definite feelings about the issue but added that he has been asked not to say anything at this time.

In an effort to gain parity with the Vancouver police force, Victoria's police commission and force took their case to the mediation commission. The police were awarded a 14.56 per cent increase over a period of two years.

Dissatisfied with this, the city police asked for a review of the decision. This was done and the decision upheld.

Also headed for compulsory arbitration the Saanich police commission and police force settled their dispute at a meeting Wednesday when the police were awarded a 16.56 per cent increase over a 22-month period, an increase of two per cent over that given to city policemen.

In Esquimalt, Constable Jack Wright, president of the Esquimalt Policemen's Union, said the contract with the municipality expires Dec. 31.

Driver's 'Worst Enemy' Is Himself, Not the Road

Knowing where the bad intersections are is only one step towards driving home alive.

It's knowing what to do when you get to them that counts, says Dennis Wagner, general manager of the Victoria Safety Council.

He was commenting on a recent Times survey of the city's six most dangerous intersections. They are Douglas and Hillside, Trans-Canada Highway and Douglas, Saanich and Douglas, Bay and Government, Burnside and Douglas and Trans-Canada and Burnside.

Don't blame accidents on the police or traffic engineers, says Wagner.

"We drivers are, in the main, our own worst enemies."

Everyone thinks he's a good driver until he crosses the Malahat in fog or tangles with rush-hour traffic on Government Street.

For self-styled experts and beginners there are many safety courses.

High school driver education courses are available at most area schools. If a school hasn't one, contact the safety council and it will get a course going, says Wagner.

Commercial driving schools offer refresher courses as well as introduction to highway protocol.

A driver simulator course combining on-the-road training and classroom instruction is offered by the British Columbia Automobile Association.

But certificates don't mean safety unless drivers use what they know on the streets.

The highway signs that say Drive Defensively are not just decoration.

The Red Cross Blood Clinic hopes today to match its performance Monday when they drew 133 units of blood.

The quota, then, as today, was 100 pints.

Wednesday the clinic moves to the University of Victoria for three days. The quota for each day is 100 pints.

LORNA VINDEN, VICtoria wheelchair athlete whose example has given hope to many a paraplegic, asks no favors from life. Though paralyzed to the armpits, she holds down a responsible job, makes a home for a family of two boys, and drives an automobile fitted with hand controls. Also, Mrs. Vinden has brought honor to her city in Pan-American sports competition.

★

Self-sufficient? Gallantly so. But today she needs help of a sort she can't supply for herself, and I hope her community will pony up with it.

On Nov. 25, Lorna Vinden is scheduled to set out for Buenos Aires as a star member of the Canadian team chosen to compete in this year's Wheelchair Pan-American Games. I'm told—though not by her—that her chances of scoring high in shot put, javelin, and wheelchair slalom are bright.

At Hamilton last August, she did very well in trials sponsored by Canadian Wheelchair Sports Association, to the B.C. branch of which she belongs. So did Victoria swimmer Gwen John, who presently received word that she had made Canada's Pan-Am team.

Lorna, though she holds an all-Canada pentathlon crown, received no such notification.

A lesser spirit might have fussed and fretted. But she swallowed her disappointment and pitched into the task of campaigning for the $1,200 needed if Mrs. John were to go to Buenos Aires.

An anonymous donor, more power to him or her, boosted the drive well over the top with a $1,200 cheque.

Then, on Oct. 14, Lorna Vinden got a long-distance call from Toronto that for a moment made her wonder whether to laugh or cry.

★

She too had been chosen for the Canadian team, but because of a foul-up at Toronto association headquarters, notification had been delayed.

A scout in Canada Manpower, where Mrs. Vinden works as central filing clerk, told me on Monday how matters stand with the fastest wheelchair pilot in the west.

She yearns to compete at Buenos Aires, but with only $300 of the necessary sum raised, her chances at the moment seem mighty slim.

Here, friends, is a lady of grit and merit.

★

Her wheels are ready, and—except for the $900 lacking—so is she.

A donation sent to Canadian Paraplegic Association, 232—440 Simcoe Street, will help her on her way.

ALTHOUGH SUBURBAN man has pushed deep into what once was open country, the smart raccoon survived and even flourished. But his numbers in this area may have been drastically reduced by such a winter as still tingles my ears when I remember it.

We haven't seen a coon or a coon-track on beach or in woods for months, and the other day a reader offered what she feels may be a clue to this wholesale disappearance.

She and her husband were working on their place when they discovered the body of a long-dead racoon in a tree crotch. Their conclusion was that old black-mask had perished from the unprecedented cold of January.

I relayed the suggestion to Keith Mundy, assistant chief of wildlife for B.C. Fish and Wildlife branch. Racoons are fairly hardy creatures, Mundy told me, but they do not hibernate in the strict sense of the term, and it's possible that the Victoria ringtails took a cruel beating when the north winds blew.

★

Victoria is well up in the racoon's northern range. To some extent at least, the breed may have shared the fate of another creature that migrated toward the limit of its climatic zone.

This is the opossum, which spreads from its southern habitat into the central United States when one mild winter follows another.

"Then a hard winter," Mundy said, "and a virtual wipeout of possums in that territory."

Victoria's quail, a "subsidized population" not native to our province, also got hit pretty hard here, and even harder in the Okanagan.

★

However, the salvation of the flocks lies in their reproductive capacity. With hatchings of perhaps 16 at a nesting, the quail population shouldn't be too long in reaching its former abundance.

The same for the racoons. The females that weathered through to springtime could be counted on to expand their tribe with litters of from one to six young.

This could mean future bad news to chicken, peach and cherry raisers, but I'm relieved to know that at least some of these furry moonlighters are still about.

Even though they've feasted at our expense more than once, we can't help liking 'em!

Japan in $430M Pact To Buy Island Copper

PM WARNS CBC OF TRUSTEESHIP

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Monday the federal government would not hesitate to put the French network of the CBC under trusteeship if it was decided the network was misusing its funds.

An interviewer on the Radio-Canada-French network-television program Format 30 asked if the government would take such a step and Trudeau replied: "It's possible. Yes, it's possible. I cannot provide a date, but it's possible."

Trudeau did not elaborate on what form the trusteeship might take. He said the government could content itself with a reduction of the Crown corporation's budget.

Port Hardy Area to Boom

The San Francisco-based operator of Vancouver Island's largest copper-molybdenum prospect has signed a 10-year contract to sell the bulk of its copper production in Japan.

Value of the deal between Utah Construction & Mining Co. and the Mitsui Industrial Group is estimated at $430 million.

Utah has been exploring and developing large blocks of claims and mineral leases on northern Vancouver Island near Port Hardy since January 1966.

The interest of this major mining company stimulated scores of small companies and individuals to stake property in the area surrounding Holberg and Rupert Inlets south of Port Hardy.

• BATTLE FOR QUEBEC •

Separatist Street Riots Anger PM

Prime Minister Trudeau's weekend outburst against Quebec separatists startled many Canadians. Today Ottawa columnist Anthony Westell backgrounds the prime minister's mounting concern about developments in his native province.

By ANTHONY WESTELL

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Trudeau's attitude toward the turmoil in Quebec has mounted steadily over the past year from contempt to concern to anger.

He has watched civil strife increase as the quality of provincial leadership has declined, and he has seen terrorism add a dreadful dimension to separatism.

Trudeau's intellect and emotions have been engaged not only as a Quebecker but as federal prime minister with ultimate responsibility for the welfare of the province. He is also one of the fathers of the quiet revolution of 1960 and he feels personally betrayed by the narrow nationalism which has eroded the hopes and idealism of those days.

He has been encouraged from time to time, this past year, to believe that perhaps the rot would stop.

•

After his convincing election win and the establishment of a strong French Canadian government in Ottawa, Quebec's interest appeared for a time to turn outwards.

When Premier Daniel Johnson died a year ago and the quieter Jean-Jacques Bertrand succeeded, Trudeau's hopes rose again. He thought he had a tacit understanding that Bertrand would cleanse his Union Nationale administration of secret separatists and extreme nationalists and co-operate wholeheartedly with Ottawa in tackling the economic and social problems of the province.

Bertrand failed to act, even after he had confirmed his leadership against the nationalists at the party convention in June.

His cabinet—as seen from Ottawa—continues to be a coalition paralysed by its divisions and unable to offer leadership.

•

While Trudeau was selling English Canada on the rights of the French language, Bertrand was allowing the rights of English to be nibbled away in Quebec.

After Ottawa and Quebec had reached a compromise on foreign representation, Bertrand permitted the whole issue to be re-opened by receiving French minister Jean de Lipkowski in a manner calculated to snub the federal government.

Trudeau calls this struggle over protocol and prestige "the battle of the red carpet" — an expression of contempt.

It was the coincidence of the de Lipkowski affair with the riots in Montreal that finally triggered Trudeau's anger into action.

He was appalled that the Quebec government could be quibbling with Ottawa over trifles of pomp and prestige while allowing the situation at home to deteriorate so badly that guerrillas could take over the streets for a few hours.

•

Trudeau complained in private about the absence of leadership in Quebec.

His staff watched the anger mounting within him and spread the word that it might well boil over in his speech to Quebec Liberals in Montreal on Sunday night.

A formal text often inhibits Trudeau's style as a speaker. He is distracted by the sight of reporters turning over the pages of a speech issued in

Austerity Key In New Session

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau this week gets his first real chance since assuming office in April, 1968, to chart a distinctive legislative course for Canada.

The Commons resumes Wednesday after a three-month summer recess and after a brief sitting Parliament will prorogue. The Senate ended its summer break last week.

The second session of the 28th Parliament opens Thursday morning as Governor-General Michener reads the speech from throne—written by the government—in the Senate chamber.

It is in this speech that Mr. Trudeau will be able to set out what his government plans, including ways to achieve the "just society" he has said is its aim. And if he follows through with what he has said in the last few weeks it will be marked by austerity.

THRONE SPEECH

The throne speech beginning the first session of the 28th Parliament in September, 1968, Mr. Trudeau's first as prime minister, contained few new policies. Most of the legislation it outlined were leftovers from the Pearson administration.

Included were increases in postal rates, amendments to the Criminal Code and an official languages bill.

Only 11 government bills will die on the order paper when Parliament prorogues.

Five are bills dealing with corporation, the establishment of an educational broadcasting agency, property expropriation regulations, amendments to the Income Tax Act and the customs tariff.

The other six are Senate bills dealing with hate literature, the Supreme Court Act and trust, insurance and loan companies.

The 11 bills probably will be presented again.

It is widely predicted the new session will be no bed of roses for the government.

FIVE PUPILS DISMISSED FOR LSD IN SCHOOL

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP)—Five students have been dismissed from Handsworth Secondary School here after being caught with LSD in their possession in school.

Peter Powell, school board chairman, said they were boys and girls in Grades 10 to 12. He said names were not being released.

"The drug was discovered by a member of the school staff," he said.

He said RCMP were called after the five admitted having LSD on the premises.

"The students are dismissed pending a full investigation by the staff of the superintendent's office and a report to the school board."

RCMP said Monday night no charges have been laid.

U.S. to Retain Air Base On Okinawa

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Japan have reached an understanding for the return of Okinawa to Tokyo's administrative control by 1972 while maintaining the U.S. military base on the island, official sources say.

The agreement will call for taking U.S. nuclear weapons off the island, held by the United States since the Japanese defeat in the Second World War, the officials said.

President Nixon and Japanese Prime Minister Eisaku Sato plan to issue a joint statement about the transfer when they conclude their Nov. 19-21 meeting in Washington, the officials said.

It will provide the date and the conditions to be embodied in a formal agreement negotiated after the Sato-Nixon meeting.

Negotiation of the final agreement, Nixon administration officials said, may take a year or more. When the United States and Japan reached an agreement in 1967 for the return of Iwo Jima and the Bonin Islands, it took seven months to negotiate the final details.

Tokyo Students Hurl Bombs In Clash With Riot Police

TOKYO (Reuters) — Radical students throwing gasoline bombs today paralysed central Tokyo as nationwide demonstrations against the United States and the Japanese government got under way.

At least 400 students were arrested in clashes with riot police. Traffic and rail services were disrupted, and stores and government offices closed to avoid trouble.

Two unsuccessful attempts were made to set off bombs at a pair of U.S. air bases in Japan, and on Okinawa American military police arrested five leftists who entered a U.S. Air Force base at Kadena.

The militant activities were a prelude to parades and rallies involving estimated 450,000 persons police expected to turn out on the annual anti-war day to protest against the war in Vietnam, a U.S.-Japanese security treaty and continued American possession of Okinawa.

All Bishops Vote To Share Powers

VATICAN CITY (AP) — All nine subcommissions of the world synod of bishops have voted in favor of giving bishops a strong new voice in helping the Pope rule the Roman Catholic Church, the Vatican said today.

The majority reports of the groups were sent to the full 146-member synod for final ratification. This is considered a formality.

The proposals then will be handed to Pope Paul who, if he puts them into effect, would virtually end what some liberals have called the papacy's "absolute monarchical rule."

A source said the changes would avert the chance of a Pope issuing a ruling, such as Pope Paul's ban on artificial birth control, without full consultation with the world's bishops. On the other hand, national bishops conferences would be obliged to consult the Roman Curia, the Vatican's administrative organ, before taking major decisions for their own countries.

Some liberals in the synod predicted the pontiff would approve the recommendations to share more of his authority with bishops around the globe.

None of the subcommissions contested the Pope's primacy or his right to make final decisions for the 500,000,000-member church, the synod's English-language briefing officer, Rev. Mark Reuver, said in his daily report.

URGE FAST MOVE

He said all groups urged, however, that the principle of collegiality—sharing by bishops in papal decision-making—be "brought into effect immediately, as the times call for it."

Each group voted to propose that the synod meet regularly and that the pontiff and Vatican keep in constant touch with the bishops in the dioceses.

Father Reuver said a majority in the synod felt also that a small but permanent body of bishops should be stationed at the Vatican to present the interests of national groups of bishops.

He stands between you and a bottle of headache pills

It may not be as convenient as self-service.

But we don't feel that convenience should ever come before your health. And neither should profits.

The way we look at it, we know more about drugs than you do. We've been trained for it. And that's our only business.

We have 23 staff pharmacists. And any one of them will be happy to talk to you. Even about something you might think is simple. Like a headache.

Because sometimes a headache can mean something serious. We have no self-service because a counter can't tell you what's best for what ails you.

And because our knowhow is a lot safer than guesswork.
